PAULHAN WINS $50,000 RACE

Frenchman Flies from London to Manchester, 185 Miles, with Only One Stop.

GRAHAME WHITE IS BEATEN

Englishman, Caught Napping, Starts Late and Fails When 60 Miles Short of Goal.

ALL ENGLAND IS EXCITED

Contestants Both Behave with Great Pluck—High Speed Accomplished Despite Strong Wind.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Thursday, April 28.—Louis Paulhan, the French aviator, at 5:30 this morning completed an aeroplane flight from London to Manchester, thereby winning the prize of $50,000 offered by The Daily Mail. This is the greatest feat so far performed by an aviator, and it is rewarded by the greatest sum ever offered as an aviation prize.

Englishmen everywhere will applaud the splendid success of M. Paulhan, but they must at the same time feel some regret, for the Frenchman not only won the prize, he also defeated an Englishman who was contending for it. Indeed, it was only at the last moment that the contest took on an international aspect.

Grahame White, who came down this morning 60 miles short of the goal which Paulhan reached, had for some time been preparing to make the aeroplane journey from London to Manchester, and he did not anticipate rivalry. M. Paulhan's decision to compete resulted in what is declared to be the most exciting sporting event that this country has ever seen.

The records of aviation show nothing to parallel this contest for the blue ribbon of the air. It was begun yesterday afternoon, and the Frenchman, when he alighted at Lichfield for the night, was considerably more than half way to the goal, while the Englishman, who literally had been "caught napping," had covered a little less than a third of the distance.

White this morning made a valiant attempt to overtake his rival. He was up at midnight, and at 2:50, while it was still quite dark he started from Roade, near Northampton, where he had descended last evening. At 4 A. M., however, he descended at Polesworth on account of trouble with his motor.

Despite the difficulty and danger of a night flight, White passed Rugby at 3:30 and Brincklow at 3:45, making twenty-three miles in forty minutes.

Paulhan started again at 4:09 A. M. At 5.06 he passed Crewe. He accomplished the entire journey in 3 hours 56 minutes.

Paulhan Got an Hour's Start.

White passed Nuneaton at 3:50, and is thus probably about fifteen miles behind the Frenchman.

Paulhan started from Hampstead at 5:31 P. M. yesterday and alighted at Trent Valley, near Lichfield, 117 miles from London and 68 miles from Manchester, at 8:10 P. M.

White started from Wormwood Scrubbs at 6:32 and alighted near Northampton, 60 miles from London, at 7:55 P. M.

Paulhan flew according to his programme. Before beginning the flight he had worked for eleven consecutive hours in assembling his machine, which only arrived from France on Tuesday. At 5:21 P. M. yesterday, without a trial flight of any kind, he soared into the air and flew to Hampstead to enter the five-mile radius from The Daily Mail office. Passing inside the circle he then headed north for Manchester and picked up the London & North Western Railway.

Accompanied in his progress by a special train, he flew at great speed along the railway, and at times was doing a mile a minute. He passed over Harrow, Watford, Bletchley, Wolverton, Rugby, and Nuneaton. It was dark when the great aeroplane came gently to earth near Lichfield, after the most remarkable flight yet recorded in the history of aviation.

Grahame White waited all the morning and most of the afternoon at Wormwood Scrubbs for favorable weather, and finally decided not to start. He had dismissed most of his mechanics, and himself was sleeping so as to be fresh and ready for the great effort this morning when the startling news reached him that his rival was in the air.

Then followed the most dramatic incident of an extraordinary day. White determined at once, with splendid pluck and sportsmanship, to make a bold bid for success and for the honor of his country. He rushed to his aeroplane, leaped into the seat, and dashed off into the dusk, heading gallantly for Manchester. His competitor, however, had obtained an hour's start, which meant an hour more daylight.

Mr. White was driven by the gathering darkness to descend at a place called Roade, 0 miles from London, after a flight which, in the circumstances, can only be pronounced magnificent.

Paulhan was at work at 7 A. M. yes-

ROCKEFELLER ABANDONS BILL

Disgusted with Opposition to Foundation—Albany Bill Passes Assembly.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—It is reported that John D. Rockefeller, angered at the reception accorded to his plan to establish an enormous philanthropic foundation, and weary of the delays imposed upon the National incorporation of the plan under the laws governing the District of Columbia, will abandon the bill introduced by Senator Gallinger and secure for his project a charter from some State, probably New York. Starr J. Murphy, the oil king's attorney, has let it be known that Mr. Rockefeller is displeased by the delay and lack of enthusiasm with which his proposition has been received.

Representatives of the proposed "foundation" have become convinced that it will be impossible to overcome the objections of Senators Heyburn and La Follette. Senator Heyburn fears the bill would relieve the entire Rockefeller estate from taxation. Mr. La Follette and others think the terms of the bill are too vague and indefinite, being directly, generally for the "benefit of humanity."

"The Rockefeller Foundation would perpetuate the Standard Oil Company, because by the terms of the bill it would leave the investments in the hands of that company and give it additional advantages over other corporations," declared Senator Heyburn to-day. "Mr. Murphy intimated to me that Mr. Rockefeller was disposed to withdraw his 'great gift to humanity' because of the opposition encountered in the Senate. I told him I was not interested in that statement.

Senator Gallinger expressed little hope for the bill.

"I shall not call it up," he said to-day, "until there is time for a debate, and there is not time now. As the Senate will be more rushed with business later on there is not likely to be more time then."

ALBANY, April 27.—The Assembly passed to-day the Ward bill incorporating the "Economic and General Foundation" and providing for the custody of a trust fund to be expended for economic, charitable, altruistic, artistic, and scientific purposes by an aged man of wealth, who is said to have $2,500,000 to spend in that manner, and who is too modest to permit his name to become known.

Even after the passage of the bill Mr. Ward said he could not disclose the identity of the mysterious philanthropist.

GEN. MILES IS INJURED.

Rib Broken and Head Hurt When Thrown by His Horse.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—Gen. Nelson A. Miles, U. S. A., retired, was thrown by his horse late this afternoon on the Speedway, Potomac Park. A rib was broken and he received a slight scalp wound on the left side. He also received a severe nervous shock.

He was picked up unconscious by a park policeman, who administered first aid to the injured.

Gen. Miles regained consciousness quickly, and when it was suggested that he be taken to the military post hospital at Fort Myer, or to the Walter Reed Hospital, on Georgia Avenue, he entered a protest and requested that he be taken to his apartment in the Rochambeau, in Connecticut Avenue. Accordingly he was placed in an automobile belonging to J. M. Baker, Assistant Librarian of Congress, who accompanied Gen. Miles to his apartments. Upon the arrival of the automobile at the Rochambeau it was met by Drs. Wellington and Morgan, who attended the General.

He was sufficiently recovered this evening from the immediate shock of the accident to describe how it occurred.

"I had gone to the Speedway with my orderly," he said, "to enjoy the band concert. I had with me a horse I had never ridden before, desiring to try the animal out. He is high-spirited and a fine mover. I had ridden around the Speedway several times. I fell with my full weight on my left shoulder, going completely over the horse's head."

At the time of the accident the Marine Band was giving a concert and there was a crowd along the Speedway. When the riderless horse came running through the crowd the rumor spread that Gen. Miles had been killed, and for a time there was considerable excitement.

TO ARREST QUEENS OFFICIAL.

Action to be Taken on Evidence Offered Commissioner of Accounts.

Because the Queens County Grand Jury adjourned yesterday afternoon without calling for the testimony of six witnesses who had been subpoenaed before it on information furnished by the Citizens' Committee, these witnesses late yesterday adopted another method of being heard.

They went directly to Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick, and as a result it was stated last night that an arrest of a high official in Queens would be made to-day. Several citizens said they would be at Borough Hall, in Long Island City, this morning, hoping to see the suspected official taken into custody there. This arrest, it is said, will mark the beginning of a series of arrests, which "will break the inner circle of the graft ring."

Among the witnesses who were subpoenaed, but not heard, was Joseph Nelson, formerly chief clerk of the Sewer Department, who was anxious to tell the full story leading to his dismissal under charges. One point on which evidence was given to Commissioner Fosdick had to do with a $50 check, mentioned in the complaint filed with Gov. Hughes. It was charged in this document that the check was drawn on city funds and that an employe of the Sewer Department was asked to sign a voucher for it, with the explanation that it was really to go for campaign expenses.

UNREST IN PEKING.

Rumors of an Approaching Uprising—Apprehension in Chang-Sha.

PEKING, April 27.—Reports of the rioting in Hu-Nan Province, though suppressed by the native papers, have been received here and are causing unrest among the servants and coolies, who are said to be leaving Peking in large numbers because of whisperings that an uprising in this city will take place.

The local authorities give assurance that there is not the slightest danger of an outbreak here.

CHANG-SHA, China, April 27.—The Governor of Chang-Sha urges foreigners not to return to the districts where native rioting has occurred before thirty or more days have elapsed.

A number of foreigners have returned here. The city is quiet, but there is considerable apprehension, as a feeling of unrest still exists among the natives.

The Hunanese gentry assert that they will refuse to recognize the new Governor. The latter declares that he can control the situation, but adds that the presence at the capital of a large number of foreigners would strengthen the leaders of the recent trouble, who could easily inflame the malcontents and cause fresh outrages in order to bring about his (the Governor's) dismissal.

NEW CHIEF SLEUTH AFTER THE GAMBLERS

Inspector Russell Sends Walsh and a Squad with Axes Into Two "Clubs."

BUT GOT EVIDENCE FIRST

Young Detective as a "Millionaire Kid" Attended to That Part—Fancy Layouts Seized at Both Places.

In a spectacular double raid the poilce late yesterday afternoon captured eighteen prisoners and two of the finest sets of gambling furniture ever loaded into a patrol wagon. The Hammersley Club, at 121 West Forty-seventh Street, and the Phoenix Club, at 158 West Forty-sixth Street, were the places raided.

The raiding party left Police Headquarters in an automobile late yesterday afternoon with instructions from Inspector Russell, the new head of the Detective Bureau, and warrants from Magistrate Appleton of the First District Court. Crowbars and axes wrapped in blankets were carried in the tonneau.

Sergt. Mallam, Commissioner Baker's chauffeur, was at the wheel, and Inspector Richard Walsh of the Sixteenth Inspection District, Lieuts. Scobel and Ahlborn, and several detectives were in the car, all attired as if out for a joy ride, with motor goggles, coats, and caps. The party stopped at the West Forty-seventh Street Station to make arrangements to guard the places about to be raided to prevent any escapes, and then hurried to the Hammersley Club, on West Forty-seventh Street.

Both places have been under police surveillance for over ten days, and Frank B. Ahlborn of Inspector Walsh's staff had gained admission to both and obtained evidence. He had been assigned to spend money in the Tenderloin to get acquainted with gambling places and had become known as "The Millionaire Kid."

The apparent size of his "roll" had been noted, and it was not long before he was invited to play in several places. He introduced several other plain clothes policemen into the Phoenix and Hammersley Clubs and into other gambling places.

The police said last night that it had been very expensive securing the evidence, but a different story was told by the gamblers. They said Ahlborn had been so heavy a winner that the Hammersley Club promoters were glad when he transferred his activities to the Phoenix. They were particularly angry that a "heavy winner" should turn them over to the police.

There had been much discussion in gambling circles over the mysterious disappearance of the "Millionaire Kid" two days ago, but there was no suspicion that he was a police officer. Part of the evidence on which Magistrate Appleton issued John Doe warrants consisted of poker chips, cards, and racing sheets, smuggled out by the sleuths. Inspector Walsh denied that Ahlborn had been a winner in the two clubs.

Tried to Warn Phoenix Club.

The raidng party found a man named Whitman on the door of the Hammersley Club, and admission was first obtained by Detective Gaynes. The others followed. Seventy men were found playing roulette and various card games on the parlor floor and a similar number in the basement betting on the horse race.

A dash for the telephone by one of the players, to warn the operators at the Phoenix Club, was frustrated by Inspector Walsh personally. A heavy guard in front and rear and on the roof prevented any of the players from escaping.

Only thirteen of the men found in this house were taken into custody. At the West Forty-seventh Street Station House they said they were Harry Cohn, salesman, East 106th Street; Michael Morris, commercial traveler, 205 East 103d Street; Charles Riley, clerk, 154 Bridge Street, Brooklyn; Harry Vallon, clerk, 116 Harrison Street, Brooklyn; Joseph Ryan, salesman, 125 West 125th Street; Stanley Bender, jeweler, 325 East 141st Street; John Buckley, salesman, 197 Second Avenue; Louis Leons, salesman, 1,710 Lexington Avenue; Samuel Harris, salesman, 241 West Forty-fifth Street; Frank Brock, 409 East Thirty-seventh Street; Henry Silver, clerk, 111 Second Avenue; Alfred Gabriel, salesman, 10 East 113th Street, and Joseph Jones, 585 Madison Street, Brooklyn.

Jones and Gabriel are charged by the police with being the managers of the Hammersley Club, which, they say, has an "underground connection" with the Hesper Club in Second Avenue. The club was equipped with the square telephone receivers of the private telephone system of the racing interests with a central located in West Thirty-first Street, near Sixth Avenue, as well as with the regular telephone system. The telephone instruments were seized.

To get into the Phoenix Club the raiders were forced to use axes and crowbars. Four men were arrested at this place, where a man named Jasper Kelly was found acting as "lookout." The entire building was occupied by the club. The prisoners said they were Jacob Silverman, bartender, 145 Second Avenue; George Williams, speculator, 585 Sixth Avenue; Sigmund Gordon, real estate operator, 138 West 137th Street; Charles Clark, 11 West Sixty-third Street, and John Leonard, clerk, 600 Eighth Avenue.

Seven Loads of Furniture.

Seven trips of the patrol wagon were needed to take the gambling paraphernalia to the station house. The roulette wheels were of the most modern construction and the tables were of carved oak. Other tables were of costly woods. The police got $158 from the tables in the Phoenix Club and $20 in the Hammersley Club.

Much indignation was expressed that the raid should have been made from Headquarters. Some of the police said the tip which led to the raid had been given by a disgruntled detective attached to the West Forty-seventh Street Station.

The prisoners will be arraigned this morning in the Tombs Court.

TAFT SUMMONS INSURGENTS.

Talks with Madison About the Bill Regulating Injunctions.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—President Taft sent for Representative Madison today and held a long conference with the Kansas insurgent about the Injunction bill. This is the first time in weeks that an insurgent has gone to the White House at the personal request of the President to talk legislation. Sending for insurgents would mean that Mr. Taft had abandoned hope of getting his legislation passed through the regular leaders and had concluded to take a part in harmonizing things himself.

The purpose of the President in sending for Judge Madison was to enlist his support in an effort to bring the Injunction bill before the House and force its consideration. The House Committee on Judiciary has been holding the bill, which is vigorously opposed by the National Manufacturers' Association, and now the White House is anxious to get it out of the committee. The President evidently expects the bill to be the next Administration measure brought to a vote after the Railroad bill is out of the way.

In order not to miss the many notable features in next Sunday's Times it is important to place orders with news dealers to-day.

MILLIONS INVOLVED IN SWINDLE CHARGE

THEY SUE FOR RESTITUTION

Railroad and Mine Properties Are Involved and Some Eastern Financiers May Be Brought In.

Special to The New York Times.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., April 27.—In a suit filed in the United States Court to-day charges were made that millions of dollars have been fraudulently obtained by stock jobbers. Men prominent in Western financial circles are involved, and financiers of Eastern cities may be drawn into the court proceedings.

The plaintiff is the Penna-Wyoming Investors' Association, composed of hundreds of persons who have formed the association to fight for the return of their money and punish the men they charge with robbing them. The complaint is directed against E. W. Cobb of Pittsburg, F. B. Draper of Chicago, E. A. Norton of Texas, I. L. Pennock, A. L. Hawse, and others. It charges that a close corporation of promoters organized no less than fifteen auxiliary corporations, stock being sold in each, in all parts of the country, the companies later being transferred or sold out without returning a penny to the stockholders.

According to the complaint, twelve years ago Willis George Emerson, the author, organized the Ferris-Haggerty Copper Mining Company, purchased the Ferris-Haggarty copper mine in the Grand Encampment District of Southern Wyoming, built a large smelter at encampment on a rail tramway between the smelter and mine, established power and light plants, and built a town. Later he sold the properties to the North American Copper Company, which established banks and stores, and commenced work on a steam railroad connecting encampment with the Union Pacific Railway at Walcott, Wyo.

Twelve miles of road was built when, it is said, the late E. H. Harriman took a hand and attempted to prevent the completion of the line. Then the Penna-Wyoming Copper Company was organized, when all the property of the original company passed into its hands, and work on the railroad was resumed. Five years ago the Penna-Wyoming Copper Company sold out to the United Smelter Railway and Copper Company, and it is alleged that the promoters of this deal cleared $1,000,000.

The railroad was completed to Grand Encampment, and in the meantime, it is asserted, holding and auxiliary companies were organized and the stock sold in all parts of the United States and in Europe, main offices being opened in Chicago, Cleveland, Pittsburg, New York, Boston, London, and Paris. Norton was in charge of the European office, and was the man alleged to have disposed of the bulk of the stock.

Bonds were issued and sold, and the promoters are said to have obtained a profit of between $7,000,000 and $8,000,000.

The property, including the tramway, which is the longest tramway in the world, and the smelter, the Ferris-Haggarty mine, and the railroad is declared to be valued at from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000, while the gross sum realized by the operators from the transfers and sale of bonds and stock is variously estimated at from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000.

Among the early investors in the North American company before its transfer to the United Smelters Railway and Copper Company were a large number of Standard Oil men, including Edward Kuhm, general manager of the Beaver City National Bank; Joseph Seep, then Treasurer of the Standard Oil Company; Charles P. Collins, Jesse R. Leonard, B. H. Leonard, and John J. Carter.

Draper was a Chicago attorney, and is said to have been the brains of the big scheme, while Norton is an ex-cowboy from the Texas plains. Pennock was said to be wealthy and honest. He has paid many debts contracted by the others, and has remained with the companies in an effort to save himself and his friends. The United States Government will be asked to proceed against the operators for fraudulently using the mails.

TESTS OF LOW TEMPERATURE.

Princeton's New Laboratory Gives First Scientific Results.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 27.—There have just been installed in Palmer Physical Laboratory, Princeton's new $500,000 structure, practically the only successful constant low temperature rooms in the world. They have already aided in obtaining results of great importance to physics and chemistry, and scientists generally predict that the new rooms will be of incalculable value in determining the truth of several theories which have not heretofore been sufficiently tested because of lack of proper facilities.

The temperature of the rooms can be kept at 7 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit, with a variation of not more than one-tenth of a degree, which has never before been achieved. They are also kept entirely dry, and in damp weather no air is admitted except such as may be freed from all moisture and vapor by a special process used for this purpose. The walls are protected from outside influence by a six-inch layer of cork.

The rooms are cooled by means of the ordinary ammonia process, and while one room can be lowered from 32 degrees Fahrenheit, the freezing point, to a few degrees above zero and kept there, the other rooms can be lowered to 7 degrees below zero and maintained at that point.

VICTORIA WOODHULL HURT.

Former Miss Claflin of New York in an Auto Accident.

LONDON, April 27.—Mrs. Victoria Woodhull Martin, formerly Miss Claflin of New York, was injured in a motor car accident to-day near Tewksbury.

Her arm was broken and she was otherwise hurt.

THE AUDIENCE IN A PANIC

Special Policemen Bar Doors Leading to the Pit in Which Struggling Men, Women, and Children Are Buried.

The sudden collapse of the entire concrete and timber flooring of the lobby of the Metropolitan Theatre, a new moving-picture show, at 134 Essex Street, last night threw more than twenty-five men, women, and children into the basement below.

Fifteen of them, when extricated from the tangled mass of timber and cracked concrete in the basement, ten feet below, by reserves of the Eldridge, Delancey, and Mulberry Street Stations, firemen, and persons in the dense east side mob which gathered, were found to be injured, and most of them were removed to hospitals. One will probably die.

The injured are:

ARDOFF, SAMUEL, 17 years, 628 East Sixth Street; contusions of the leg; to Bellevue Hospital.

COOPER, YETTA, 16, of 49 Stanton Street; contusions of the face, and shock; home.

KRIEGER, DAVID, 40, of 304 Third Street, Jersey City; shock and internal injuries; Gouverneur Hospital.

SOBEL, MAX, 25, of 15 Pitt Street, contusions of face; home.

SOBEL, PHILIP, 29, of 15 Pitt Street, contusions of left ankle; home.

The building in which the theatre was housed was formerly a five-story factory, but was recently remodeled into a theatre, under the management of Joseph Friedlander and J. Tenzer. Only the first floor was occupied at the time of the accident, and that had been fitted up into an orchestra and balcony, with a combined seating capacity of 276 persons. The lobby just in front of the theatre had a flooring of heavy timbers ten inches by four inches thick, running all the way across the twenty-foot front of the theatre, and but a few inches apart. On top of the timbers a heavy thickness of concrete and tiling had been laid.

At 8:30 o'clock, while the theatre proper was thronged to its full capacity, a crowd of some thirty persons crowded eagerly under the glaring arc light in the arched roof of the lobby toward the ticket office, which bulged out, a small wooden box, at the right of the partition between the lobby and the theatre. In the ticket office were Eva Tenzer and Samuel Tenzer, children of one of the owners of the theatre, and beside them, just outside of the box, stood Samuel Solomon, an usher, keeping the crowd in line.

Suddenly the entire flooring of the lobby bulged downward and fell with a crash, and a dense cloud of powder and dust into the basement ten feet below, carrying with it every man, woman, and child that had been in the place. Hands, arms, legs, and heads all intermingled. They were thrown writhing and shrieking into the dust-pool beneath, the crumpled timbers and concrete tumbling in on top of the undermost. Only the ticket box, which was nailed to the partition behind, stayed in its place. The two Tenzer children inside looked down upon the squirming mass of people in the hole beneath them, expecting every moment to crash in on top of them, and not daring for a few moments to stir. Solomon, the usher, was engulfed in the cave-in with the rest.

"Shut the doors!" he shouted. Then he vanished in the writhing human chaos beneath.

Siegel ran into the theatre and backing against the door, locked it, shouting at the same time to the piano player to continue playing, and assuring the audience that there was no danger in the theatre, although the motion-picture operator, stunned by the sudden turmoil outside, had broken off short.

But it was all futile, for the crowd, hearing the crash and the cries of the buried victims outside, was thrown into instant panic. Just as the two Tenzer children crept from the ticket box into the theatre the audience ran from the seats. One woman, with a baby in her arms, jumped from the balcony, shouting that another of her children was in the crowd in the lobby. She fell heavily upon the heads of those beneath, but apparently she and her child and those who had unwillingly pillowed her, escaped serious injury.

The piano player continued thumping away for all he was worth, and the crowd, seeing that Siegel and his brother-officer, Philip Ornstein, barred the rear doors leading from the theatre into the lobby, gradually grasped that the only thing to do was to heed the policemen's shouts and pile out by way of the rear exits near the stage. Thither they ran pell mell, tearing and clawing at one another, but finally squeezing out without loss of life into the neighboring yard at 136 Essex Street.

Meanwhile Policeman Owens and Sergt. Fry of the Eldridge Street Station, who had heard the crash from Rivington and Essex Streets, sent in a call to Police Headquarters for reserves from three stations and to Fire Headquarters for Truck 18 and to Bellevue and Gouverneur Hospitals for two ambulances. Then they ran to the scene of the accident.

Already the crowd from within the theatre, swelled by hundreds more from the street, were fighting at the brink of the newly-made pit to drag out those engulfed from the twisting and fighting mass below. It was all the reserves could do to keep back the crowd and prevent further trouble.

After half an hour's work, the cave-in was cleared, and the injured laid in a little clearing at the brink of the pit. Drs. Carr and McGrath of Gouverneur Hospital, and Van Fleck and Trask of Bellevue Hospital, attended the injured.

It was more than an hour before the crowd in the streets could be quieted and dispersed.

Capt. Day of the Eldridge Street Station arrested Joseph Friedland of 1,691 St. John's Place, Brooklyn, part owner and manager of the theatre, on a charge of criminal negligence. Then he called Inspector Patrick Dwyer of the Building Department to investigate the cave-in and, if possible, fix the blame. Dwyer said he could not then tell what was the cause of the accident.

BUDGET IN THE LORDS AGAIN.

Passes Commons and Has Its First Reading in Upper Chamber.

LONDON, April 27.—Chancellor Lloyd-George's Finance bill, the rejection of which by the House of Lords cost the nation, as Premier Asquith announced in his final speech to-night, $6,500,000 in actual money, passed the third reading in the House of Commons to-night by a majority of 93, amid enthusiastic cheers from the Ministerialists.

It was immediately carried to the House of Lords, which was in session to receive it, and in quite uneventful fashion the Lords passed the first reading of the bill.

BOMBS FOR CHINA'S RULER.

One, Exploded in the Palace Garden, Kills Two Attendants.

VICTORIA, B. C., April 27.—Details of an attempt to assassinate the Prince Regent of China on April 3 were received by steamer to-day. The Prince Regent, with some officers and attendants, was crossing a small bridge in the palace garden in Peking, when a bomb was exploded by means of wires. Two attendants, walking in advance, were killed.

Guards arrested fourteen Cantonese dressed in Western clothing. Several other bombs were found in different parts of the garden.

EARTH YAWNS NEAR RENO.

Water-Filled Crevasses Many Feet Wide and Deep Open Suddenly in Plain.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., April 27.—Crevasses from two to six feet in width, twenty feet in depth, and of great length have appeared during the past twenty-four hours on the plain of Jake's Valley, twenty-five miles west of Ely. These crevasses have filled rapidly with water, and many cattle have perished.

The ground opened up with little warning beyond rumbling noises and a trembling, according to Robert Burke of the Government Forestry Service, who sends the report of the phenomenon from Illipah.

Searching parties have organized at that place, and efforts are being made to learn whether any lives were lost, and to determine the number of head of stock which was swallowed up. Cattle in the valley are being driven to higher ground away from danger.

DR. COWLES FINED $100.

Complainant in Auld Case Was Charged with Being Unregistered Practitioner.

BOSTON, April 27.—Dr. Edward S. Cowles, who was the complainant at the court-martial which tried Paymaster George P. Auld and Dr. A. H. Robnett of the navy, was fined $100 in the Superior Court to-day for practicing medicine without being registered.

At the court-martial held at the Charlestown Navy Yard last Winter Dr. Cowles claimed that he was a physician, and this statement was used by the State Board of Registration in Medicine in prosecuting the case.

The court-martial was the result of an altercation between Dr. Cowles and the two naval officers at a dance.

SHELDON'S DAUGHTER AT RENO

Republican Treasurer Is with Her—Is Seeking Divorce from William Fuller.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., April 27.—Mrs. May Fuller, wife of William Fuller, a retired lawyer of New York and a prominent clubman of that city, arrived here on April 7, accompanied by her father, George R. Sheldon, Treasurer of the Republican National Committee. She is gaining a residence preparatory to filing a suit for divorce and has a large number of servants with her.

Mrs. Fuller managed to conceal her identity until to-day. It is stated she and her husband have not lived together since a trip they took to Paris in 1907.

When in Reno George Sheldon did not allow any one to know who he was and as a result neither his arrival nor his daughter's intended divorce have been made known.

Fever Attacks Sister of Dead Boy—Physician Called Because of Public Feeling.

Special to The New York Times.

STAMFORD, Conn., April 27.—Elsie Jordan, the nine-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Jordan, is sick of scarlet fever at the residence of Mr. Jordan's sister on Webb Hill. She is the sister of Edward Jordan, the ten-year-old boy who died of scarlet fever on April 18 after receiving only Christian Science treatment. The parents stand by their assertion that they were just as firm Christian Scientists as ever.

Thomas H. Stagg, a Christian Scientist practitioner, who gave the boy present and absent treatment, is also helping to treat the little girl. Mr. Stagg is giving absent treatment. There is a Christian Scientist nurse in charge, and she and Mrs. Jordan are giving the little girl present treatment. The child's condition to-night was said to be favorable.

The house in which the child lies is outside Stamford and under the jurisdiction of Town Health Officer Ralph W. Crane, M. D., who has enforced a strict quarantine.

Turns Over His Rights, Contracts with Singers, and Philadelphia House to E. T. Stotesbury.

Papers Signed at Otto Kahn's, Arthur Acting for His Father—Transfer Makes Opera Trust Real.

The Metropolitan Opera Company, through E. T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia, who thereby becomes one of the Directors of that company, has bought from Oscar Hammerstein all his plant, his rights to operas, his scenery, and costumes, his contracts with artists, and the Philadelphia Opera House. The announcement was made here last night by Arthur Hammerstein, who had a power of attorney from his father, now in Paris, to arrange the matter, and by Mr. Stotesbury, in Philadelphia.

Arthur Hammerstein acted for his father, and when the contracts were signed he cabled to him, and last night, after Oscar Hammerstein had talked with the Paris correspondents in a different strain, he received this reply:

"I'm glad and I'm sorry."

Negotiations in regard to the transfer are said to have been going on for six weeks. The papers were signed at the home of Otto H. Kahn, 8 East Sixty-eighth Street, on Tuesday evening. Besides Arthur Hammerstein, who represented his father, there were present Mr. Kahn, representing Mr. Stotesbury; E. Buttrick Root, Mr. Hammerstein's attorney; Paul D. Cravath, attorney for the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Samuel Untermyer.

The Hammerstein Version.

This statement was given out last night by Arthur Hammerstein at his office in the Victoria Theatre in regard to the matter:

"An agreement has been reached between Oscar Hammerstein and Edward T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia by the terms of which Mr. Stotesbury and his associates acquire the Philadelphia Opera House property and Mr. Hammerstein retires from the field of opera in the cities of New York and Philadelphia and elsewhere. The Manhattan Opera House will be devoted by Mr. Hammerstein to other purposes. As a result of four years' experience, Mr. Hammerstein finds that the production of opera on the scale on which it has been his ambition to produce it, has become increasingly difficult year by year. The exactions of the artists, musicians, and others, brought about by the rivalry between the two houses, has grown almost beyond control, and has been the occasion of such advancing prices that notwithstanding the generous patronage accorded by the public, each of the houses has been face to face with a deficiency.

"Mr. Hammerstein is satisfied that it is in the interest of the operagoing public that these exactions shall be kept within bounds unless we are to be deprived of opera, and that the only way to accomplish that is to have one Opera House instead of two. As the Metropolitan Company has what amounts to a subsidy through its stockholders, it can perhaps better fulfill the public need."

Mr. Stotesbury's Statement.

Mr. Stotesbury, in Philadelphia, issued this:

"As Oscar Hammerstein has decided to retire from the operatic field, I have purchased from him his Philadelphia Opera House in order to secure for Philadelphia a permanent Opera House. I propose to have a number of Philadelphia gentlemen join me in the purchase, also some of the leading directors of the Metropolitan Opera House.

"Experience has demonstrated that an operatic troupe which has to serve during the same period of time both in Philadelphia and New York, cannot do full justice to Philadelphia. We have proved that Philadelphia is entitled to possess and able to maintain an opera season of its own. The season, however, should not exceed ten or twelve weeks. The difficulty has been that most of the leading artists will not come for a ten or twelve weeks' season, but insist on an engagement of from twenty to twenty-four weeks.

"In order to meet this difficulty and to obtain a variety of other artistic and practical advantages, we propose to join with the Chicago Opera Company now being organized under the managership of Andreas Dippel and the musical direction of Cleofonte Campanini, and which has already engaged a number of leading stars. This assemblage of artists, to which it is intended to add several of the leading singers hitherto under contract with Mr. Hammerstein, will be an operatic organization second to none, not excluding the splendid troupe of the Metropolitan Opera House. It will belong to and be stationed in Philadelphia for the ten weeks beginning about Jan. 15, prior to which it will play a ten weeks' season in Chicago, so that by the time the company opens in Philadelphia it will have developed into a perfectly drilled ensemble organization.

"We shall maintain co-operative relations with the Metropolitan Opera Company an dexchange stars with it, also with the Boston Opera Company, so that Philadelphia will hear in its own Opera House all the great singers.

"The Board of Directors of the Philadelphia Opera House will be composed mainly of Philadelphians. I have accepted the invitation of the Metropolitan Opera Company to join its board, of which De Witt Cuyler of Philadelphia is already a member, and we shall ask Otto H. Kahn, Clarence H. Mackay, and William K. Vanderbilt to join the board of the Philadelphia organization. It is contemplated that the Metropolitan Opera Company will give performances in Philadelphia on Tuesdays of each week during the period from Nov. 15 to Jan. 15."

One Body in Control of Opera.

This transfer of property makes the Opera Trust which was spoken of recently by Henry Russell, manager of the Boston Opera House, a reality. A small body of men now control the operatic situation in America. They will be able to make their own terms with singers, and, doubtless, a healthier scale of prices for artists' services will prevail for a time.

This also gives to the Metropolitan Opera Company and the allied houses the right to use any of the operas of which Mr. Hammerstein has held the exclusive rights. These include "Thaïs," "Pelléas et Mélisande," "Elektra," "Siberia," "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame," "Louise," "Salome," "Griselidis," and "Herodiade."

All the costumes and scenery for these operas are included in the transfer. The contracts of the artists, it is understood, will also be taken over, at least with the principal artists. It is understood that Mme. Tetrazzini and Messrs. Renaud, Dalmorès, Sammarco, and others will sing under the new management.

Whether Miss Garden will return is not known. There seems to be no doubt that the press representative of the Manhattan Opera House, William Guard, will be engaged by the Metropolitan Company. It has made many previous attempts to obtain his services.

Transfer at a Fair Appraisal.

As to the terms on which the Hammerstein properties are acquired, it is understood that the transfer will be made on the basis of a fair appraisal of the value of the Philadelphia Opera House royalties, scenery, properties, and contracts with the artists. In the negotiations it is said that Clarence H. Mackay has stood out against paying Mr. Hammerstein anything more than his equipment was actually worth.

"Well, I'm glad it's all settled," said Arthur Hammerstein last night. "We have been working over it for the last six weeks. I cabled father yesterday—I sent him a $200 cablegram—and he answered that he was both glad and sorry.

"As a matter of fact we have made money by the deal. In fact my father never lost a cent in opera until the last season, when everything went wrong. The importunities of the singers became so great that it became a question how much longer it could go on. When the opera merger was talked of in the Winter I told how I thought the impresarios would benefit if some mutual arrangement could be agreed upon. The same thing holds true under the new conditions.

"Singers will no longer be able to dictate terms. Some day I shall take pleasure in standing outside the Metropolitan Opera House and watching them toe the mark, as they will have to now. The public has had too much opera in the last season and the result was inevitable. Something had to be done.

Manhattan May Be a Music Hall.

"My father retains the Manhattan Opera House and it is probable that he will turn it into a music hall. It will be an immensely valuable piece of theatrical property now that the Pennsylvania Station is nearly completed. He may have some other plan. He will undoubtedly wish to do something new. But at any rate opera is off his mind for some time to come."

John B. Brown, controller of the Metropolitan Opera Company, had nothing to say about the matter last night. Otto H. Kahn also refused to be interviewed in connection with the transfer.

BEFORE HAMMERSTEIN HEARD.

Denial from Him in Paris That He Is to Quit Opera.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 27.—When I asked Oscar Hammerstein to-day whether he was going to give opera in New York next season he smilingly answered:

"That's what I'm here for. I can't say any more. The story that I won't give opera in New York another season is started every year about this time when it is known that I am in Europe. So far as I know there is nothing in it. Of course, I am not exempt from mortality any more than any one else.

"Of my definite plans I am not ready yet to say anything. I shall not return to New York until August. I am expecting news now of what Philadelphia is going to do in the way of subscriptions for next season.

"I don't know what Mary Garden intends doing, and I won't talk about eventualities in that matter until I have some idea of what they are likely to be. Having been overpaid more than $5,000, Miss Garden, after being informed that this debit would offset the price of her last two performances, left New York without vouchsafing me a word. I have neither seen her nor heard from her since I have been in Europe."

Mr. Hammerstein will go to London soon for a few days.

WHAT HE HAS DONE IN OPERA.

Remarkable Achievements of the Impresario Since He Opened Manhattan.

When Oscar Hammerstein was building the Manhattan Opera House in West Thirty-fourth Street he announced that he would open it as a melodrama theatre, to be known as the Drury Lane. Before the house was erected he suddenly sprang on the astonished city the announcement that the next Autumn, 1906, he would open "The Manhattan Opera House" for a season of twenty weeks of opera in French and Italian with the best singers in Europe and with the same scale of prices prevailing at the Metropolitan Opera House.

He invited subscriptions. Heinrich Conried, then impresario of the Metropolitan Company, smiled, and said that the thing was impossible. But Mr. Hammerstein went to Europe and engaged his company, and on Dec. 3, 1906, he opened the Manhattan Opera House with a performance of "I Puritani."

The revival of Bellini's old-fashioned opera did not achieve any degree of success, but the performance served to introduce to New York operagoers Alessandro Bonci, who has remained in New York ever since. Cleofonte Campanini had conducted opera in New York before, both at the Academy of Music and at the Metropolitan Opera House, but in both his previous visits he was a very young man and an unformed conductor.

The soprano of the occasion was Mme. Pinkert, who was acceptable in the florid soprano rôles during one season at the house and then never returned. Mr. Ancona, an Italian baritone, who had been heard at the Metropolitan Opera House in previous years, was another member of the cast.

A Brilliant Performance.

The most brilliant achievement of the first season, however, at the Manhattan was the performance of "Carmen," which came later in the week. This work, as given at this theatre, achieved such vogue that there were no less than twenty performances of it during the one season.

One of Mr. Hammerstein's innovations was a chorus of young American girls, who were trained in stage business by Charles Wilson, the stage manager of the first season, who came from the Alhambra Theatre in London and who died last year. The singers were Mme. Bressler-Gianoli, whose Carmen won her great praise; Mr. Dalmorès, a French tenor, who made his first appearance here with Mr. Hammerstein, with whom he has remained ever since; Mme. Donalda as Micaela, Messrs. Gillibert and Daddi as the two bandits.

An "Aïda" performance followed, and likewise was given a great number of times during the season. In this the tenor, Bassi, appeared. Mme. Russ was the Aïda and Mme. de Cisneros, who as Eleanore Broadfoot had appeared at the Metropolitan Opera House, the Amneris. Mario Sammarco, the Italian baritone, who has sung at the Manhattan every season since then, made his début there as Tonio in "Pagliacci" during this first season. Sometime during the Winter Mme. Melba made a few appearances in "Rigoletto," "Traviata," "Lucia," and "Bohême." Mr. Hammerstein had been prohibited by the Riccordis, who control the Puccini scores, from giving Boheme, but he managed to do it anyway. Toward the end of the season Mme. Calvé was heard in "Carmen," "Cavalleria Rusticana," and "La Navarraise."

Renaud's First Season Here.

It was also during this first season that Maurice Renaud, the French baritone, who has since been one of the important factors of Mr. Hammerstein's company, made his appearance here. He was heard in "Don Giovanni," "Rigoletto," "La Traviata," and "Carmen." On the second night of the season at this house, when Mr. Renaud made his first American appearance in "Rigoletto," the theatre was nearly empty. The total receipts were only $1,823, and out of that the baritone received $800.

In the Spring Mr. Hammerstein made one of his characteristic statements, in which he expressed himself as more or less satisfied with the season. He even said he had made money. The receipts of the season officially announced were $750,000, to quote Mr. Hammerstein, "overbalancing to considerable extent the expenditures."

The Second Season.

The second season of opera at this house, which opened the next Fall, has generally been regarded as the most interesting, as it was the one in which modern French opera became popular in New York, and it also introduced Mme. Tetrazzini and Miss Mary Garden to the public here.

The season opened with a performance of "La Gioconda," in which Mme. Nordica made her first appearance at this theatre. She was heard a few times in this opera and in "Aïda," and then after a quarrel with the impresario she appeared no more in Thirty-fourth Street. Mr. Zenatello, an Italian tenor, was introduced to New York at this time, as was Mme. Gerville-Reache, the French contralto.

Miss Mary Garden made her début some weeks later in "Thaïs," which had its first New York performance on this occasion. She was assisted by Messrs. Dalmores and Renaud and Mr. Campanini conducted. The opera had seven performances during the first season, but it never drew the audiences that year that Miss Garden's other operas did. However, in subsequent years it became the most popular opera in that singer's répertoire.

The stage version of Berlioz's dramatic legend, "Le Damnation de Faust" was put on for Mr. Renaud, but did not succeed in drawing the public.

Then Mr. Hammerstein brought out Offenbach's "Les Contes d'Hoffmann," which that season and ever since has been one of his most potent attractions. With the production of "Louise," a work which created almost a revolution in musical thought and operatic structure when it was brought out in Paris ten years before, the Manhattan Opera House definitely became the progenitor of the French school.

Although the fame of "Louise" had been exploited on these shores for years no one had thought of producing it here. Mr. Hammerstein produced the opera with Miss Garden, who sang it at the Paris Opéra Comique, with Mme. Bresslar-Gianoli, Mr. Dalmores, and Mr. Gillibert. Mr. Campanini conducted. It was produced in January, and from this time on the season became prosperous.

Mme. Tetrazzini Engaged.

About this time the cable reports from London of the sudden and emphatic success of a certain Luisa Tetrazzini were attracting attention. Mr. Hammerstein rushed in and signed a contract with her. She had previously signed one with Heinrich Conried, but nothing came of that. Mme. Tetrazzini made her bow to New York at the Manhattan in "La Traviata," and she became as great a sensation here as she had been in London. She sang "Traviata" five times during that season, "Lucia" eight, "Rigoletto" five, and also a few performances of "Dinorah" and "Crispino e la Comaré."

Mr. Hammerstein had promised Miss Garden that he would produce Debussy's "Pelléas et Mélisande." It was an open secret that he had his doubts as to the likelihood of its interesting this public. He cast his fortunes on the hazard of its piquing curiosity and he won. The work struck the public with unexpected force. It was brought out late in the season, but it achieved seven performances. In the cast besides Miss Garden were Mme. Gerville-Reache and Messrs. Dufranne and Perier. The two men, who were members of the original cast of the lyric drama in Paris, were brought here especially for the occasion.

To the list of novelties of the season must be added Giordano's "Siberia," sung three times, and this composer's "Andrea Chenier," sung once at a special performance given to honor Mme. Campanini, Mme. Tetrazzini's sister who returned to the stage for the single performance, to go again into retirement.

The third season opened with Puccini's "Tosca," given for the first time at his theatre. The cast included Mme. Labia, from the Berlin Opéra Comique. She was one of the features of the season of 1908-9. The impresario by this time had decided that his New York opera house was running smoothly and allowed himself the luxury of building another one in Philadelphia. This he opened with "Carmen." During the last two seasons he has maintained two companies, besides keeping his stars traveling between the two houses.

Mary Garden in "Salome."

The third season again brought back Miss Garden and Mme. Tetrazzini. Mme. Melba returned for a brief season to sing Desdemona in Verdi's "Otello" for the first time here. Miss Garden sang two parts for the first time anywhere—the title rôles of Strauss's "Salome" and Massenet's "Jongleur de Notre Dame."

The banning of Strauss's "Salome" at the Metropolitan Opera House after one public performance two years before had advertised the work to a point where there was a large public demand to hear it beyond that of the ordinary operatic public. It was first given at advanced prices, and although it was late in the season, it achieved ten performances. "Le Jongleur de Notre Dame" also made a success. Another novelty, a Belgian opera, "La Princess d'Auberge," had no success.

It was in this season that there was the operatic squabble between Miss Garden, Mlle. Cavalieri, and Mr. Hammerstein. The impresario had engaged Mlle. Cavalieri, who the season before had sung at the Metropolitan Opera House, for some special performances. One day Miss Garden woke up to find that the Italian singer was announced in the papers to sing in "Thaïs" the following week, an opera which she considered belonged to her exclusively.

Miss Garden delivered her ultimatum at once. If Mlle. Cavalieri sang "Thaïs" she would not sing "Salome." Since then "Thaïs" has been Miss Garden's exclusive property in New York, although Mlle. Cavalieri and others have sung it elsewhere.

At the end of this season Mr. Hammerstein dispensed with Mr. Campanini's services.

Rumors of financial trouble were heard at this time as they had been the season previous, yet Mr. Hammerstein announced another season.

The season of 1909-10 was interesting chiefly for a comparison of the amount of effort expended and the result achieved. Mr. Hammerstein put more irons into the fire than ever before. He continued to run the Philadelphia Opera House and also the Manhattan. Besides he announced a "preliminary educational season" of opera at popular prices in New York and a season of light French opera, for which he required a special company for two nights a week during the Winter.

A $75,000 Loss.

On the closing night of his preliminary season Mr. Hammerstein made a speech in which he said he had lost $75,000. He had produced a large répertoire of operas, which he offered at regular theatre prices, with such singers as Marguerite Sylva, Marguerita Alvarez, and Louise Baron. Another result besides the net loss was that the impresario had to pay the salary of a large extra company, part of which he couldn't use all during the Winter. He attempted to get rid of part of this burden by giving performances in New York and Philadelphia simultaneously, and also sending a company on the road. This resulted in a division of forces, which made good opera performances impossible anywhere. The attendance was small.

The light opera company went to the wall at the end of three weeks. Nobody came to hear it. The impresario sent this company touring in Canada, but it, too, succeeded in eating away a large part of the gross receipts.

The principal novelty of the season and the most interesting one of the Winter to the majority of New York operagoers was the first American performance of Richard Strauss's "Elektra." In this Mme. Mazarin, who had been brought to this country by Mr. Hammerstein to sing this rôle, achieved remarkable success.

The other novelties were all works of Massenet, a composer to whom Mr. Hammerstein pinned his faith. They included "Herodiade," "Sapho," and "Griselidis." Only the first of these achieved any degree of success.

The season ended in a tumult of dissatisfaction. Miss Garden went away in a huff, saying that she would not return unless she were apologized to. Signor Zenatello, who had made his last appearances in a French version of "Tannhäuser," started a suit for payment of salary; Mme. Gerville-Reache was another to protest against the treatment she had received.

Some of His Troubles.

Charles Dalmorès, who had been compelled by a court to pay the Metropolitan Opera Company $20,000 for breaking a contract, slipped away on a boat, and there were rumors that he would not return. And Mr. Hammerstein himself, taking all this very calmly, sailed on another boat.

Mr. Hammerstein has established his right to a large number of pages in the history of opera in New York. He is practically responsible for the present interest in French opera here. He also installed a desire in the public to listen to new works, which had been lacking before. He improved the quality of the ensemble of performances. He introduced to this public several important artists and operas. Besides these services he instilled the spirit of competition in his rivals and many improvements at the Metropolitan Opera House owe their inspiration directly to Mr. Hammerstein.

The influence of this man, who started out as a cigarmaker, and afterward revolutionized the manufacture of cigars with mechanical inventions, on New York theatrical life has been great. He first built the Harlem Opera House. Then he added the Columbus Theatre, the Harlem Music Hall, the first Manhattan Opera House, where he made his initial attempt to give opera, and which afterward became Koster & Bial's Olympia, in which he lost a fortune, and which is now the New York Theatre; the Criterion, and the New York Roof; the Victoria, the Republic, (which has become Belasco's,) and the Hackett.

TAGGART DEFEATED IN THE FIRST TEST

Indiana Democratic Convention Will Consider a Nomination for the Senatorship.

GOV. MARSHALL IS CHEERED

Predicts That Senator Beveridge Will Be in the Democratic Party Two Years Hence.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 27.—Thomas Taggart's efforts to prevent any proposal to name a candidate for the United States Senate from coming before the Indiana Democratic State Convention was defeated to-night. The Committee on Rules voted to place Gov. Marshall's plan before the convention. It was decided, however, not to take action until to-morrow. The convention adjourned with both sides claiming victory.

Many efforts were made to-day to bring about harmony, but all failed. Gov. Marshall and John E. Lamb, Vice Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, declined to make any concessions. Opposing the Governor and Mr. Lamb are United States Senator B. F. Shively and Mr. Taggart. Feeling has become so bitter that many party leaders are alarmed over the possible effect of the fight upon the party's success at the polls next November, and are insisting that no action be taken by the convention.

Gov. Marshall was Temporary Chairman of the convention. He made the prophecy that Senator Beveridge would be lined up with the Democratic Party in Indiana two years hence.

"To him, I grant the same right which I reserve to myself—the right to change opinions," said the speaker. "To me, he was in all the years when he stood for an iniquitous system of government, a blind man. This year, he declares that the contest is between the rights of the people and the powers of pillage. How he expects to get half way between the armies which now face themselves, the army of the people and the army of pillage, and not expect to be shot either in the front or in the rear, is a marvel to me.

"He has been so long in the darkness that his eyes are not yet accustomed to the light. I prophesy that he will be lined up with the Democratic Party in Indiana two years hence. I make this prophecy because I believe that He who gives light to all of us will give more light to Senator Beveridge."

On the nomination of a Senatorial candidate by the Democrats he said:

"It has been said that I am the author of a proposition for this convention to indorse a candidate for United States Senator. I deny that statement. The proposition is not mine, but the Democratic Party's, and I simply voiced what I believed to be Democratic sentiment. It is not being advocated by me in the interest of any man, or in opposition to any man's ambition and desires. It is up to this convention to do one of two things, either to indorse a candidate for United States Senator or to strike from its platform its twenty-year-old declaration that it believes in the election of the United States Senators by the people.

"This is not a personal proposition with me. It never was so intended, and it shall not be so construed. I seek no nomination, cast no suspicion upon the good faith of the past, support no men. It is declared that adoption of the plan will wreck the Democratic Party, that we must not tell the people whom we favor for United States Senator. If the party be so fragile it will receive so many jolts between now and November that a junk wagon will be required to haul it to the shop."

Gov. Marshall was received with great applause, and his utterances were frequently interrupted by cheers. At the close of his speech the Committee on Credentials reported. There was but one contest, and that was from the First Ward of this city. The report seated the Taggart delegates and was adopted by a practically unanimous vote.

PLENTY OF SPRUCE FOR PULP.

Tract Obtained by New York Syndicate said to Contain 30,000,000,000 Feet.

Special to The New York Times.

BANGOR, Me., April 27.—The timber lands in Labrador and Newfoundland to be developed by a syndicate composed of Charles D. Stanford and R. H. Wing of Bangor and twenty-five New York capitalists, who have effected an agreement with the Anglo-American Development Company, Limited, of St. John's, Newfoundland, embraces, as already announced, 13,853 square miles, or 8,855,00 acres, about equal to the area of the State of Massachusetts, or to the entire area of the timber lands of Maine.

Upon it are dense spruce forests, estimated conservatively to contain 30,000,000,000 feet of lumber, or 50,000,000 cords of pulp wood, so that, allowing for natural growth, the supply is practically inexhaustible. The spruce is finer grained than that of Maine, and is better adapted for pulp making. There are numerous water powers and several harbors, while a railroad is projected from Quebec.

As the Newfoundland Government prohibits the exportation of pulp wood it is the purpose of the syndicate to establish a chain of pulp mills, and engineers will at once be sent into the territory to make surveys and locate suitable water powers.

The Anglo-American Development Company, Limited, was organized in St. John's, Newfoundland, last August by Messrs. Charles D. Stanford and R. H. Wing of Bangor and R. W. Strong and Charles W. Tessier of St. John's, with $500,000 capital stock, all paid in, divided into 5,000 shares of the par value of $100.

All the rights thus acquired by the Anglo-American Company have now been transferred to the New York-Bangor syndicate, which expects to begin the work of development at once.

Another corporation, the Labrador Pulp and Lumber Company, has recently acquired rights on territory just south of that secured by the Anglo-American Company, and is erecting a large pulp mill.

PAPER SHORTAGE PROBABLE.

Excess of Consumption Over Production Increases Imports from Canada.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—If the supply of paper produced in the United States continues to decrease during the remainder of the present year as it has in the last six months this country will be obliged in the near future to import from Canada and other countries a constantly increasing amount of wood pulp and paper and to pay the greater price imposed by the tariff. This is shown by statistics prepared by Herbert Knox Smith, Commissioner of Corporations, at the request of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association from monthly reports made to him during the last eighteen months by the American Paper and Pulp Association.

The opinion has been expressed in various quarters that, as a result of this showing, the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, which during the discussion of the tariff bill put up a vigorous fight for free paper, will renew its fight and demand a revision of the paper schedule.

Beginning with last September, the amount of paper on hand at the mills at the end of each month has grown less each month, decreasing by a few thousand tons every thirty days from 53,115 tons on hand at the end of August, 1909, to 19,907 tons at the end of March, 1910. From September, 1909, to and including March, 1910, the amount of paper shipped by the mills each month has exceeded the amount produced, the amount of excess varying from 1,000 to 8,000 tons a month.

The amount of print paper valued at not over 2 cents a pound imported during the years 1904 to 1909 increased from 3,781,160 pounds in the fiscal year 1904 to 34,088,642 pounds last year. Practically all this paper was imported from Canada.

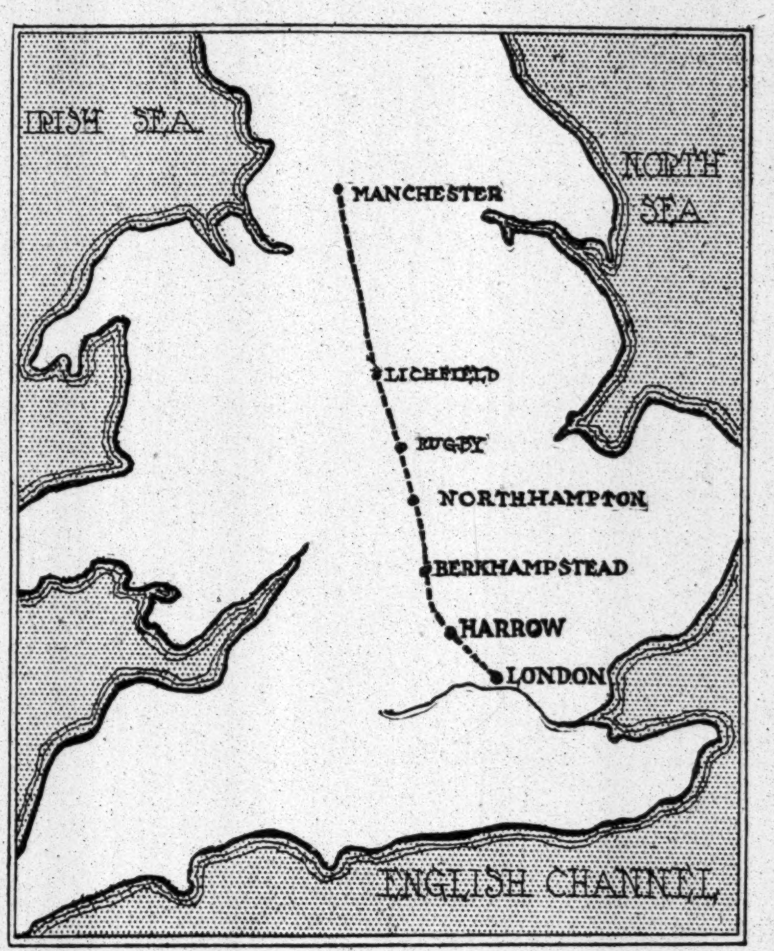
Route of Great Airship Race for $50,000 Prize.



Paulhan completed the flight to Manchester early this (Thursday) morning. He had made one stop at Lichfield. Early in the evening White stopped at Northampton. Both started again before daylight.

PAULHAN WINS $50,000 RACE

terday, dressed and ready for a flight, in a brown leather suit, leggings, and woolen cap. He never asked a question about Mr. White's intentions as the day wore on, but worked steadily at the reassemblage of his aeroplane, which had only arrived at the Hendon garage at 5 A. M. At 3 in the afternoon Paulhan sent a message to the officials that he expected to start in about an hour.

There was no preliminary fuss. When the aeroplane was ready Paulhan took his seat and, after a short run along the ground, the machine rose into the air like a bird and sailed easily aloft toward the houses and spires of London. Then, high up in the air, it made a deliberate sweep toward Hampstead, where a signal flag was waved to show that it was within the five-mile radius of the London office of The Daily Mail and could start on its journey to Manchester.

Train Followed Aeroplane.

A special train, carrying Mme. Paulhan, Henry Farman, and mechanics, went in chase of the flying man. For a time the train traveled level with the aeroplane, which kept at a height of about 600 feet. At Rugby the train met with a slight delay and the aviator was twelve miles ahead. The train reached Lichfield five minutes after the aeroplane. It was then quite dark.

Paulhan's descent was easy. Witnesses saw it in the darkening sky and then heard the throb of the engine. Suddenly the throb ceased as the engine stopped. The aeroplane was seen to sink, then rise rapidly to clear a telegraph wire, and then, with a sharp twist, descend lightly as a bird between the railway line and a hedge surrounding a narrow field.

Like Latham when Blériot started across the Channel, White was sleeping when Paulhan started. At 4 P. M. yesterday, after consultation with his friends, he definitely abandoned the idea of starting before 5 A. M. to-day. The wind was then blowing strongly in gusts.

Just after 6 o'clock an excited messenger burst into the room in the hotel alongside the garage, where Mr. White was sleeping.

"Paulhan has started and is well on the way!" he cried.

"By Jove!" replied White. "I'm going too. Quick! There's not a moment to lose."

He then rushed to the garage. The excitement among his helpers and friends furnished a striking contrast to the quietness of Paulhan's departure.

White Insists on Starting.

His friends advised White not to go. The wind was too high, they said.

"Don't worry me," he said. "I'm going, and that's all there is about it."

In twenty-two minutes after he had been wakened White was in his seat. There was no time for a preliminary circle, he declared.

"Start up the engine," he ordered.

"Won't you wait a moment to see if the engine is all right?" was asked.

"No, no; let her go!" he shouted.

The aeroplane sped across the ground and quickly rose into the air; a gust struck it and heeled it over. A cheer went up from the crowd as its pilot brought it on an even keel. The machine seemed to rise almost straight into the air.

With a sweep White circled round toward the gasworks which formed his landmark for starting. For a moment the aeroplane was lost to view behind the huge structure in which the machine had been housed; then a cry of wonder arose as it reappeared, flying a hundred feet above the garage and heading straight for the gasworks.

Then came the exciting moment when the aeroplane turned on its northward voyage to Manchester. From Wormwood Scrubbs to the gasworks White had traveled at well over 50 miles an hour. As he put his helm over, to come up almost into the teeth of the westerly wind, his speed was instantly knocked down by nearly half, for the breeze became an enemy instead of a friend. Over the gasworks he heeled and swerved as he brought the airship's head around toward Willesden. There was no gay wave of his cap to the observers as on his first attempt. His hands were needed at the steering levers, and there was grim work for both hands and head.

He recovered and preserved his balance with wonderful skill, however, and soon was vanishing as a silhouette against the red sky.

Mr. White came down gently in a field outside Roade Village. The operator in a railway signalbox alongside made him a cup of tea, and the local doctor invited him to his house to sleep till the morning.

"So far so good," said Mr. White later in the evening. "It was a rush to get off, but I felt I had to do it. At first the machine pitched a little, but I soon managed to find the right balance, and then I had no trouble. The motor worked perfectly. I shall start with the earliest light. My only reason for descending was that the light was getting too bad."

Along the line of the route as well as at the starting points of both contestants there was tremendous excitement. The whole populations of the towns and villages were out watching for the flying men. Great was the excitement when Paulhan passed, and when the second aeroplane was seen against the sunset sky men marveled.

Richard Croker, at his residence near Dublin, said yesterday: "I would not go up in a flying machine for all the money in the Bank of England, as it is simply courting death."

AEROPLANE RECORDS.

220 Miles Covered in Five Hours—Paulhan Rose 5,000 Feet.

Louis Paulhan, the French aviator, at the present time holds both the long-distance record and the altitude record for aeroplanes.

Only a week ago he went a distance of 130 miles, from Orleans to Arcis-sur-l'Aube, France, without alighting. He and Henry Farman were relieving each other in a cross-country test, using the same machine. Working partners in this way they took the same car over a 220-mile stretch. The distance was covered in five hours.

In the Orleans flight last week Paulhan, although he broke the long-distance record, reached an altitude of only about 2,000 feet. It was at the Los Angeles meet last January that he won, for heavier-than-air machines, the altitude record, rising 5,000 feet. No one else has ever gone so high either before or since in a heavier-than-air machine. Paulhan used the Farman biplane. He took only seven minutes and a half to descend almost a mile. At another time in the course of the Los Angeles meet he traveled 47 miles in an hour and two minutes.

Previous to Paulhan's 130-mile flight the long-distance record was held by Henry Farman. Last August, at the Rheims meet, Farman went over 111 miles in his biplane without alighting. The contestants at that meet for the distance prize and the distance covered were as follows:

Henry Farman, biplane........111.7
Hubert Latham, monoplane........[illegible]
Louis Paulhan, biplane........81.2
Count de Lambert, biplane........72.0
Roger Sommer, biplane........37.
M. De La Grange, monoplane........81.0
M. Bleriot, monoplane........24.8
Glenn H. Curtiss, biplane........18.6
M. Lefebvre, biplane........18.0

By Farman's record flight he captured the Grand Prix de la Compagne of $10,000. He remained in the air ten minutes longer and covered six miles more than the official figures showed. He was the dark horse of the contest. All eyes had been riveted on the graceful monoplane of Latham. Farman had prepared his machine secretly. While the crowd was watching the other machines Farman took aboard enough petrol for a five-hour flight, equipped his car with a self-cooling, revolving motor, and started inconspicuously. He had gone 80 kilometers before the crowd realized that he was out for a world's record.

Paulhan's 5,000-feet altitude record at Los Angeles last January was won under equally dramatic circumstances. He had just lost the speed record of the meet to Glenn H. Curtiss. Using an engine which had just arrived from Paris he had been on the course all the afternoon, circling it again and again. The sun was already low and the shadows were gathering. Not a breath of air stirred. Suddenly Paulhan, gray-capped and bending low in the car, began to rise. He made a short circle over the 50,000 spectators and then pointed his machine northward and diagonally upward. Soon his machine became a mere speck. At a height of 1,300 feet he described a great circle to feel the air currents. He was almost a mile and a half north of the camp by that time. He continued to ascend, and then dropped quickly. When the judges announced that his aneroid showed that he had reached a height of 5,000 feet the crowd went wild.

Previous to the London-Manchester contest the most spectacular aeroplane flight was that for another "Daily Mail" prize—$5,000 for the first aeroplane journey across the English Channel. It was won by Louis Blériot last July. He made the trip in twenty-three minutes. His dragonfly-like monoplane was one of the smallest and flimsiest looking ever used, and the aviator was also handicapped with a lame foot. His greatest danger was in landing. The hollow field in which he came down was full of contrary currents, which threatened to upset him. He finally decided to let his machine drop straight down, breaking the rudder.

The problem in the aeroplane, or heavier-than-air machine, is very different to that of the balloon. Count Zeppelin a year ago flew in a dirigible balloon for over twenty-four hours and covered a distance of over 400 miles, having nine men beside himself on board.

The $50,000 prize for which Paulhan and White contested has been open to aviators for three years. Lord Northcliffe, through the columns of The Daily Mail, offered it in the hope of attracting Farman and the Wright brothers.

According to the rules of the London-Manchester test the contestants were to traverse the distance, 185 miles, between the two cities within twenty-four hours. They were to make onl ytwo stops. The machines used were to be heavier than air.

DIRIGIBLES FOR RUSSIA.

Ministry of War Asks for Bids for a Fleet of Balloons.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 27.—The Ministry of War has requested competitive bids for a fleet of dirigible balloons of from 5,500 to 8,000 cubic meters capacity.

They are designed for strategic reconnaissances over distances up to 300 miles, and must be capable of maintaining themselves in the air not less than ten hours at an average speed of from twenty-five to twenty-eight miles an hour.

THE T. P. FIELDS SEPARATE.

First Intimation Comes in Legal Fight Over Their Child.

The first intimation of marital disagreements between Thomas Pearsall Field and his wife, who was Emma Beadleston, appeared yesterday when George R. Simpson of 61 Park Row, attorney for Mrs. Field, appeared in the Supreme Court to apply for a writ of habeas corpus for their nine-year-old daughter. The writ was granted.

The action revealed that Mrs. Field is occupying apartments at the New Weston Hotel, 31 West Forty-ninth Street. Mrs. Field declined to discuss her matrimonial difficulties, referring all inquirers to her attorney. Mr. Simpson declined to say whether she would bring an action for separation or divorce.

In her petition for the writ Mrs. Field recited that on March 10 her husband took the daughter on a trip to Bermuda, and that she has had no word from her since. Mr. Field and the daughter returned on April 4, and she alleges she has not been allowed to see or communicate with her child since that time.

FLASHES FROM COMET'S TAIL.

Speaker at Unitarian Club Tells of Observing the Phenomena.

"Liberal Tendencies in Religious Thought" was the subject discussed at last night's meeting of the Untarian Club of New York in the Hotel Manhattan. The Rev. Dr. Algernon S. Crapsey of Rochester and the Rev. Leon A. Harvey of Brooklyn were the speakers.

Dr. Harvey said, incidentally, that he had seen Halley's comet yesterday morning from his home in Flatbush. He said the head of the comet appeared as bright as Mars, and that he thought he had seen several flashes of light caused by the tail.

Among those who attended last night were the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Slicer, Mr. and Mrs. Cyril H. Burdett, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Comstock, Mr. and Mrs. James T. White, and Dr. and Mrs. Louis L. Seaman.

ROOSEVELT RADIANT OVER SHAM BATTLE

Mounted on Prancing Steed Amid Cannon's Roar, Applauds French Troops in Manoeuvres.

LAST BUSY DAY IN PARIS

Six Men Guard His Slumbers from Anarchists—Ethel Roosevelt and Kermit Fly in Aeroplane.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 27.—This may be said to have been the most Rooseveltian day that Theodore Roosevelt has spent in Paris. At Vincennes, where he saw a part of the garrison of the capital in mimic war operations, the booming of cannon, the rattling of mitrailleuses, and the prancing of gallant steeds—particularly the one he himself rode—appeared to fill his soul with delight.

"There was one thing I absolutely had to see here," said the Colonel, "before I went to Germany, and that was the French Army."

The rest of the day was a whirl through art galleries, with snatches of social entertainment at long intervals. At the Grand Palais Mr. Roosevelt complimented George Grey Barnard, the American sculptor, on his great groups, "The Life of Humanity," and admired John Paul Laurens's decorative triptich, "The Surrender of Yorktown," destined for Baltimore.

After racing through the palace of Versailles he took tea late in the afternoon with Auguste Rodin and then went to the Quai d'Orsay to dine with the Minister of Foreign Affairs. After that he sought his bed early at the Embassy, like a tired child happy from past excitement and with the sand in his eyes.

GUARDED AGAINST ANARCHISTS.

Six Inspectors Guard Roosevelt Slumbers—Some Art Criticism.

PARIS, April 27.—The visit of Theodore Roosevelt and his family was concluded to-night with a gala dinner at the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, at which all of them were present. Other guests were Ambassador and Mrs. Bacon, Consul General and Mrs. Mason, ex-President and Mme. Loubet, Premier Briand, ex-Premier Clemenceau, Leon Bourgeois, M. Ribot, M. and Mme. Delcasse, Baron D'Estournelles de Constant, Jules Cambon, the French Ambassador at Berlin; M. Jusserand, the French Ambassador to the United States, and Mme. Jusserand, and others among the most distinguished personages in French offical, political, and society circles.

The Ministry was brilliantly illuminated, the gardens being hung with fairy lamps, and the copse in the rear of the palace lighted with Bengal fires. During the dinner, at which toasts were omitted, the orchestra played American and French airs.

In the smoking room Mr. Roosevelt received many of the guests whom he had not met before, chatting pleasantly with several of them, and having long conversations with MM. Clemenceau, Ribot, and Bourgeois.

It is reported that the French authorities have been considerably alarmed for the American ex-President's safety. According to an evening newspaper the police were advised from Naples that American Anarchists were following Mr. Roosevelt, and a most rigorous surveillance has been instituted here. The ex-President has been accompanied everywhere by two Inspectors of the Anarchist brigade in plain clothes. The American Embassy has been guarded day and night by six Inspectors in reliefs of six hours, aided by police officers. Several suspects have been shadowed constantly. There is no official confirmation, however, of these reports.

A Dash Through Versailles.

After looking on at war operations by the Paris garrison on the field of Vincennes, Mr. Roosevelt had luncheon at the embassy, and in company with Ambassadors Bacon and Jusserand drove through the Bois de Boulogne and the Forest of St. Cloud to Versailles, where he rejoined Mrs. Roosevelt, Mme. Jusserand, Miss Ethel Roosevelt, and Kermit Roosevelt, who had lunched there. The party spent two hours visiting the celebrated château of Louis XIV., with its marvelous statuary and paintings, and another hour in strolling through the gardens and visiting the Grand Trianon and Petit Trianon, the former erected by Louis XIV. for Mme. de Maintenon and the latter by Louis XV., and a favorite resort of Marie Antoinette.

Returning, the party stopped for a few minutes at the studio of Auguste Rodin and soon after reached the embassy, where tea was served, M. Rodin being among the guests.

Miss Ethel Roosevelt and Kermit Roosevelt each enjoyed the novel experience of an aeroplane flight this afternoon. Accompanied by Baroness d'Estournelles de Constant, they visited Count de Lambert, who, after a preliminary flight invited them for a sail through the air. Both accepted joyfully, and each in turn climbed into the seat beside the Count, who took them for a spin around the field at a height of about 100 feet. Kermit Roosevelt remarked that it was the finest experience of his life.

The Pomp of War.

For the warlike spectacle the ex-President, accompanied by Gen. Dalstein, Military Governor of Paris; Ambassador Bacon, Ambassador Jusserand, and Major T. Bentley Mott, American Military Attaché in Paris, drove in an automobile to the famous Château of Vincennes, which was built in the twelfth century and is now used as barracks. Entering the keep he was received with military honors, and the party, with the exception of M. Jusserand, mounted horses, and, escorted by a platoon of lancers, rode out to the manoeuvring field, an open space one and a half miles long, lying between the château and the Forest of Vincennes. There a series of evolutions were executed rapidly, under service conditions, in order to give Mr. Roosevelt an opportunity to observe the technical methods of the French Army.

The manoeuvres simulated an attacking army consisting of a regiment of chasseurs-à-pied, a regiment of dragoons, two battalions of infantry, and a battery of artillery in pursuit of a retreating army, whose retirement was being protected by three field batteries, a battalion of zouaves, and a battalion of dragoons.

The attacking troops advanced in open formation under protection of the guns, making frequent rushes, the machine guns attached to each unit firing at the end of every rush. As the rear guard of the retreating army fled before the charge of the dragoons, the spectacle was magnificent, if not exactly war.

Col. Roosevelt warmly congratulated Gen. Dalstein upon the dash and go displayed by the troops and the admirable fashion in which the operations were executed. When the manoeuvres were concluded the troops defiled before Gen. Dalstein and Col. Roosevelt, while the massed bands played "The Star-Spangled Banner."

A Bit of Art Criticism.

It was on his return to the Embassy for luncheon that Mr. Roosevelt stopped for a few minutes at the Salon des Artistes Français, which will be formally opened on Saturday, especially to see George Grey Barnard's groups, "The Life of Humanity," created for the Pennsylvania State Capitol. The jury has given these groups the place of honor, and Mr. Roosevelt felicitated the American sculptor upon his achievement.

Accompanied by the President and other officers of the Salon, the former President then made a hurried inspection of the other works in the statuary section, seeing among other things the group by the American sculptor Andrew Connor and the figure of an African savage by Herbert Ward, who accompanied Stanley's rear guard in Africa.

Stopping before the figures of two big elephants, Mr. Roosevelt pointed out how often animal sculptors like Barye made the mistake of wrongly depicting leg movements. "An elephant," said Mr. Roosevelt, "is like a pacing horse. Its legs on each side move together. These elephants are true to life. Barye was always wrong."

The ex-President also found time in the course of the day—it was at the request of Pauline Chase—to autograph a series of his photographs, which will be sold at the Actors' Fair in New York. He said that he had already contributed a gun, which he had used in Africa for the fair. Mr. Roosevelt to-day likewise accepted the Honorary Presidency of the American section of the Franco-American Committee, a delegation from which called upon him yesterday.

500 ALBANIANS SLAUGHTERED.

Women and Children Said to Have Been Killed in Bombardment.

LONDON, April 27.—A dispatch from Salonica says that 500 Albanians, chiefly women and children, are reported to have been killed in the artillery bombardment of Gedauntz by the Turkish forces.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 27.—The Turkish troops twice stormed Kachanik Pass in Upper Albania in an attempt to dislodge the Albanian rebels, but on both occasions were driven back with considerable loss.

Fears are now entertained for the safety of the towns of Pristina and Prisrend, in northern Monastir, Albania.

Railroad communication between Pristina and Uskub is interrupted.

On April 19, in accordance with the new Constitution, he surrendered the provisional Presidency, relinquishing the office to Dr. Constantine Guerrero.

Congress also elected a Government Council. In honor of the election of President Gomez all political prisoners have been released.

MACVEAGH IS HOMESICK.

Treasury Secretary Confesses It to the Illinois Society.

Franklin MacVeagh, Secretary of the Treasury, told the members of the Illinois Society at their dinner last night that he was homesick. Mr. MacVeagh, who hails from Illinois, said he had been away from home a little more than a year.

"And to tell the truth, I a mhomesick for the West," he added. He had come on from Washington expressly to dine with his friends from Illinois. He told them not to forget the West, although the order of the old days, when the tide of hardy men and women swung westward, has been reversed of late.

"The West makes the political thought of to-day," said the Secretary of the Treasury. "It also creates the economic thought, and it is fast coming to have much to do with creating the literary thought. It is laying the foundation for leadership in many walks of life, and that is the country you and I come from.

"Chicago is to be the great metropolis of the Mississippi Valley, and as such the greatest city in the world. Let us all remember the West and keep in touch with it. It would be a misfortune to any of us to lose our connection with it, for, mark you, the West is not simply a place of material wonder. It isn't what the hand does. It's what the spirit does that makes the West what it is."

George W. Perkins, President of the society, was toastmaster. Other speakers were Congressman Henry S. Boutell and Melville E. Stone. A silent prayer was offered standing for Gen. Grant, whose memory the society observed last night. Among those who attended the dinner were Judge and Mrs. E. H. Gary, Mrs. John H. Flagler, W. C. Brown, President of the New York Central Railroad; T. P. Shonts, Samuel McRoberts, Norman B. Ream, Henry W. Taft, Horace White, Henry Siegel, and Fire Commissioner Rhinelander Waldo.

THINKS MISS REID WAS NOT MURDERED

American Consul at Naples Reports That Her Death Was Suicidal or Accidental.

FOUL PLAY, SISTER SAYS

Is Certain It Is a Case of Murder, and Declares the Dead Woman Had No Reason to Take Her Own Life.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The State Department received to-day a dispatch from Consul Crowninshield, at Naples, which said that after investigation of the circumstances surrounding the death of Miss Estelle Reid, the young art student whose body was found on the beach near that city, he was of opinion that it was a case of accidental or suicidal drowning. So far as the State Department is concerned this disposes of the supposition that the death might have been homicidal.

It was said at the department this afternoon that Mr. Crowninshield was a careful man, who would have indicated any doubt he felt if he had had any, especially in view of the fact that in two recent cases of death of Americans he had expressed his views quite frankly in reporting. The department had cabled to him for detailed information at the request of the family of Miss Reid in New York. It was from Mr. Crowninshield that the department first learned that Miss Reid's family had also been in cable communication with him, and had given directions for the disposition to be made of the remains. Mr. Crowninshield cabled that he was mailing a detailed report.

Mrs. Bertha Reid Wells, who appealed to the State Department to clear up the mystery of the strange death of her sister, is positive that Miss Reid was murdered.

"It was entirely unlike her to do anything morbid," said Mrs. Wells yesterday to a NEW YORK TIMES reporter. "She was fond of poetry, music, and art. She always had a taste for painting, and lately she had been taking it up more seriously, and also had been studying Italian. She was always cheerful. She was fond of taking long walks alone, as she is said to have done in Italy, but it was not because she was melancholy, but because she was fond of nature.

"She never had any love trouble. Was she handsome? When she was handsomely dressed she looked very well, but she cared little about clothes, and often would dress in a very simple way.

"She was very democratic," Mrs. Wells continued, "and, while she might be reserved with strangers of her own class, it would have been very like her to talk with the Italians she would meet around the country, and try to speak to them. They say Naples is such a wicked place that one would hardly dare go out there alone, but she would wander away off into the country—she delighted in that. It is possible that some one who saw her may have followed her, thinking she had money in the bag she always wore at her side."

The latest news that Mrs. Wells had from Miss Reid was a picture postal card received about two weeks ago. There was a short message on it, and Miss Reid thanked her sister for an Easter remembrance. All her recent letters were quite cheerful.

"My sister had no trouble about money," Mrs. Wells said in answer to a question, "and could stay over there or come home as she pleased. We had been writing to her lately asking why she did not come home to see us instead of spending so much time abroad. But she was making plans to go to Sicily and Corsica."

The Princess Rospigliosi, who is a cousin of Miss Reid, and who was herself a Miss Reid of New Orleans, has left her home in Rome for Naples in order to take charge of the body of Miss Reid, which will be shipped to New York.

DON'T AGREE WITH MR. GRANT.

Other Clergymen Cannot Justify His View of the Moral Code.

Much interest was displayed yesterday by clergymen and others in the testimony of the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension, at Fifth Avenue and Tenth Street, as a character witness for the plaintiff in the unsuccessful libel action brought against THE TIMES by James Le Baron Johnson, former chaplain in the Fire Department.

Mr. Grant when asked by Alfred A. Cook, counsel for THE TIMES, whether the fact that a clergyman, in the month of his voluntary deposition from his orders, sailed for Europe with a woman other than his wife and lived for ten months with her in England under an assumed name and afterward married her when his wife had divorced him would affect his opinion of that person's character, replied that in the particular case under discussion he was convinced that such action might be unwise but would not of necessity change his opinion of the person involved.

Bishop Greer said yesterday that he could not discuss a question affecting one of the presbyters of his diocese. Ministers of all denominations, however, expressed their belief that the attitude taken by Mr. Grant was contrary to that of the Church. Several expressed the opinion, however, that Mr. Grant had been carried away by excess of zeal in defense of a man whom he had called a friend. They were unanimous in declaring that no authority, religious or moral, could justify such action as outlined in the hypothetical question to Mr. Grant.

This attitude was voiced by the Rev. Dr. George C. Houghton, rector of the Church of the Transfiguration. Dr. Houghton said:

"I do not wish to express any opinion on the conduct of Mr. Johnson or the statements of Mr. Grant, of which I am not fully informed. But I can say this: No man, whether he be a clergyman, an ex-clergyman, a doctor, a lawyer, a merchant, or a journalist, is justified in leaving his own wife and living with another woman as man and wife under an assumed name. He cannot justify himself either by the law of God or the law of man.

"I would lay it down as a general principle that if a man desires to square his life with his God he must regulate his life according to the law of God and the law of the State in 1910, in 1909, or 1908, or whatever is the year in which he lives. He cannot plead that in former ages the law of God and the State permitted a man, if he so chose, to have more than one wife."

CHINESE PRINCE SCARED.

Harmless Explosions in Steel Mills Said to Have Alarmed Him.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, April 27.—The story is being told here to-night that Prince Tsai Tao, the Chinese Minister of War, and his part yof notables were badly frightened to-day during a visit to the armorplat works of the Carnegie Steel Company at Homestead. The cause was a series of explosions due to salt sprinkled on the steel plates that were being rolled, it is said.

The reason for the occurrence is not fully apparent, though it is known that since its construction the armor-plate plant has been considered private, entrance being obtained only unusual cases. It was understood until late to-day that the Chinese party was to go sightseeing about Pittsburg and not visit the steel plants outside. Prince Tsai Tao, however, insisted that the Homestead plant be visited, and that the armor plate works be looked into particularly. Neither the workmen nor those in charge had time to prepare concealment for anything they might have had under way when the Chinese Minister of War arrived.

The first explosion of salt on the rolls caused the party to draw nearer to each other, but the second almost lifted the roof. The third was louder than any ever heard in the Homestead mills, and the Chinese visitors immediately started in several different directions.

The Prince, so the story goes, almost backed into a stationary engine running at full speed. The engineer gave a blast of his whistle just as a bystander grabbed the Chinese Minister of War. By this time the entire Chinese party was pretty well demoralized, and they left the works in haste.

Oriental Rugs

A Special Sale To-day of Kurdish Mossoul Rugs

☞ Fourth Floor.

IT took a camel caravan three months to convey these Rugs from Kurdistan to the coast of the Black Sea. Such a distance from civilization would indicate that no European or modern influence has been at work on the minds of the weavers in the above section of Persia. Therefore one can be sure of unique designs and subdued colors, also of rugs practically indestructible because of the natural vegetable dye and wool used. The goverment duty of 40% ad valorem and a specific duty of 10c per square foot mean that the rugs ought to sell for $40.00 and $45.00. DEMOCRATS DERIDE SENATE INSURGENTS

Rayner and Bailey Tell Them to Stop Coquetting and Come Into Democratic Fold.

SCORNFUL REPLIES MADE

Rayner Says Roosevelt Scuttled the Ship in Former Alliance with Them —Bailey Predicts Party Ruin.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The deep-seated jealousy existing between the insurgent Republicans and the Democrats with whom they generally vote came out strongly in the debate to-day on the Administration railroad bill in the Senate. Senator Rayner, a Maryland Democrat, started the struggle by twitting the insurgents with being neither fish nor flesh and inviting them to come bodily into the Democratic Party instead of "flirting" with it. This invitation Senator Dolliver scornfully rejected, and his reply led Mr. Bailey into the fray. Both Democratic Senators took a humorous tone, but there was earnestness behind it.

Mr. Bailey has a long-established reputation for disliking the insurgents, and as far back as the tariff struggle he repeatedly and sharply criticized them. The Senator from Texas pointed out that the insurgents in the Senate were outnumbered 10 to 1 and referred to Republican reverses in the recent by-elections. The defeated candidate in Massachusetts had been an insurgent, he said, and had denounced Cannonism and Aldrichism. The result, declared Mr. Bailey, demonstrated clearly that as long as the insurgents held out against the majority of their own party that party was doomed to defeat.

Mr. Rayner attacked some of the provisions of the Administration bill, and then commented on the fact that while many of the insurgents voted with the Democrats on details of measures of a more or less party stamp, when the final vote on the measure as a whole came they were always found in the regular column.

"Now," he said, "the question is what do our friends mean? Are they in earnest or are they flirting and coquetting with us? Is it merely a temporary engagement or is it a permanent love feast? I do not know how the rest of my colleagues feel, but I am becoming weary of being fondled and caressed, only to be rejected and deserted when the supreme moment arrives.

Mr. Rayner then turned directly to the insurgents and continued:

"We offer you a party that is perfectly pure and that has passed beyond the stage of temptation. We want you and want you badly."

The Maryland Senator mentioned that President Roosevelt had fraternized with the men now outside the Republican breastworks and had aided them in working harmoniously with the Democrats. The rate bill was actually handled on the floor of the Senate by Mr. Tillman, a South Carolina Democrat.

"The last words the ex-President said to me," went on Mr. Rayner, "when we were discussing the situation, were 'Don't give up the ship.'

"I took his advice and did not give up the ship, but the ship gave me up. The night before the vote was taken the President was out in a lifeboat with the senior Senator from Rhode Island and the junior Senator from Massachusetts. When the vote was taken it was discovered that upon the evening before the President had ordered these two sturdy sailors to man the lifeboat, and before he stepped into it he had scuttled the ship and made for the shore in the company of these distinguished mariners.

"Now, we do not want any more combinations like this. We want the insurgents to come to us and we will pilot them to a safe deliverance."

Mr. Dolliver, replying sharply to Mr. Rayner's attack, said that the Republican Party was large enough to harbor a good-sized fight of its own. The insurgents, he said, had never given a moment's thought to entering the Democratic Party, which, in his opinion, was as pitted with dissatisfaction as the Republican organization.

Mr. Rayner retorted that the Democrats might be divided as to leadership but that the Republicans were divided on principles.

Mr. Dolliver replied that the Democrats had always evaded their responsibilities and quoted President Cleveland's statement that the Wilson-Gorman tariff act meant an act of perfidy and dishonor. The language of that bill, said Mr. Dolliver, was written by the interests.

"The most that can be said for the Democratic Party is that in some cases it supplied the punctuation," he said.

When Mr. Bailey took the floor the insurgents sat in gloomy silence. The Texas Senator spoke of the possible formation of a third party and hinted at the Socialistic Party as a possibility, though, he said, he did not himself believe that many of the insurgents would rest easy in that party. His thesis was that whoever at present were not Republicans were necessarily Democrats.

$40,000 TREASURY SAVING.

MacVeagh Now Ships Currency for Cancelation by Mail, Not Express.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 27. — Secretary MacVeagh has instituted one economy in the Treasury Department which effects a saving of $125 a day, or $40,000 a year, at the expense of the United States Express Company.

For years shipments from the Sub-Treasury in New York to the Treasury here of currency for cancelation and destruction have been made under a contract entered into between the Treasury Department and the express company in accordance with a provision carried in an appropriation bill. The original contract was never renewed, but each year Congress has made the customary appropriation to pay the express company for its services. Mr. MacVeagh, with the advice and consent of the Cabinet, decided that since no contract under an appropriation could live longer than the appropriation which was its authority, and the original contract thus terminated at the end of the fiscal year for which the original appropriation was made, had never been renewed, he had authority to terminate the arrangement with the express company at once.

The express company received 20 cents a thousand dollars for carrying the currency from New York to Washington, and insurance in transit. By cancelling the currency in the Sub-Treasury in New York the necessity for this insurance could be avoided. Then all that was necessary was to register the package at the Post Office, and send it under the Treasury frank with no expense beyond the registration fee. By this arrangement the expense of such shipments was cut to a fraction of 1 cent per thousand.

The Secretary still awaits a formal opinion as to his authority to do what he had done from the Attorney General. The new method of shipment will then be extended to the other eight Sub-Treasuries.

The new arrangement by a curious coincidence went into effect with New York on the day on which ex-Senator Thomas C. Platt, the President of the United States Express Company, died.

GIRL SETS HOUSE ON FIRE.

16-Year-Old Servant Says She Yielded to a Desire to Do So.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., April 27.—Anna Foy, aged 16 years, formerly of New York, who says her parents are dead, is locked up at Police Headquarters to-night charged with setting three fires at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Ritchie. The child has acknowledged her offense, saying it was due to her nervousness and a desire to set the house on fire. The child came here less than six weeks ago from a visit to an aunt in Pawtucket, and for five weeks has been in her present employment.

The girl will be held for arraignment to-morrow.

URGE CONSUMPTIVES TO QUIT EAST SIDE

Jacob H. Schiff and Other Speakers Ask Them to Go to the Outskirts of the City.

THERE THEY ARE EVER SAFE

Cures Useless, Physicians Declare, When Their Patients Return to the Crowded East Side.

Supreme Court Justice Greenbaum, Jacob H. Schiff, the banker; Cyrus L. Sulzberger, President of the United Hebrew Charities; Dr. L. Rosenberg, Superintendent of the Bedford Sanitarium, and Dr. Maurice Fishberg united last night at the Educational Alliance in East Broadway in urging the people of the lower east side to move out of that section if they wished to escape the menace of tuberculosis. The speakers said the people, huddled together down there as they were, would be liable to contract the disease. If cured they would not long stay cured under such conditions.

Justice Greenbaum, who presided, said he could not understand why the people stayed so crowded together on the east side when there was plenty of room in other boroughs, where fresh air and sunshine were abundant and the rents cheaper.

Mr. Schiff was enthusiastically applauded when presented as the President of the Montefiore Home, and he at once began to speak of the work the home was doing. He said that two-thirds of the patients admitted to the home were usually discharged in due season either cured or with the disease so arrested that they were able to become breadwinners again. But he said neither those cured nor aided should come back to the east side, for it would take but a little while under the old conditions to put them back where they were when entering the sanitarium. When once discharged from the home, he said, they should go to Queens, the outskirts of Brooklyn, or the Bronx, and begin life under healthier conditions.

Mr. Schiff predicted that the time was not far distant when tuberculosis would be as readily prevented as diphtheria, small pox, or other such diseases have become, or as responsive to scientific treatment once it had been contracted.

Mr. Sulzberger said he could not help wondering as he was on his way through the east side to the meeting when he saw the streets surging with children why it was that the people still clung to this section of the city and its sweat shops when a healthier and cheaper living was within their reach in other parts of the city, notably Queens and the upper Bronx.

Dr. Rosenberg, whose success in the treatment of tuberculosis at the Bedford Sanitarium in Westchester County has attracted attention, declared that all the sanitarium was doing to cure the disease would be useless if the former patients went back to the east side. He declared that much money was thrown away when expended in efforts to cure patients who as soon as discharged returned to the east side and the old life in the sweat shops. He told his hearers to give up the boarders who make the homes crowded and to forget the dollar in trying to save health. He showed several pictures of the buildings at the Bedford Sanitarium. It was proof, he declared, that the Jews could get excellent livings out of the soil as well as in trade.

Right here he announced that the Agricultural Society and other organizations and persons stood ready to help all families in which there were one or more cured or nearly cured patients to move to the outksrits of the city, where such patients could cultivate the soil while the other members of the family came to their former places of business by trolley or train.

DUCHESS'S WILL FILED HERE.

Executors Ask Citations to All with Claims on Manchester Estate.

Henry B. Cadwalader and Henry B. Hollins, executors of the will of Consuelo, Dowager Duchess of Manchester, who died in London Nov. 20 last, filed a petition with the Surrogate yesterday asking that citations be issued to all parties interested in her estate. Attached to the petition was a summary of the will.

Emilio Yznaga, who resides in Paris, receives an annuity of $5,000; Mabel, Countess Zichy, one of $4,000; Marie Blaufuss of London, $750; Louis Le Maitre, London, $300; Amelia Rawlings, London, $100; Margaret Dingwall, London, $150; Anne Dupuy, 34 East Thirty-second Street, New York, an annuity of $120.

Messrs. Cadwalader, Hollins, and Frederick Ogden Beach of Aiken, S. C., who also is named as an executor, are left $2,500 each, and appointed trustees of the American property.

The residue of the estate, including a trust fund of £50,000, ($250,000,) is for the benefit of William Angus Groge, the present Duke of Manchester, his wife, and children. The value of the property is said to be unknown. The residence of the Duke of Manchester is given as Kylemore Castle, Ireland.

To the petition and affidavit also is attached a waiver of citation by the Duke of Manchester, only son of the Duchess.

CALL FOSTER MOTHER CRUEL.

With Adopted Baby She is Arrested Here at Request of Montreal Police.

A woman and a two-year-old child she had adopted were taken from the Clyde liner Comanche yesterday just before the vessel sailed for Florida by agents of the Children's Society. The woman was locked up in the Jefferson Market Court prison and the child was taken to the rooms of the society.

The arrest was made on the request of Supt. D. H. Skroder of the Montreal Children's Society, who sent word to the society here to watch incoming trains for Mrs. Alfred Grouge and the child, named Yvonne Duval. Agents of the local society traced the woman from a train arriving from Canada to the steamship pier. Mrs. Grouge said she was on her way to St. Augustine to join her husband.

The woman showed she had adopted the little girl legally, but Supt. Skroder wired that an investigation of Mrs. Grouge's home in Montreal showed that it was not a fit abode for a child. The girl had been well cared for, however, as Magistrate O'Connor remarked yesterday when he examined the child. He said he was sorry to hold Mrs. Grouge, but he was compelled to do so.

PEACE TREATY IN CHINATOWN.

Chinese Merchants Join In Calling on Judge Foster to End the War.

Some twenty Chinese merchants held a meeting yesterday in the Joss House at 16 Mott Street to decide on plans for ending the feud between the members of the rival organizations, the On Leong Tong and the Four Brothers' Society of Chinatown. Afterward several of those at the meeting called on Judge Warren W. Foster of General Sessions to talk over the drafting of a peace treaty, which the warring factions will be asked to sign.

So much distrust is expressed between the leaders of the two societies as to the lack of good intentions and desire for peace that the better element in Chinatown finds it hard to bring the two factions to the point of a mutual agreement. The meeting was secret, and no members of the rival societies were admitted. It was decided to invite the leaders to go before Judge Foster and have the grievances of both sides adjusted, the treaty signed, and then circulated generally among those whose signatures are desired to ratify it.

Judge Foster's secretary has also had several conferences with the Chinese Consul and members of the Four Brothers, who assured him they would sign the agreement.

WOLTER SENTENCED TO DIE EARLY IN JUNE

Slayer of Ruth Wheeler Unmoved as He Hears the Decree of the Court.

TAKEN TO THE DEATH HOUSE

Prisoner Enjoys His Notoriety, Giving Morbidly Curious Crowds Every Chance to See Him.

Albert W. Wolter, convicted of killing Ruth Wheeler, the youngest murderer a court in this city has ever sent to the electric chair, was sentenced yesterday morning to die during the week of June 6, and before the afternoon was half begun the gates of Sing Sing Prison had closed upon him.

At every point of his journey from his cell in the Tombs crowds of people fought for a chance to watch and marvel at the equanimity with which the eighteen-year-old prisoner has carried himself since the day his trial began.

The watchers came early, and when the General Sessions Court room could hold no more they waited at the Franklin Street entrance of the building to see Wolter pass along the Bridge of Sighs. "Rita," the English novelist, was one of those who had come to see, but neither the boy's father and mother nor the family of Ruth Wheeler heard the sentence.

Lawyer Scott brought forth no reason why sentence should not be imposed, but he spoke of the rapid trial and of the dangers that lie in circumstantial evidence. Then Judge Foster said:

"Albert W. Wolter, you have had a fair trial, in which you have been ably defended by counsel, who has had accorded him for your benefit every right, every courtesy, and every adjournment requested. The crime of which you have been convicted has attracted the attention of the whole world, and by its very enormity has caused many to doubt your sanity.

"I have carefully observed you and your conduct in court during the entire week of your trial, and I have detected nothing whatever to indicate that you are not sane under the law. In addition I instructed Dr. McGuire, the Tombs physician, to make a special examination and study you, and also requested that a distinguished alienist be present through the trial to observe you.

"Their reports confirm my impression that you are morally and legally responsible for the crime whereof you stand convicted. It now only remains for the court to impose its formal judgment of death, of which judgment it is not given to me to abate one jot or tittle."

Wolter did not seem to care. At times during the day he almost seemed pleased that he had committed a crime which had "attracted the attention of the whole world." As Deputy Sheriff Spellman moved forward with the handcuffs Wolter halted him long enough to slip out a bulky envelope, which found its resting place in Mr. Scott's pocket.

Over in the Tombs his neighbors in the tier peered curiously from their cells. Wolter was manacled to one James Driscoll, a seedy convict, headed for Sing Sing because he stole some whisky. At Police Headquarters another curious crowd gathered around the patrol wagon while the Bertillon measurements were being taken.

The Sheriff and the prisoners, bound hand to hand, went up the river by the 11:50 train from the Grand Central Station. Settled in the smoking car, Wolter puffed calmly at a big black cigar, nor would he have the shade at the window cheat the people on the platform of the exhibition they had come to see.

His last reception was at Ossining, where half the town had gathered at the station.

TENDER-HEARTED CHAUFFEUR

Taken for a Kidnapper on Going Back to Console Boy He Had Hit.

As Gustave and Fred Hochfeld, twin sons of William Hochfeld, who keeps a candy store at 1,912 Park Avenue, were trudging back to Public School 30, at 125th Street and Second Avenue yesterday afternoon, a large auto going west in 129th Street bore down on them at Park Avenue, and before they could get out of its path Gustave was struck by the mudguard and thrown heavily into the gutter. Fred cleared the automobile and turned just in time to see the chauffeur stop short, dismount, and pick up Gustave, whose face was covered with blood, from the gutter. Then he put the boy in the tonneau of the car and sped away.

The other twin, shouting for help, watched the car go west to Lenox Avenue and then turn north and disappear. Attracted by the boy's cries George Demora, a grocer of 1,902 Park Avenue, ran out in time to catch a glimpse of the car and to note its license number. Then he took the boy home and told the mother what had happened. Together they went to the East 126th Street Police Station and had a general alarm sent out for the automobile.

Mrs. Hochfeld feared that the boy had been kidnapped or mortally injured.

To her surprise the boy came home as usual at the regular hour of dismissal from school, 3:30 o'clock. His face was badly bruised, but bore traces of having been stanched and washed, and the mother had only to bathe the bruises a little to make him look almost comfortable.

Gustave said that the chauffeur whose car had struck him had carried him north on Lenox Avenue for ten blocks or more before he finally prevailed on him by pleading that he did not want to miss his afternoon recitations at school to let him out of the car. The man had wiped the blood from his face with a handkerchief, he said, and looked very pale and frightened, but he did not know whether he was trying to kidnap him or not. Once released he ran back to school, getting there only ten minutes late. For fear the teacher might notice his tardiness, he said, he kept very quiet, and told nothing of the accident.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the twins were again playing in the street in front of their home when suddenly the same auto chugged toward them. The same chauffeur jumped out and ran toward Gustave, who fled screaming to the house just as his mother came out. At the sight of her the chauffeur ran back to his car, jumped in, and sped away south in Park Avenue.

Fifteen minutes later the man drove up to the Harlem Detective Bureau and surrendered. He said he was Frederick Catholi, a chauffeur employed by Fred Stevis of 330 West Eighty-ninth Street. He told the police that he had been alarmed as to the boy's condition and returned to whisk him away to some physician or hospital for treatment. The mother's outcry, he said, made him fear he would be taken for a kidnapper, so he preferred to surrender. He was locked up on a charge of felonious assault at the East 123th Street Station.

HITS A BOY AND SPEEDS ON.

Nine-Year-Old Likely to Die in Brooklyn —Auto's Number Not Known.

As nine-year-old Richard Roberts of 808 Marcy Avenue, Brooklyn, stepped fro mbehind a westbound Gates Avenue car while crossing at Gates and Marcy Avenues last night, he was struck by an eastbound touring car bowling along the other track. The boy was hurled forward ten feet. The car, containing a chauffeur and one passenger, sped on without a moment's stop or slowing down.

Passers by picked up the injured boy and carried him to a near-by drug store, where Dr. Leonhardt of the Swedish Hospital attended him. At the hospital it was said he had suffered a fracture of the skull and probably internal injuries, and that he could scarcely recover.

In the excitement following the accident no one noticed the number of the automobile that had struck the boy. A general alarm was sent out for it b ythe police of the Gates Avenue Station.

The Pianola Is Not Only a Piano Player—It Is More

People who hear the Pianola do not think of it as a mere "piano player."

Its shadings and modulations, its delicate phrasing and the actual feeling with which it endows its music are so perfect—the illusion of human playing is so vivid and complete—that the listener forgets that this music is not being played by a master pianist.

It is in this near approach to virtuoso playing that the Pianola becomes more than a mere piano player.

By means of exclusive features, the Pianola entirely eliminates all mechanical suggestion. Thus it reaches a level of perfection so high that the term, "piano player," no longer seems an adequate name for it.

The Marvelous Metrostyle

Of the many remarkable inventions which give the Pianola its enviable place, the Metrostyle is the crowning triumph.

No other device at all like it exists. No other produces an approachable result. It is the Metrostyle, more than anything else, which makes the Pianola seem human.

By the merest of movements, the Metrostyle translates into the music each lightest fancy, each passing feeling, each touch of emotion on the part of the player.

Or, if preferred, this same marvelous device gives an artist's interpretation—often that of the composer himself.

Prove for yourself what the Metrostyle means. Make actual comparisons. Try to secure with other devices anything like the same pleasing results.

This is the only way you can ever realize the giant's stride which the Metrostyle marks in music.

The Work of the Themodist

Another vast gulf between the Pianola and the next best piano player is created by the Themodist.

If the Metrostyle is the Heart and the Soul of the Pianola, the Themodist is the Brain.

For, as anyone versed in music well knows, it is the subduing of the accompaniment to the melody—the bringing out of the theme—the effective accenting of individual notes—which constitute the intelligent rendition of any selection. It is this which distinguishes the playing of an artist from that of a novice. On the Pianola these effects are superbly secured by anyone through the work of the Themodist.

It is this which gives the Pianola governable touch—that distinctive and noticeable feature so lacking in all other players.

It is the musical result obtained alone by the Metrostyle and the Themodist that has earned for the Pianola and the Pianola Piano the hearty endorsement of the world's masters of music.

Welcome to Aeolian Hall

We are anxious to make all of these points clear to you—clearer than is possible in cold type. We want you to hear the Pianola and the Pianola Piano. We want you to test and compare for yourself all that we claim for the Metrostyle and the Themodist.

So we ask you to come to Aeolian Hall.

Here also you will find a range of pianos as wide as the limits of quality permit.

USING BANK'S BOOKS TO CONDEMN HEINZE

Stanchfield Fails to Keep Out Mute Evidence of Unsecured Loans to Otto Heinze & Co.

$600,000 ON A CLERK'S NOTE

F. A. Heinze's O. K. on Involved Transactions with Copper Firm—Lent Himself $500,000 at a Crucial Moment.

The close of the third day in the trial of Fritz Augustus Heinze in the United States Circuit Court on thirty-eight counts of an indictment charging overcertification and the misapplication of the funds of the Mercantile National Bank during his Presidency of that institution in 1907 saw the Government well under way in its presentation of the evidence by which it purposes proving that the former Montana copper king misused the funds of his bank in aid of the United Copper speculation that he and his brothers carried on during the Spring, Summer, and early Fall of 1907. Judge Hough, United States Attorney Wise, and John B. Stanchfield for the defense kept up the record they established on the first two days for speedy procedure.

The Government's case when the adjournment was taken last night consisted of a chain of evidence showing that the Mercantile National Bank had made a long series of big loans to the brokerage firm of Otto Heinze & Co., or individuals connected with it, between March 14 and Aug. 5 of 1907, for the most part either on shares of the United Copper stock or unsecured notes. One of these loans—for a matter of $60,000, which remained still unpaid when the crash of the United Copper speculation came in October of 1907—is named in the indictment on which Heinze is now being tried. The balance are not named in the present indictment, but were admitted by Judge Hough as showing the condition of the Mercantile Bank both as to its own funds and as to its relations with the parties involved in the United Copper pool during the period which the indictment covers.

Loan of $600,000 Unsecured.

There were several interesting features about these loans aside from the character of the collateral which was accepted as security for them. The biggest one of all, for $600,000, was made on Aug. 5 to Frederick Eckstein, a clerk in the offices of the United Copper Company, on his individual note, without security or indorsement. It was speedily transferred to Max F. Schulze, a partner in the firm of Otto Heinze & Co., and a deposit slip, coupled with a draft upon the Max Schulze account, showed that the money next found its way to the Montana Ore Purchasing Company. The bank got the money back the next day, and the purpose of the loan was not explained in yesterday's evidence, but in view of a statement by Mr. Wise in his opening address to the jury the impression prevailed that the credit was used as a basis for the payment of unearned dividends on the stock of the United Copper Company.

There was also a loan of $150,000 made on March 14 to the firm of Otto Heinze & Co., which got into the record yesterday, and this loan had not been paid when on Oct. 14 the end came to the United Copper speculation. Another loan of $150,000 made on May 24 and discharged through what Mr. Wise characterized as mere bookkeeping entries in the bank was developed, which had a still more interesting feature. This loan started out secured by miscellaneous collateral, which included among other things 500 shares of Union Pacific and 500 shares of Southern Pacific.

Then began a process of transferring collateral until at the end the loan had under it nothing but the depreciated securities of the United Copper Company and the American Ice Company, and Mr. Wise got it into the evidence that the letter of Otto Heinze & Co. requesting the final shifting of the collateral to be made which removed all the securities reasonably sure of a ready market bore the personal O. K. of F. A. Heinze. Various smaller loans were testified to by Emil Klein, the cashier of the Mercantile National, whom the Government used as its witness, and the story that the bankbooks told under his examination included the fact that on many of the days when these loans were made the bank's cash reserve was below the legal ratio of 25 per cent. of the deposits.

Defense Loses a Point.

Judge Hough rejected the contention of the defense that the books of the Mercantile National Bank could not be used against F. A. Heinze unless it were shown that he had personal knowledge of the entries which the Government undertook to get into the record. In the argument as to admitting this evidence John B. Stanchfield, the leading counsel for the defense, made it plain that his client would put the doings i nthe Mercantile National Bank squarely up to Miles M. O'Brien, now President of the Mercantile, who was President before Heinze got into the bank, and became Vice President during the Heinze domination.

Mr. Stanchfield declared that Heinze was at no time the active manager of the Mercantile National, that he drew no salary from the bank, and during a considerable part of the time which the indictment covers was actually out West.

Mr. Wise took up the counts of the indictment which set up the misapplication of the bank's funds in the amount of nearly $1,000,000, and put Cashier Klein on the stand to explain the figures. Straightway came the fight over the use of the books, for just as soon as Mr. Klein had told how all loans other than those made on demand on regular Stock Exchange collateral had to have the "O. K." of the President or one of the Vice Presidents of the bank, the United States Attorney referred him to the bank's loan book. The minute the loan book was produced for the witness Mr. Stanchfield was up with his objection that neither it nor any of the other books of the bank could be used unless it was shown that Heinze had personal knowledge of the entries.

"Well," said Judge Hough, "we might just as well thrash that matter out now as any time. What authority have you for that doctrine, Mr. Stanchfield?"

Mr. Stanchfield cited particularly the decision of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of this district in the case of George Burnham, formerly counsel for the Mutual Reserve Life Insurance Company, whose conviction was upset upon the ground among others that the transaction in question was proved against him by entries in the books of the company of which he had no personal knowledge.

Can't Shut the Books Out.

"It would be interesting to compare the decision in the Burnham case with cases decided under the National Banking act," remarked Judge Hough when Mr. Stanchfield was through. "There may be some kinds of entries which ought not to be used against an officer of a bank without laying a foundation, but I have supposed that this evidence was offered in order to describe the condition of the bank at a given time, and there is ample authority for holding that the books may be used for that purpose against an officer of a bank in a criminal prosecution."

Judge Hough then allowed Mr. Wise to proceed with his proof.

The first loan to be taken up was one of $150,000 to Otto Heinze & Co. on March 14, 1907, which was secured only by two notes of that firm, one for $100,000 and one for $50,000. Mr. Klein read the entry in the loan book showing these facts, and the payment of interest down to Sept. 30, 1907, but failing to record that the loan was ever paid.

Mr. Wise traced the loan through the general ledger of the bank and through the individual ledger showing the account of Otto Heinze & Co. Then he put in from the daily statement book of the bank the condition of its cash reserve on March 14, 1907, showing that the reserve was $267,657 below the legal requirement at the opening of business on the day when the $150,000 Otto Heinze & Co. loan was made. At the close of business that day the bank's reserve was so depleted that it stood $727,974 below the legal requirement. Meantime the statement of the account of Otto Heinze & Co. showed that the proceeds of the loan had been drawn down at once, for the account stood at $34,665 at the opening of business, and at only $36,997 at the close of business.

After all the objections of Mr. Stanchfield to the different steps involved in the proof of these loans by the books of the bank had been noted the testimony proceeded more rapidly. The next loan was that of May 24, 1907, for $150,000, like the March 14 loan, and this was the transaction which produced the interesting process of substituting collateral until all the good stuff had been withdrawn and nothing but United Copper and American Ice remained.

Protected by Collateral at First.

The loan was to Otto Heinze & Co., and it had behind it in the beginning 100 shares of United Copper preferred, 300 shares of United Copper common, 800 shares of American Ice Securities, 500 shares of Southern Pacific common, and 500 shares of Union Pacific common.

This collateral at the time the loan was made represented market values which had some reasonable relation to the face of the loan? But the loan card which Mr. Klein picked up next after he had read the bare facts from the loan book of the bank, showed that obviously substitutions of collateral had been made. Mr. Wise paused long enough to put into the record the fact that on this day the bank's cash reserve was actually some $250,000 more than the legal requirement and then took a file of three letters all addressed to the bank by the firm of Otto Heinze & Co. and signed in a hand which the witness recognized as that of Max Schulze. The first, written May 27, asked the bank to relieve the 500 shares of Union Pacific from the service they were doing, and substitute 100 shares of Amalgamated Copper, 200 shares more Southern Pacific, and 400 shares of Louisville & Nashville. This left the loan secured as follows:

100 shares United Copper common.
300 shares United Copper preferred.
800 shares American Ice Securities.
700 shares Southern Pacific.
100 shares Amalgamated.
400 shares Louisville & Nashville.

Then came a letter of June 6, which asked the bank to release 600 shares of Southern Pacific and 300 shares of Louisville & Nashville, and accept by way of substitution 1,100 shares of American Ice Securities.

Shuffling Out Good Securities.

The bank accommodatingly complied, and left the loan secured by this collection of stock:

100 shares United Copper common.
300 shares United Copper preferred.
1,900 shares American Ice Securities.
100 shares Southern Pacific.
100 shares Amalgamated.
100 shares Louisville & Nashville.

The next letter was dated Aug. 1, and it bore the O. K. of "F. A. H.," which the witness identified as being in the handwriting of the defendant. He asked the bank to release the 100 shares of Louisville & Nashville, the 100 shares of Southern Pacific, an dthe 100 shares of Amalgamated an daccept in their place 1,000 shares more United Copper common. Once more the bank complied, and so the loan on Aug. 1 was left standing with the following collateral between the bank and the loss of $150,000:

1,100 shares of United Copper common.
300 shares of United Copper preferred.
1,900 shares American Ice Securities.

Mr. Stanchfield interrupted at this point to ask that he be allowed to show by the witness how the loan stood on Oct. 14, 1907, and Judge Hough allowed him to do that, but the Heinze lawyer was doomed to disappointment, for the Mercantile bank cashier said that the loan card didn't shoy any payment at all. Mr. Wise remarked that the so-called payment of this loan only involved book entries. There was a loan to Otto Heinze & Co. of $42,000 on June 7, secured by 1,000 shares of United Copper, which was pad in a day or so and the collateral released despite the note of Otto Heinze & Co. made to cover the loan of March 14, 1907, which was so worder that the obligation of the firm then created was to be secured by collateral of whatsoever kind which the firm might at any time have up with the bank during the life of the obligation; there was a loan for $70,000 on June 10 to Otto Heinze & Co., secured by 2,000 United Copper which was similarly returned when the loan was paid despite the provisions of the loan agreement of March 14. This June 10 loan was made, according to the records of the bank, at a time when the cash reserve was $393,594 below the legal requirement.

Loan Named in Indictment.

Another $60,000 went out to Otto Heinze on June 12, the $70,000 loan having been paid on the intervening day, the collateral being withdrawn once more, as was the collateral on the June 12 loan, when that was paid on June 20. June 21 found the firm of Otto Heinze & Co. borrowing the $60,000 again on the same collateral, 2,000 shares of United Copper stock. This is one of the loans specified in the indictment for the books of the bank fail o show any record of its payment down to Oct. 14, 1907. Mr. Wise undertook to show that the $60,000 placed to the credit of Otto Heinze & Co. in the loan of June 21 was withdrawn the following day, but this Judge Hough declined to allow him to do, and the legal point involved was laid over for argument this morning.

Finally came the $600,000 loan to Eckstein, the clerk. It was on Aug. 5, 1907, and was paid on Aug. 6. No loan card covering it was found in the records of the Mercantile Bank, although the books show the original credit to Eckstein and a transfer of the account of Max Schulze. The loan was unsecured, except for Eckstein's note, and the credit didn't stay in Max Schulze's account much longer than it did in Eckstein's, for the Schulze account stood at $10,469 on the morning of Aug. 5, and exactly the same amount when the bank closed business that night.

Mr. Wise, against the protest of Mr. Stanchfield, succeeded in showing that the account of the Montana Ore Purchasing Company received credits that day which included this $600,000 and that the Montana Ore Purchasing Company deposited with the Mercantile National checks for a million and a quarter, including one of the Mercantile's own checks for $600,000. With this in the record, along with Mr. Stanchfield's explanation that the loan was paid the following day, the testimony was closed for the night.

Wise Denounces the Whole Scheme.

In his opening address to the jury yesterday Mr. Wise, after declaring that the Standard Oil interests had nothing whatever to do with the prosecution of Heinze, went out fater the copper man without mincing language and denounced the whole undertaking of which the Mercantile National transactions were a part as a scheme to swindle the public in which the interests of the bank were held to be of no account.

Mr. Wise told the story of the inflation of the capital of the United Copper Company, the sale of practically all the producing assets of that company to the Cole-Ryan interests, and the payment of dividends by the empty-shell trick. Its stock, he declared, was worth "about as much as a last week's newspaper," and this was the stock which the Heinzes gave as collateral for almost unlimited credits at the Mercantile National Bank. Then he ran through the course of the loans and came down finally to the month of October, 1907. On the 13th, Sunday evening, he said, before the United Copper crash, F. A. Heinze and Arthur Heinze tried to get C. W. Morse and the late Charles T. Barney to help out the situation.

That this help was not given even by such speculators as Morse and Barney Mr. Wise considered important as showing the knowledge that must have been possessed by F. A. Heinze, because the following day he loaned $500,000 to himself that was to go to his brother's firm for the continuance of the United Copper speculation. This final loan and the overcertification of checks of Otto Heinze for $457,000 were the culminating incidents ofthe chain of circumstance that Mr. Wise presented to the jury. In the course of yesterday's proceedings Judge Hough made an interesting statement to the jurors on the subject of the newspapers. The court said that he had instructed the Marshals not to keep the newspapers away from the jury. Then he added:

"My confidence in you and the system you represent—the embodiment of an effort of 1,000 years to maintain personal liberty—is such that I do not believe that your judgment wil lbe interfered with, although it would be foolish for me not to realize that in permitting the newspapers to go to the jury i is a matter of extended public knowledge that unfair, misleading, and inaccurate journalistic comments are made on many public events."

KATZ TRIAL BEGINS.

Proscutor Says He Is the Worst of Heinze Copper Stock Plotters.

Assistant District Attorney Nott opened yesterday morning the case against Charles Katz for his share in an alleged plot which spread upon the Street $100,000 worth of Heinze copper stock that one of his brokers had deposited with the Windson Trust Company as collateral for a fifty-thousand-dollar loan.

"Katz is more to be reprimanded than any of the others," he said. "They had to take some risks and come out in the open, but Katz got his share without showing his hands at all."

Frederick Schwed, a curb broker of 38 Broad Street, whose wife is a relative of Katz, testified that Persch and Katz early last Summer had asked his help in a transaction similar to the one which finally was put through the Windsor Trust Company. It would net them $12,000, and Schwed was to have a third, he said. Schwed says he grew cautious when he heard the size of his "commission."

"When they told me they would sell the stock as soon as they received it, I told them that it was crooked and they would have to get some one else to help them. I asked them how they expected to return the securities if the note was called in. Katz said if the stock declined, they would repurchase at a profit. And if it did not decline, well, that was another matter."

Schwed admitted he had introduced Clark to Katz and Persch.

Clark, on the stand, told of the plot as he had in the trial of Donald Persch, which ended in a disagreement by the jury. The stock, he said, was sold in two lots, the bulk by Sherwood, and 400 shares by Persch. The share of each was $480, and a check for that amount bearing Katz's indorsement was put in evidence.

In the Persch trial the share of each in the total sale was accounted for by checks, except that of Katz, who, Clark said, insisted upon cash. Clark received a check for $10,000 from Persch on Aug. 6.

"On that day I met Katz and Persch at the Marquette Club, where Katz told Persch he wanted cash. The next day they came to my office, and Katz showed some money to my stenographer and myself and said that he got his."

At the close of the day the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Bond Company surrendered Sherwood, who was placed in the custody of a detective until to-day, when new bail will be furnished.

Mr. Nott said that he had anticipated just such a move. It was Field who indemnified the surety company, and he has withdrawn the indemnification, just as it was withdrawn from the Clark bond the day before. Sherwood was the L. J. Field & Co. clerk, who has confessed that Leonard Field was familiar with the transaction, that he financed it, and that he shared largely in the proceeds.

EX-SOCIAL FAVORITE A CONFESSED FIREBUG

Blake Also Admits Swindling a Boarding House Keeper and Stealing a Diamond.

POPULAR WITH THE MATRONS

Fled to Georgia with a Young Girl He Married Secretly and Took a New Name.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 27.—Charles Blair Blake, formerly well known in society here, astonished his former friends by pleading guilty to-day in the County Court to several charges which included swindling his landlady out of $650, setting fire to her home, and stealing a diamond ring belonging to her daughter.

Blake was brought back from Augusta, Ga., whither he had fled after the commission of the crimes to which he pleaded guilty. He blames his capture to the fact that he took with him on his flight a young girl whom he married in Jersey City just before leaving for the South.

Blake came here in answer to an advertisement which Mrs. Irving W. Young of 50 North Broadway had inserted in several newspapers for lodgers. He gave so many references that Mrs. Young neglected to look up any of them. Young Blake was a skilled bridge whist player and soon was in demand in most of the best houses in town. He went everywhere and became popular among the society matrons. On Sundays the Youngs, with whom he soon became a favorite, used to take him for spins about town in their automobile.

It was on Feb. 7 that a fire occurred in the Young home. According to Blake's plea yesterday he set the fire, first sprinkling gasoline around several rooms and then igniting it. Afterward he went down stairs and chatted with Miss Young, who was playing the piano, until the blaze was discovered. Then he assisted in removing some of the furniture. In the excitement incident to the blaze Miss Young lost her diamond ring and a servant girl in the house missed $22. Miss Young's ring was found later in a New York pawnshop.

It was shortly after the fire that Blake disappeared from here. According to the young man he met Miss Evelyn Jenks, the niece of Frank Avery, a Manhattan lawyer, in a grand stand at the Hudson-Fulton celebration, and later married her in Jersey City. He took her with him on his trip South, which followed immediately his flight from Mrs. Young's home.

In Augusta Blake took the name of Fisher. When he was arrested there several sheets of stamps were found in his possession, whichc led the Sheriff of Augusta to suspect him of a Post Office robbery.

Blake, according to the police, is well known in Cincinnati, and is wanted there on a charge of having persuaded the Vice President of the Fourth National Bank to cash a bogus check for $310. The police say that formerly he was a hotel clerk in Florida and that in Cincinnati he worked as a tracer for a soap manufacturing concern.

It is said that Miss Jenks's family will take steps to have her marriage to Blake annulled on the ground that the girl was below the legal age when she married him.

County Judge Platt will sentence Blake on Friday.

Says Record Clerk Falsified His Books.

Register Grifenhagen dismissed yesterday Jurgen Johannsen, Chief Record Clerk of his office, whose salary was $2,100 a year, on charges of negligence and misconduct. The specific charge was of falsifying his accounts to the amount of $150, by certifying that copyists had performed work done by John Neal, who died in August, 1906.

REPUBLICANS IN FEAR IN ALLDS'S DISTRICT

Betting Now Favors Democratic Candidate for Senator at Odds of 5 to 3.

PLURALITY OF 2,000 CLAIMED

Nash Gains by Stand for Income Tax, Direct Nominations, and Exposure of Legislative Corruption.

Special to The New York Times.

NORWICH, N. Y., April 27.—Hope of saving Chenango County for Prof. Ralph W. Thomas in the special Senatorial election to-morrow has been practically abandoned by Republican campaign managers here. Until this morning, when reports of the Republican mass meeting at Oxford last night reached town, the organization was doing all in its power to get out a good Republican vote. After the attack made on ex-Senator Allds by Judge Arnold of Otsego, however, a sudden lack of energy was evident on every hand.

None of the Republican leaders was willing to be quoted for publication on the subject of Arnold's speech to-day, and all said that vigorous efforts to get out the party vote in this county would be made to-morrow. The enthusiasm which has marked the campaign from a Republican standpoint is dead, however.

Prof. Thomas was on the platform with Judge Arnold when the latter spoke, and it is assumed that what the Judge said was with the candidate's knowledge and approval. Judge Arnold said:

"Mr. Allds has done everything in his power to keep himself in the public gaze and has forced himself forward as an issue in the present campaign, coupled as he is with Steve Ryan, the Democratic State Committeeman from this district."

The speaker then turned his attention to Ryan, who, he said, first appeared in Chenango County politics as the emissary of W. R. Hearst and later as the right bower of "Fingy" Conners. After tracing Ryan's career for a few years, he said that Ryan had lately attempted to pull Allds "out of the mire on Assemblyman Clark's back. Allds and Ryan, who have played the political game under the table together, deserve to be exposed and their methods made clear to the people."

The campaign closed to-night with a Republican mass meeting in Oneida, Madison County, the largest city in the district and an industrial centre.

Democratic leaders claim that they will carry all three counties and are predicting the election of Nash by at least 2,000. In the betting Nash is now favorite at 5 to 3. Both parties will be alert to-morrow in Madison and Otsego Counties, which, outside of two small cities, are a farming country. There friendship for Allds will not influence the vote, and it is expected that the results in this election will be an index of feeling on the question of bossism, the Albany bribery investigation, and the income tax question. Republican leaders say the vote will be one of confidence in the party.

William H. Sullivan, Democratic County Committeeman, who has been in charge of the campaign for E. L. Nash, the Democratic candidate, made this statement:

"On the eve of this election the prospects seem most encouraging for the election of Mr. Nash to-morrow. The income tax, Gov. Hughes's primary law, and the most searching investigation of official dishonesty in the State departments are the principles for which our candidate emphatically stands. Together with the purity and honesty of his personal and official life they are the most potent factors which will influence the voters in his behalf at to-morrow's election. The grim spectre of Allds behind the Republican throne has disgusted the decent Republicans and the independent voters of the district. Mr. Nash will also have the earnest support of a united Democracy in to-morrow's struggle. I am very confident of his triumphant election."

Havens's Plurality 5,842.

ROCHESTER, April 27.—The official canvass of the vote cast at the special Congressional election in the Thirty-second District on April 19, completed to-day, shows that James S. Havens received 24,805 votes and George W. Aldridge 18,963, making Havens's plurality 5,842.

TO STUDY FOREIGN HOTELS.

Manager of New Hotel Vanderbilt Goes to Europe for Ideas.

Many of the best methods in the operation of hotels abroad, it is said, will be introduced at the new Hotel Vanderbilt, now under construction at Fourth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street. Walton H. Marshall, who will be manager of the hotel when it is opened in 1911, will sail for Europe on Saturday for an extended trip.

"I intend to make a thorough inspection," said Mr. Marshall when seen yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria. "I shall, of course, pick up all the ideas I can abroad for adoption at the Hotel Vanderbilt. The hotel, I understand, will be ready for occupancy by Oct. 1, 1911."

HORSES LIVELY AT SHOW.

Two in Tandem Class So Unruly They Were Taken from the Ring.

One of the interesting society events of the waning season was held at Durland's Riding Academy last night, when a number of the prominent horsewomen of the city gave a benefit for Mrs. Emily Beach, for many years riding teacher at the Riding Club. First of all it was a Horse Show given by women, and this fact alone, there being no professional riders, gave the event a tone that has never before been evidenced in any attempt by women to hold such an attraction.

The riding hall was decorated extensively, the stairway leading up from the street being banked on both sides with masses of flowers, and the centre of the judging ring was a veritable garden, the platform for the judges hardly offering a safe place on which to stand without crushing some of the blossoms.

The first class, for children under 15 years of age riding ponies, started a tumult of applause, for the youthful riders handled their mounts with great skill, and it was a difficult matter for the judges to select the blue ribbon winner.

One of the spectacular events was the tandem driving, in which there were four entries. Two of the tandems proved so unruly that they had to be taken from the ring. The clever work of Miss Marion Hollins with Otto H. Kahn's Duchess and Princess secured the blue ribbon, with David Montgomery's horses second. The latter tandem was driven by Miss Eleanor Sears, who handled the ponies with great skill. She also drove in several other classes, and caught a number of the ribbons for the entries which she handled.

Mrs. John Gerkin had a spirited tandem out in this class, which threatened havoc on several occasions, both for the other entrants and the judges. The leader was imbued with a desire to jump on all occasions, and the smooth work of the wheeler was of little avail. Once the tandem started toward the judges' stand in the centre of the ring—the ladies made a hurried retreat, forgetting all about judging in their anxiety to escape the threatened peril. Mrs. Gerkin tried her best to bring the tandem under control, but just when it seemed she had a fair chance to accomplish this the leader would begin his capers again.

Some of those present were Mrs. Archibald Alexander, Mrs. Hopeton D. Atterbury, Mrs. Henry D. Babcock, Mrs. Theodore H. Banks, Mrs. Bera-Webb, Mrs. J. Livingston Beeckman, Mrs. Edward J. Berwind, Mrs. M. S. Burrill, Mrs. Frank V. Benton, Mrs. Gifford A. Cochran, Mrs. H. B. Collins, Mrs. Paul D. Cravath, Mrs. J. Bradley Cummings, Mrs. D. W. Evans, Mrs. Richard Gambrill, Mrs. J. W. CANADA SHACKLETON'S HOME.

Explorer Announces He Will Engage in Important Discovery Work.

Special to The New York Times.

TORONTO, Ontario, April 27.—Sir Ernest Shackleton has decided upon Canada as his future home, and is already preparing to take up some form of exploration work. That it will be directly under the Government is considered certain. Sir Ernest recently spent a wek with Earl Grey at Ottawa, and met many of the higher officers of the Government.

"When I wind up all my affairs in connection with the expedition and have my debts paid," the explorer said to-night, "I hope to return to Canada and make my future home here. I have traveled the whole world over, but never have I seen such a land of opportunity, such promise for the future, such activity. Canadians have the right to be proud of their country. I freely confess that the microbe of Canadian endeavor and Canadian opportunity has entered into my blood. would like nothing better than to bring my wife and children here, and make it our home, and I feel that affairs are shaping toward that end.

"There is a vast field in Canada for a dependable, highly trained body of official mineralogists to go into the unexplored wildernesses of the North about Hudson's Bay and in the ice deserts of the unknown Northwest and search out and report upon the resources. This would supply reliable information to the Government and the great world of finance, acting as a guide to settlement and investment.

"I am eager to be at it. Once in a while I should come back to the civilized world for a rest, but my future will be ever in the work of searching out new places that scientists know nothing of at present. I shall never attempt again to reach the south pole. I leave that to Capt. Scott, and believe he can do it."

ELEPHANTS STREW CITY WITH WRECKAGE

Nine Stampede Through Residence District of Danville, Ill., Destroying Everything in Path.

ONE PUSHES BUILDING ASIDE

Several Persons Injured—Animals Captured After Several Hours' Chase and Returned to Circus.

DANVILLE, Ill., April 27.—Nine big elephants when being unloaded by the Ringling Circus at Danville, "Uncle Joe" Cannon's home, escaped from their keepers upon gaining the ground this afternoon and stampeded through the residence section. For over two hours they created a reign of terror in the northwestern part of the city and caused much damage.

Singly and in pairs the animals, pursued by their trainers, ranged through the fashionable residence district, smashing fences, outbuildings, and fruit and shade trees. Three runaways resulted, the people being thrown from their carriages, but none was seriously injured.

At the home of William Miller, on Chandler Street, two big elephants attempted to walk through the narrow passageway between that and another building. The leader got stuck, but pushed the lighter building aside, and the pair resumed their way, plowing through fences, clothes lines, and everything else in their path.

These animals appeared in the yard of J. H. Peebles, on Chandler Street, and began smashing things. Finally the horse in the barn lot attempted to jump a ten-foot fence, became impaled, and had to be killed. Mr. Peebles and four neighbors attempted to rescue the horse, but were thrown against the building by the enraged elephant and severely injured.

A neighbor's dog and cow were killed by an elephant. The business men downtown, astonished by frantic appeals over telephones from wives beseeching them to hasten and chase the elephant from the yards and save the pieplant and flowers from destruction, hurried home to find their yards punched full of holes, with vegetation destroyed and outbuildings and fences shattered.

The alarm soon brought every available man from the show grounds and a squad of police, headed by Chief Shaffer. Trainers led the squads to the relief, trailing the animals easily by the paths of destruction, and capturing them singly.

One pair of huge bulls, chained together, were especially destructive, but were the first recaptured. The baby elephant was rushed from the cars to a distant point, where its mother was leisurely eating flowers and shade trees on the lawn, and with its aid its capture was effected.

A big bull passed northwest toward the open country and crossed the north fork of the river. It was overtaken while trying to climb a steep hill. The slippery ground from the recent rains made it difficult work, and when the trainers came up with a big tame elephant they found the runaway stalled midway on a hillside. The trained animal was manouvred alongside, and they were chained together. Many children climbed trees. A few followed the beasts. One elephant ran north through Lincoln Park, not stopping until it had gained the outskirts of the city, where it was found in a barnyard munching hay.

Three other elephants started south toward the business district, but kept to the street. They were overtaken by the trainers and recaptured within three blocks of the Post Office without doing much damage.

To avoid a repetition of the trouble the circus management caused the entire herd to be returned to their cars, where they were chained down for the night, relieving apprehensions on the part of the people in the neighborhood of the Big Four yards.

To-morrow, when they are taken to the menagerie tent, they will be double staked and chained. The animals feel lively after their release from their Winter quarters.

More than 100 homes were damaged to some extent by the elephants, but the total loss will probably not exceed $10,000.

Several truck gardens and orchards were partly ruined in the outskirts of the city, while many shade trees were broken or uprooted.

One elephant was still at large to-night north of Danville, and a force of attendants with trusty elephants spent many hours to effect its capture.

SWARTZ LEAVES ISLIP.

Man Just Acquitted of the Murder of Irving Nelson Obeys Town's Mandate.

Milkmen of Central Islip who were up with the dawn yesterday morning caught sight of a solitary figure stalking, baggageless, along the railroad track away from town. Some of them recognized him and left their cows to telephone the news to their neighbors that "Gus" Swartz had left the home of the widow Nelson and gone his way. The town was glad to be relieved of its suddenly acquired interest in tar pots and feather bed stuffings.

Swartz had heard the decree of banishment against him, and was not willing to wait till the committee called to "see him to the train." He walked westward until he came to Brentwood, two and a half miles away, where he boarded a train. He had not dared approach the Central Islip station, it seemed, lest the citizens jeer at him as he left, or even take physical measures to see him off.

Swartz spent Tuesday night in the home where he had been a boarder before Irving Nelson was murdered last September, and to which the widow welcomed him back on his return from his trial on Tuesday noon.

Central Islip's Committee of Ten spent Tuesday evening deciding upon a programme should Swartz prove stubborn about the matter of going away. Early yesterday morning—three hours before Swartz was seen heading westward along the railroad track—the committee decided to visit the little yellow house to the left of the railroad station.

As they approached the house the business sign of the former householder could be made out above the door. "Irving Nelson, Bicycle Repairing," the sign read. The committee knocked upon the door, and when it was opened, they entered. What happened inside none will tell. All they will say was that Swartz decided he would go and not resist. Three hours later early risers learned he was making good his promise.

Feeling was easier in Central Islip yesterday when the farmers met in the afternoon to discuss Swartz's departure, and they at once began to talk of getting rid Assurances were given by one of the committee that Mrs. Nelson planned to go away too—probably to join Swartz, as near as the committee member could make out from her replies to his questions.

As she has household goods to dispose of the time she may remain was not so rigidly fixed as in the case of Swartz, but it is expected she will depart to-day, or to-morrow at the latest. The only money Swartz had when he departed, according to the understanding of the citizens, was life insurance paid to Mrs. Nelson for the death of her husband. They figure that he was supplied with some of this, and that Mrs. Nelson will have enough left to establish a home for herself somewhere else.

"I don't care where the pair go," said the Scotchman who assumed command when the first hurried meeting of citizens was held on Tuesday, "but I do know they'll never come back to Central Islip after Mrs. Nelson leaves. I also know she's going in a very short while. If any other community wants 'em it can have 'em; we've had enough. I hope they go somewhere where they are not known and do their level best to redeem themselves."

Swartz, who is a hostler, tried to secure employment in Central Islip before he learned that he had to go.

GIRL RIDER INJURED.

Miss Marjory Content Falls from Her Horse in Central Park.

Miss Marjory Content, the fifteen-year-old daughter of Harry Content, a broker at 50 Wall Street, was severely injured yesterday afternoon by falling from her horse while riding on the east bridle path in Central Park. She was picked up by a passing automobile and carried to her parents' suite at the St. Regis, where she was put under the care of physicians.

The accident occurred on the east bridle path near Ninety-sixth Street, and was seen by scores of persons on the nearby drive. Miss Content was accompanied by her riding master. They were both galloping at full speed when she became dizzy and fell from her horse.

At the same time, it is said, a man with his horse not under good control came dashing south on the path, and crashed directly into the forequarter of Miss Content's mount. Dr. Alice Gregory of 2 North Washington Square was close by and went to the injured girl's assistance, and stayed with her until she was taken to the St. Regis.

KELIHER IS INDICTED.

Ten More Counts Also Charged Against Coleman in Cambridge Bank Case.

BOSTON, April 27.—Additional indictments in the Federal Grand Jury investigation of the closed National City Bank of Cambridge were returned to-day against George W. Coleman, the former bookkeeper, and William J. Keliher, through whom Coleman says he lost the greater part of $250,000 trying to break a faro bank in New York.

Coleman was reindicted in ten counts for misapplying $49,000 of the bank funds by means of checks made out to J. Thomas Reinhardt & Co. of this city and New York.

Keliher, who was arrested on a court warrant on Friday last and released yesterday on $25,000 bail, was indicted for aiding and abetting Coleman in the misapplication of the funds of the bank.

Coleman's trial has been set for May 10, but no date has as yet been assigned for Keliher's trial.

Indians with Ill-Equipped Autos.

Five automobiles laden with Indians, squaws, warriors, and papooses were held up yesterday afternoon in Fifth Avenue, near Thirty-ninth Street, by Mounted Policemen McCahill and Smith of Traffic Squad C because the automobiles bore no State seals. In Jefferson Market Court Magistrate O'Connor discharged all five of the chauffeurs, and the red men continued on their way to Grant's Tomb to pay their respects at the "Great White Chief's grave."

ASSEMBLY DEFEATS VOTES FOR WOMEN

DIVISION IS 46 TO 87

Merritt, Who Is Against It, Admits That It Is Coming—Mrs. Blatch Gratified by Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 27.—The woman suffrage cause received a setback in the Assembly to-day, when by a vote of 87 to 46 a motion to discharge the Judiciary Committee from further consideration of the proposed resolution to amend the Constitution so as to give women the ballot was defeated.

The motion was made by Assemblyman Toombs of New York, who fathered the concurrent resolution in the lower house.

"The suffrage movement is one of such great importance," said Mr. Toombs, "that we owe it to the women of the State to bring this measure out in the open for debate. Women of other States have the ballot, and the women of our State ought to have it."

Assemblyman Shea of Essex said he felt qualified to speak for the married men. Mrs. Shea was there to hear him, too.

"I provide a home for my wife," said Mr. Shea. "and I expect her to do her share in maintaining it, and I think that is reasonable enough. If we give women the vote our wives will soon be absorbed in caucuses instead of in housekeeping. They will be drafted on juries, too. When I come home at night I expect my wife to be there, and not in a political caucus or locked up in a jury room with eight or ten men."

Mr. Callan of Columbia said that if Mr. Shea could speak for the married men, he could speak for the unmarried.

"During the campaign," said Mr. Callan. "I visited most of the homes in Columbia County. I know that the women there are against this resolution, and so am I. But I have an even stronger reason. I have a mother and a sister. They have told me that if I vote for this resolution they will close the door against me."

Ex-Lieut. Gov. Lewis Stuyvesant Chanler, who represents Dutchess County in the Assembly, urged the discharge of the committee and spoke generally in favor of woman suffrage.

Mr. Rozan, a Democrat of Buffalo, read a letter from a woman which contained this sentiment:

"What women want is babies, not ballots."

Assemblyman Cosad of Seneca, the patriarch of the lower house, advocated the cause of woman suffrage. He said he had always thought the accident of sex should not be an obstacle to any one's exercising the rights of citizenship.

William M. Bennett, who represents the Fifteenth New York District, said the women there wanted the ballot.

Assemblyman Jesse S. Phillips thought the matter should go over until the Constitutional Convention in 1914.

Majority Leader Merritt said: "I am against this measure, but to my regret I must admit that I believe women will vote in the near future," said Mr. Merritt.

Mrs. Harriet Stanton Blatch listened to the debate. She said she was both pleased and encouraged by the showing made in the Assembly.

The Assembly passed to-day the Phillips bill amending the stock corporation law by permitting shares to be issued without any specified par value.

The bill placing telephone and telegraph companies under the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commission was ordered favorably reported to-night by the Assembly Committee on Electricity, Gas, and Water Supply. The measure has been amended in several particulars.

FAILS TO SEE HUGHES.

Race Track Attorney Is Informed That Governor Is Busy.

ALBANY, April 27.—Joseph S. Auerbach of New York, representing the race track interests, and Andrew Hiller of the Brooklyn Jockey Club, who came here to suggest certain amendments to the Agnew-Perkins anti-oral bookmaking bills, tried to see Gov. Hughes to-day to get his views on the proposed amendments. They were informed that the Governor was too busy to see them.

Gov. Hughes, when asked later if he had declined to see Auerbach and Hiller, said he was busy all the morning, but would see them or any one else during his hour for seeing callers.

Recently the Senate Codes Committee amended the Agnew-Perkins bills by striking out the prohibition "orally or otherwise" and substituting "with or without writing." The bills in this form are on the order of final passage in the upper house.

Mr. Auerbach contends that the bills in their present form will open up a field for endless and unnecessary prosecution by District Attorneys, and he desires to have them amended to obviate such a condition.

McGOLDRICK IS PRAISED.

Assembly Passes Resolution Eulogizing New York Assistant Corporation Counsel.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 27.—Warm praise for Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward J. McGoldrick, who represents the City of New York at the Capitol, was contained in a privileged resolution which was introduced in the Assembly to-day by James L. Whitely of Rochester, Chairman of the Cities Committee.

The resolution conveys the thanks of the committee for aid given by Mr. McGoldrick in the formulation of legislation affecting New York, and expresses to Mayor Gaynor and Corporation Counsel Watson of New York the committee's confidence in him.

Mr. McGoldrick hastened out of the Assembly Chamber when the resolution, which was a surprise to him, was introduced. It was adopted unanimously and with applause.

FIGHT CLOSE ON INCOME TAX.

Wickersham Writes Wadsworth Favoring Indorsement of Resolution.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 27.—The fate of the proposition now pending before the Legislature to commit the State of New York to a prospective amendment of the United States Constitution to give the Federal Government power to levy a tax without prior apportionment among the various States on incomes from whatever source derived will be settled here next week. Whether it is passed or defeated, it is certain that the vote will be close.

Speaker Wadsworth of the Assembly said to-day that he had received a letter on the subject from Attorney General Wickersham.

"The letter was really in the nature of an inquiry, although the Attorney General made it plain that he was for the proposed income tax," said the Speaker. "I trust the proposition will not be ratified. I think Gov. Hughes is absolutely correct in the stand he has taken."

Assemblyman Andrew F. Murray pleaded before the Senate Judiciary Committee to-day for the ratification of the proposed amendment.

Senator Davis, Chairman of the committee, read a letter from William D. Guthrie, who declined an invitation to address the committee in opposition to the amendment because of the charge made on the floor of the Assembly last week by Mr. Murray that briefs prepared by lawyers of the Standard Oil Company had been circulated among the members of the Legislature.

Joseph H. Choate who was also invited to speak on the question, declined the committee's invitation, stating that he could add nothing in an oral argument to his views as presented heretofore.

Prof. E. R. A. Seligman said:

"It is argued that an income tax would be unjust, as New York would pay the greatest part. It pays the greater part of import duties now and the greater part of the internal revenue. If a railroad is to be built in North Dakota the money of New York is employed to pay for it. I am in favor of the income tax because it is in the direction of social and fiscal justice."

Lawson Purdy, President of the New York City Tax Commission, attended the hearing to-day. Mr. Purdy is in favor of the ratification of the income tax. He informed the committee that the most effective income tax was that which is in force in England. A similar tax law in this country, he said, would enable the Government to collect four-fifths of the tax at its source.

It was the intention of Mr. Murray to move in the Assembly to-day a reconsideration of the vote by which his resolution approving the income tax was lost last week. The attendance was too small, and Mr. Murray said he would make his motion next Tuesday. The Speaker announced that on that day there would be a close call of the Assembly to compel the attendance of all the members.

TO SUCCEED GEN. HENRY.

Williams Likely to be Appointed Adjutant General of State.

ALBANY, April 27.—The nomination of Gen. Nelson H. Henry by President Taft as Surveyor of the Port of New York will leave a vacancy in the position of Adjutant General and Chief of Staff to be filled by Gov. Hughes.

Gen. C. P. Williams of Albany, who was formerly First Assistant to Gen. Henry, has been mentioned as his possible successor. On the death of Gen. Frederick Phisterer several months ago, Gen Williams was made Assistant Adjutant General on the staff of Major Gen. Charles F. Roe, commanding the National Guard.

INSURANCE FRAUD SENDS HIM TO JAIL

A. Gero Marshall Gets a Year's Sentence for Swindling Hundreds in 'Protective Society."

ONCE IN A TIMBER PLOT

Convicted of Embezzlement in Pennsylvania and Tried in Ohio on Another Charge.

In the conviction of A. Gero Marshall, general factotum of the Standard Protective Society, in the United States Circuit Court yesterday on four counts of two indictments charging the use of the mails in pursuance of a scheme to defraud, Assistant United States Attorneys Dorr and Walton scored an important victory in the warfare which the Federal authorities are waging against fake insurance companies.

Judge Hazel, who presided at the trial, imposed a sentence of one year in the Blackwell's Island Penitentiary and a fine of $500.

The conviction of Marshall took on additional importance by reason of the fact that he was one of the two men indicted on evidence obtained by THE NEW YORK TIMES in the Summer of 1908 for conducting a colonization scheme in violation of the Federal regulations, intended to take up large tracts of Government timber land in Oregon.

Marshall and one Henry E. G. Cooke were indicted at that time, and the office of their concern, the Oregon Timber and Ranching Company, at 154 Nassau Street, was raided by the Federal authorities after one party of thirty-eight misguided individuals had already been shipped to the West. Marshall pleaded guilty to that indictment rather than stand trial.

In the same offices he conducted the Standard Protective Society, a Pennsylvania corporation organized under the somewhat elastic laws of that State to do ostensibly a benefit insurance business. The company started in Pennsylvania and then moved here, where it undertook to establish a headquarters for a business conducted largely among the farmers of Pennsylvania and the up-State districts of New York.

It was not nor could it be admitted as an insurance company to do business under the New York State laws, and at the time that the Federal authorities got after it the New York State Insurance Department had it on the list of proscribed concerns.

As conducted by Marshall the Standard Protective Society assumed to issue a policy which provided for small monthly payments by policy holders and a sick benefit, or at the end of five years a cash payment of $250. The evidence showed that the company never had a dollar in the benefit fund, and generally, even on its own figures, lacked sufficient assets to meet its outstanding liabilities.

More than this the evidence adduced at the trial of Marshall developed the fact that he had openly stated to employes in his office that he undertook to keep his business going by arbitrarily reducing the expected benefits to policy holders from time to time and thus scaring out or freezing out those who had taken his contracts of insurance. The investigations of Mr. Dorr and Mr. Walton indicate that about $20,000 was extracted from the gullible public upon which he preyed.

Marshall was convicted of embezzlement in Somerset County, Penn., and has avoided the consequence of two prior indictments by settling with the individuals who said he had victimized them. In Cleveland, Ohio, a few years ago he was tried for obtaining money under false pretenses, but succeded in beating the case.

Marshall in the later days of the Standard Protective Society started another concern called the Bankers' Protective Society, and sold bonds at the same time he was victimizing the policy holders with his benefit scheme. His final deal in the insurance business was to sell his company into other hands after transferring to himself the last of its available assets.

Seventy Years in Dry Goods Business.

Le Boutillier Brothers, dry goods merchants of West Twenty-third Street, are celebrating their seventieth business anniversary, their business having been established in February, 1840. The present managers of the business are of the third generation of the founder's immediate family. They lay claim to having been the first to introduce women clerks in their establishment. Six were employed by the firm in September, 1857.

The Sentiment of the Morning Room

THE Morning Room of the country house carries in its very name that sentiment of cool, yet sunny spaciousness and acceptable comfort which should weave itself into the very texture of the life of the country-side.

This Drawing-Room-in-ordinary, as it may well be termed, would seem, in its furnishing, to demand a freedom from formality tempered judiciously by the sense of graceful refinement.

This may be successfully attained by a selection from our noteworthy Replica-Reproductions of the creations of Thomas Sheraton, their essential comeliness unaccented by any excess of elaboration in their details.

THE FOUR BILLION MYTH.

Does the American consumer think that it is about time he began to feel the benefits of the decrease of duties upon "consumption values" of $4,000,000,000 which Chairman PAYNE declared had been accomplished by the new tariff? He may consult any accessible oracle, he may ask the wild winds, he may ask Chairman PAYNE himself, and neither one alone nor all together will be able to show him where his burdens have been lightened by the Payne-Aldrich tariff.

The latest monthly Summary of Commerce and Finance, issued by the Bureau of Statistics, presents the figures of our exports and imports for February as compared with the same month a year ago, and also for the eight months of the fiscal year to March 1, compared with the two preceding years. We give the figures for the three years, showing the value of dutiable imports and the amount of customs duties collected thereon:

DUTIABLE IMPORTS, EIGHT MONTHS, ENDING FEBRUARY.

Value	$470,851,075	$432,865,786	$513,351,309
Duties	201,716,924	188,294,357	221,112,751
P. C. Duties	42.84	43.49	43.07

Do the apologists of the tariff point to the reduction of .42 of 1 per cent. in the average duty for the eight months ending February, 1910, as compared with the same months in the preceding year, as an evidence of reduced rates? The reduction is a good deal too slight to be convincing. That fractional difference would easily be accounted for by natural variations in the classes of imported merchandise. An increase in the importations of commodities bearing a low duty or some decrease in those bearing a high duty would affect the average per cent. of duties on total imports as much or more than this under any tariff law without any change of rates. Thus under the Dingley law the average is .65 of 1 per cent. less in 1908 and 1909. The picture presented by these figures is not at all that of a tariff that has been reduced.

Yet Chairman PAYNE, in his exposition of the work of Congress in preparing the bill, assured the country that duties had been decreased in twelve schedules upon commodities consumed annually by the people of this country to the value of $4,978,122,124; while they had been increased only upon a beggarly consumption value of $852,512,525. Those who wanted to believe Mr. PAYNE's figures did so. They were accepted by all the standpatters, by all the defenders of the revision, they were accepted by the President himself, and used in a speech made by him in this city last Winter. THE TIMES and other newspapers at once declared that Chairman PAYNE's figures were a vain, deluding show. It was preposterous, anyway, to attempt to measure any reduction of duties by parading the figures of the total consumption of the country. In this case the preparation of this table of "consumption values" was something more than preposterous, it was a deliberate, calculated deception, a setting up of mere scenery to divert attention from the broken pledges of the Republican Party, an attempt to fool the people.

The relentless figures of the Bureau of Statistics show that Mr. PAYNE's four billions, it was very nearly five billions, of commodities consumed by the country have undergone no reduction at all. The pretended decrease of duties was a myth. The Custom Houses continue to collect upon our imports at practically the same average rate as under the Dingley act, 43.07 per cent., as against 43.49 per cent. for 1909 and 42.84 per cent. for 1908.

PUBLICITY AT LAST.

It now appears possible and even probable that a serious attempt to enforce publicity as to receipts and disbursements for National elections will become a law before the Congressional elections of this Autumn. The bill introduced by Mr. McCALL of Massachusetts, which has passed the House, is likely to be reported by the Senate committee next week. If it once gets before the Senate, the chances are all in favor of its reaching the President, who is anxious for an opportunity to sign it.

In substance the bill provides that the name and address must be filed of every person, company, or corporation that subscribes or promises money to the amount of $100 to any committee seeking to influence Congressional elections in more than two States; also any expenditure, with definite statement of its purpose and a receipt from the person receiving it. It will be seen that this provision must greatly curtail the privileges and powers of the National Congressional Committee of any party, but necessarily most those of the party in power. It is a perfectly sound measure, and cannot fail, if thoroughly enforced, to do a good deal toward breaking up the virtual corruption that has so long prevailed.

It is the misfortune as well as the strength of the Republican Party that its policy directly affects the pecuniary interests of large numbers of persons and corporations, who are prone to give money to keep it in power, with little or no care as to who are elected for that purpose, so long as they are supporters of the system of tariff favors. We do not for a moment intimate that the Democrats are or would be a bit more honest or scrupulous in the use of such advantages. The party in this city has enjoyed them on a smaller scale in the control of Tammany over the interests of business, and we know the way in which these advantages were employed. But the system under which such evils are fostered is an utterly mischievous one, and publicity is the only practical mode of reforming it. There is, by the way, a grim humor in the provision that the publicity shall be enforced in the cases only of committees operating in two or more States. It is a recognition that this sort of politics is a species of "inter-State commerce."

EXPELLED WEST POINTERS.

Congressman JOHNSTON has introduced a bill to give to certain former members of the United States Military Academy expelled for the offense of hazing the benefit of the recent rules promulgated which grade the penalties so that some of them might not now be expelled for their acts. The cases of three cadets, guilty of but slight infractions of the rule, were suspended until the new rules became operative. Now it is urged that all the young men who have been expelled for the past three years be treated with like consideration.

The eight men named were not all convicted for light offenses. Some of them, according to the published records, were guilty of cowardly and brutal assaults. They knew what the penalty was for these acts, but relied confidently upon friends and influence to get Congress or the President and Secretary of War to restore them, contrary to the judgment of the Superintendent of the Academy. Some of their associates actually succeeded in this attempt, and their examples tended to demoralize the men whose privileges and immunities they now share. Secretary DICKINSON, in urging before the Senate Committee last February the adoption of the new rules, expressed himself emphatically against permitting their benefits to be extended to these expelled cadets, on the ground that it would break up discipline in the Academy. They knew the risks they were taking. Let them suffer the consequences.

THE STEEL TRADE.

The placing of the Steel Corporation upon a dividend 5 per cent. basis designed to be a permanent minimum possesses, perhaps, a significance broader than the affairs of this one corporation. There is on the record the demonstration that the Corporation over a series of years running through several trade reactions, including one which was the sharpest, even if not the severest, ever experienced, has enjoyed earnings well in excess of the 5 per cent. requirement. An average earning power of 8½ per cent. and an average division of 2 3-10 per cent. during the Corporation's lifetime is a more conservative distribution than the standard railway practice. The future may bring as bad times as the Corporation has experienced, but it is likelier also to bring better than the best hitherto. Never before has the Corporation possessed a constitution so fortified against hardship by sound living, and never before has it possessed such capacity to take advantage of any opportunity to make hay while the sun shines. The dividend is made permanent because, in the opinion of the managers, whose competence and sobriety of judgment rests upon the record above epitomized, the Corporation has no more need to extend its equipment either for any severity of competition or to make earnings adequate to the expectations of the proprietors. The naming of a dividend of 5 per cent., which it is not intended to exceed except under unusual conditions, signifies the rounding out of the Corporation according to the intentions of its founders.

There is no room to doubt it, because their intention is on the record. Irresponsible and extravagant critics have imagined and alleged vain things, including every fault of which wealthy malefactors can be guilty. It was a stockjobbing adventure, we have been told. It was designed to exploit the iron industry. It would crush consumers and competitors alike. It has been denounced in Congress as a combination in restraint of trade fit for imprisonment. We now have the culmination of the original plans, by those who conceived it, and who declared it in the original prospectus. "It is expected that by the consummation of the proposed arrangement * * * greater stability of investment will be assured, without necessarily increasing the prices of manufactured products."

The significance of the dividend, if in fact its permanence is assured, is that the promoters of the enterprise have succeeded in organizing prosperity from adversity, and have done so by creating a régime of civilized competition out of a welter of disorder. The billion-dollar concern was incomprehensible alike in its vastness and its rationale by those who have no imagination above the stock market, and whose philosophy of finance is compressed into a periodic fluctuation of prices. The conception was that of an economic control of prices, the ideal toward which many are striving through legislation. Stability of prices and stability of investment are complements, and are easily distinguishable from fixity by edict. A law is an unreasoning thing. It is operative under all conditions, and is a dead average unrelieved by discretion. Statutory control of prices is proved bad and impracticable. The new idea was to found a concern so large that it should itself be an average, four square to all trade winds, and able to enforce discipline. After nine years the conceivers of this idea say that they think that they have succeeded.

The idea is an insult to all our legislators, or perhaps it should rather be said a challenge. The Steel Corporation is a holding company. It monopolizes some part of the steel trade. It entertains ideas and enforces them. It indicates an idea of a fair price, and comes pretty near to imposing it. Its prices are not invariable. Others are free to charge less, if they think it judicious. Others have at times charged more. But there is less variation than there used to be, and there is likely to be less than even now. There have been fewer bargains in materials, and fewer bankruptcies. Also competition has been on a fairer basis in all allied trades, as well as in the steel trade. Consumers have been protected in their calculations, and have felt that they were not being underbid by those enjoying an unfair advantage.

The millennium has not arrived. There will still be reactions and dark days. But it may fairly be asked if the approximation of stability of investment and prices has not made for more comfort in life. Also it might be asked if this modicum of success has not been secured without the sacrifice of anything worth anything to anybody. What is the general idea of this way of doing business, so contrary to our legislative theories, and so different from the reign of commercial slaughter into which our statutes would return us if the politicians could have their way? The questions are large even if restricted to the Corporation and the iron trade. But it is apparent that they epitomize the philosophy of the standardization and stabilization of modern industry.

POISON.

It is a matter of some concern to the people of this country to know whether they are to receive doses of poisoned medicines when ill. With these eighteen members of the House Committee on Inter-State and Foreign Commerce the decision rests of reporting to Congress the Coudrey bill, approved by Secretary WILSON, and drawn to deprive of its ghastly "jokers" the present Federal Pure Drugs law:

James R. Mann, Illinois.
Irving P. Wanger, Pennsylvania.
Frederick C. Stevens, Minnesota.
John J. Esch, Wisconsin.
Charles E. Townsend, Michigan.
James Kennedy, Ohio.
Joseph R. Knowland, California.
William P. Hubbard, West Virginia.
James M. Miller, Kansas.
William H. Stafford, Wisconsin.
William M. Calder, New York.
Charles G. Washburn, Massachusetts.
William C. Adamson, Georgia.
William Richardson, Alabama.
Charles L. Bartlett, Georgia.
Gordon Russell, Texas.
Thetus W. Sims, Tennessee.
Andrew J. Peters, Massachusetts.

A member of this committee, if stricken to-day, might have prescribed for him a solution of strychnine so adulterated with inorganic salts that the poisonous alkaloid would sink to the bottom of the vial; the first doses would not be curative, the last would kill a valuable representative of the Nation. Adulterated saffron, one of the "secondary drugs" not required to be pure under the present law, but customarily mixed with deadly poisons, would be the prime cause of his death. His physician and the retail druggist might not know it, but their ignorance and innocence could not restore the dead Congressman to life.

Burdock root is another "secondary drug" much used as a vehicle for compounding powerful medicines. Dr. H. H. RUSBY, Dean of the College of Pharmacy of Columbia University, says:

> The innocent burdock closely resembles the poisonous belladonna, and I have seen the two mixed by mistake. Instead of leaving the secondary drugs out of the Pharmacopoeia, I urge earnestly that more be included, especially mentioning those drugs for which they might be mistaken.

Dean RUSBY also said:

> A small but exceedingly influential group of physicians, representing perhaps 20 per cent. of their profession, insist that, in the coming Pharmacopoeial revision, drugs which they disapprove, no matter how widely they are used in prescriptions by the majority of doctors of the country, shall be thrust out of the book of recognized standards, thus depriving the Government of power to require that they be of definite purity and strength.

The official organ of this group, The Journal of the American Medical Association, declares editorially in its issue of April 23:

> There is no need for those who now control the United States Pharmacopoeia to consider the question of establishing standards for drugs in which they are not interested.

Those who now control the book of standards for purity and strength are not public officials charged with the enforcement of the law, but private representatives of medical and pharmaceutical societies. They do not represent the majority of practicing doctors, and the drugs they approve are not the majority of drugs in use by these doctors. The Coudrey bill provides that, where no standard of purity or strength for a drug is found in the Pharmacopoeia, the chemists of the Department of Agriculture may fix a standard. Moreover, the manufacturing chemist may now sell with impunity adulterated drugs for which standards are fixed, provided he alter their names slightly. He may sell them below the fixed standards if he state his formula on the label, taking advantage of the doctors' prevailing ignorance of the correct physical and chemical purity of drugs.

These vital defects the Coudrey bill is designed to remedy. Will Chairman MANN and his fellow-committeemen report the bill for the vote of Congress, with an amendment appropriating enough money to provide a supplementary book of standards for purity and strength of drugs?

The announcement that on May 1 Mr. SAMUEL STRAUSS will retire from the Presidency of The Globe will be read with much regret by those who have followed Mr. STRAUSS's course in New York journalism with much interest. In a field where the struggle seemed to be to win by sensational methods he has pursued a quiet dignity which has won for him the respect of his contemporaries and his career encourages the hope that he may yet return to a post of importance in New York journalism.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Mr. Whitman and His Grievance.

Nobody, of course, suspects the Special Sessions Justices of having any greater liking for reckless chauffeurs than is felt by the rest of us, or of having conspired to save those particularly obnoxious and dangerous persons from the punishment they deserve. What a good many people are thinking, however, is that the Justices, owing to their disapproval of a law which, as they contend, deprives them of a discretionary power they believe they ought to possess, have adopted a line of conduct which defeats the purpose of the law. Only incidentally it saves the habitual breaker of the speed laws from paying any severer penalty for his wrongdoing than that imposed upon one who, as a first offender, may have been guilty of nothing more than an almost pardonable inadvertence.

The District Attorney, on the other hand, demands the execution of the law as it stands. The fact that, on the same day when the Justices let off with light fines men whom they should, or at least could, have fined heavily or sent to prison, three persons were run over and killed by automobiles in the streets of this city will seem to the public something more than an indication that Mr. WHITMAN is right and the Justices wrong. Their newly devised explanation of their leniency—that they cannot add to the gravity of the charge brought to them from the Magistrate's Court—is an irritating one, for it ignores their own possession of information which the lower tribunal does not have, and at present cannot obtain.

The situation thus created illustrates and emphasizes the necessity for such a co-ordination of the inferior courts as is provided in the bill, now before the Legislature, which received the comment and approval of THE TIMES on Monday last. The commission which drew the bill carefully examined the whole subject, and its suggestions, if adopted, would at once remove the difficulty of which the Special Sessions—now—make so much.

Incidentally, it may be asked why Mr. WHITMAN takes his grievance to the Bar Association instead of directly to the only body that can act upon it—namely, the Appellate Division. We do not understand that he was under any compulsion to do so. The Bar Association can recommend, but it cannot act, and it is not noted for eagerness to make trouble, or even to permit trouble to be made, for its own members.

Protection for the Drunkard.

An ordinance just passed by the City Council in Morrison, Ill., provides that when anybody in a saloon is overcome by alcoholic lethargy or coma, the proprietor of the place, instead of following the ancient custom of his kind and ejecting the victim of his wares or turning him over to the convenient police, must take tender care of him until complete sobriety returns and furnish him with a comfortable bed in which to sleep off his artificial weariness. Failure to do this is declared sufficient cause for forfeiture of license.

There, now, is a fine idea—or the beginning of one. The duty imposed on the Morrison saloon keeper is in evident recognition of his responsibility for the customer's helplessness, but he is no more responsible for that than for many other and more serious results of indulgence in intoxicants—for decreased industrial efficiency, for losses of jobs and money, for the poverty of the drunkard's home and the unhappiness of his wife and children.

At any rate that is the way the people behind this ordinance must see things, and it is a wonder that they did not show the courage of their beliefs and go boldly forward along the new line they have so boldly opened. They would excite no wide or bitter indignation if they did, for though the rumseller has many acquaintances, he has no friends.

Eddyism and the Children.

Up in Connecticut, the other day, a follower of Mrs. EDDY proved the sincerity of her belief in the unreality of disease by allowing her little son to die of scarlet fever without other treatment than the denials and assertions made by persons of like mind with herself. The Coroner who investigated the case decided in his wisdom that there had been no parental neglect, no violation of the law, and no excuse for prosecution. He gently regretted the course followed by the misguided mother and—dropped the case.

In that instance, since scarlet fever is a disease which no doctor can confidently undertake to cure, it cannot be said with more than probability of truth that the child was a victim of Christian Science—that it would have lived had timely and proper utilization of medical resources been made. Of an entirely different nature in this respect, though so like in all others, is the case reported yesterday from Long Island. It involved not scarlet fever, a malady the germ of which is still undiscovered and for the cure of which no specific remedy exists, but diphtheria, a disease once even more dangerous, but now with nothing mysterious in its etiology and so easily conquerable by means perfectly well known and available for all that it has lost all of its old terrors—for the sane.

But the efficacy of diphtheretic antitoxin is largely dependent upon early administration; that is, while there is almost no mortality when the serum is injected as soon as the disease can be diagnosed, the proportion of deaths to cases rises steadily and rapidly with each day that passes before the remedy is given. Before the mother at Morris Park could be persuaded to call a real doctor for her boy he was beyond help, and he died. Of him it can be said with hardly a chance of mistake that he would have been alive and almost well to-day were it not for his mother's belief in Christian Science—that she is directly responsible for his death.

It remains to be seen whether in this case, too, the authorities will decide that they are unable to act. Excuses for inaction they can doubtless find if they try, for of course the intention to kill was absent and there was no deliberate or conscious neglect, but even if adults have a right to refuse medical treatment when they choose, it does not follow that they are justified, either legally or morally, in subjecting helpless children to the same unnecessary risks.

WHERE THE TROUT ARE.

Says Trout Trust and Sportsmen's Clubs Have "Gobbled" Them.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Where are the trout?" wails a correspondent in THE TIMES of Tuesday, who would "almost promise to wear paths along the banks of brooks" containing them. Of what value would information be to him? He would generally find signs posted forbidding trespassing by owners who had leased all privileges to fishing clubs, and a watchman close by with a shotgun. Suppose, however, he went into that great trout region of New York State, the Adirondacks, or such famous trout streams leading down from it as the Mad and Salmon Rivers? Suppose he found a lake or section of stream not pre-empted by club or millionaire? He could wear no paths because of the limitations set on him by State laws. He would not be allowed to catch a trout under six inches in length, although such a trout is of far less value to the State than an adult old enough to breed, and which is not so good eating as a small one. He would not be allowed to send any trout to his family or friends unless he accompanied them himself, and then not over ten pounds. Only trout farms are allowed to ship trout ad libitum. He would not be allowed to sell his trout. Only trout farms can sell trout. The trout in New York State is for the Trout Trust to do with what it likes, and for fishing clubs and millionaires owning or leasing vast preserves and leasing trout streams and lakes.

If the correspondent were sincere rather than sarcastic he would know without asking that there are thousands of millions of trout and black bass. If he wants unrestricted view of trout the States of Oregon, Washington, Montana, Idaho, California, Wyoming, and Colorado will be glad to show him, to angle for as many as he likes without let or hindrance, and transport as many as he wishes to his family or friends. Those big-hearted States know how to breed and grow all the trout the people can ever use or want. As to black bass he should know that in Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Florida, Mississippi, and other States waters swarm with them, and of very large size in the South. In New York State the waters of the entire northern border are typical black bass breeders—Lake Ontario, the St. Lawrence River, Black Lake, the Oswego, Oswegatchie, and other rivers. If he angled a thousand years he could not make any impression on the bass of the Oswego River. For that matter, the Upper Erie Canal and Oswego Canal are good enough bass waters for any one. Fortunately, the bass cannot be restricted by clubs, leases, or preserves. He travels too far and owns no master save the hook, and not then until he is actually in the frying pan, as he has a habit of leaping out of boats and rolling off from banks into the water.

With ham and eggs a dollar eighty at the Plaza, and friend Drexel kicking, the Governor should have power to suspend the fish laws or sections thereof. The State is amply supplied with Fish Wardens, who can prevent and punish abuse of such privileges so granted. Let the people have a show at something to eat without paying a trust a robber tribute to get it.

PRACTICAL ARBOR DAY.

Tree Planting Association Urges Setting Out Trees Before May 6.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Arbor Day, appointed for the 6th of May, is too often a belated date for a practical observance in this locality. It is most desirable in order that the purposed significance of the day should be fixed in the minds of the young that all school authorities in town and country of this State should include a veritable tree-planting feature in the stated exercises.

The planting season is now fully under way, and with probable warm spells trees and shrubs will be growing actively, and the moving of them so late or early in May will possibly be attended with considerable risk for their future welfare. Where, therefore, it is in contemplation to plant trees in recognition of Arbor Day, as it is hoped it will be, quite extensively, it is recommended that arrangements be made in advance of the day, and the sooner the better, to do the practical part of the work now by placing the tree in properly prepared pits, so that it will be in good growing condition. The better quality of tree, too, can be conveniently secured now at the nurseries about the country.

The finishing work of planting the tree can be carried out in conjunction with some simple form of unveiling as a part of the ceremonies, and with as much effect as if the entire process of planting were done. Indeed, the saving of time will be an advantage.

On the grounds of our country schools where there is greater facility for tree planting, it is to be regretted that most of what has been attempted has been done mainly in a perfunctory manner, so that of many trees that have been planted but comparatively few remain as adorning monuments of a most commendable enterprise.

In the city trees have been planted with good results about some of the schools, but this has been done usually by the teachers and pupils under the inspiration of some moving spirit in the interest of the tree.

The Board of Regents issues each year an interesting souvenir of the day, and this little brochure bears testimony to the industry and good taste of the official to whom the preparation is committed, but it would greatly add to the value and effectiveness of this enterprise if, going a step further, it were officially commended with a little velveted force to country school authorities, that pains should be taken to give a practical turn to the observance of the day by planting one or more carefully selected trees in a proper and efficient manner. In some cases the use of material may be varied by substituting within the inclosed grounds groups of hardy shrubbery and evergreens; the latter are specially effective in Winter.

Our own Board of Education also is remiss in its failure to provide systematic shade tree planting about our schools. There are many opportunities where this can be done with advantage. And otherwise there are many opportunities for the planting of shade trees under quite favorable conditions. It is only needed that the work shall be properly done. A choice growing tree in our streets is a pleasant object at all times, and it is a commendable work for the property owner to engage in, since it cannot be done at the public expense, as some day it doubtless will be. Besides, the planting of a tree on one's own property is not without compensation quite commensurate with the cost.

The Tree Planting Association is ready to supply all desired information on the subject on application without charge.

CHOATE TAKES THE ONUS

Of Mutual Life Settlement with McCurdys, Which Hotchkiss Criticised.

The State Superintendent of Insurance issued a report April 18 severely criticising the settlement by the Mutual Life Insurance Company of the so-called McCurdy claims. President Peabody said then that the committee to which the matter was referred, consisting of Gen. Tracy, President Marston of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, and other prominent men, was advised by Joseph H. Choate and James McKeen. Mr. Choate has now written to President Peabody vigorously defending the action of the committee. Here is his letter:

New York, April 26, 1910.

My Dear Mr. Peabody: I have your letter of April 22, inclosing a copy of the report of Mr. Hadley, the Examiner of the Insurance Department. I have carefully perused the portion of it which relates to the settlement of the McCurdy suits, so called, in which are set forth the report of the special committee to the Board of Trustees, of the settlement which was approved by Mr. James McKeen and myself, and the Examiner's criticisms thereon.

The settlement was not made by the Board of Trustees upon any statement made by the committee, but the committee, having received absolute authority to make the settlement, exercised that power and made its report accordingly.

On reperusing the report of the committee, it appears to me to state with substantial accuracy the facts of the settlement, and I am sure that in the long consideration of the matter by the committee, at its various meetings between the date of its appointment and the making of its report, at all of which I was present with Mr. McKeen, the terms of the settlement were perfectly understood as stated in the report, and that the $750,000 received in settlement was to come $250,000 in cash from Mr. McCurdy, $250,000 from C. H. Raymond & Co. by a credit on the amount standing due to them on the company's books, and $250,000 from Robert H. McCurdy by a similar credit on commissions coming to him under his contract, to which was to be added $65,050.73, the amount of the bill for supplies received from Lawrence. All dispute as to the validity of these contracts was, of course, ended by the settlement, and so it was understood by all parties.

The report shows that the committee carefully considered and understood the whole situation, and the report itself and the names and character of the committee are a sufficient refutation of the charge that they misled or intended to mislead the Board of Directors.

In my opinion, therefore, neither you nor the committee is called on to make any further reply to the criticisms of the Examiner than that which you and Gen. Tracy have already made. From my knowledge of the situation, I am willing to take the entire responsibility for the settlement recommended by the committee as a wise one, and as better for the company and the true interests of the policy holders than to have continued the litigation, and Mr. McKeen concurs with me in this view.

Mott Company of New York is also said to be included in the merger.

The bonds are being underwritten by the First National Bank of Detroit and the Citizens' Savings and Trust Company of Cleveland.

Charles E. Patterson of Dunkirk, N. Y., is said to be the President of the new combination, and R. J. Gross, also of Dunkirk, the Vice President. Both were formerly connected with the American Locomotive Company.

CHURCH ATTENDANCE.

Would Prove a Great Falling Off in the Episcopal Church.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A speaker at the dinner of the Church Club (Episcopal) is quoted by the press as saying that "the Christian churches are better filled to-day on Sundays and other days of religious services than ever before."

As he visits only the churches of his own denomination his statement can only apply to them. That this statement is incorrect is proved by four facts:

First—Within the last few months the rear gallery in one of the Episcopal churches has been removed, and the galleries in eleven other churches are either never used or only on very rare or very special occasions.

Second—The figures of H. K. Carroll of the Government Census Bureau show a decrease in the membership of the Episcopal Church of 15,833.

Third—The Living Church Calendar for last year shows that the dioceses and missionary districts of California, Delaware, Iowa, Kansas City, Marquette, Michigan City, Minnesota, and Milwaukee have decreased in membership, and in the case of Milwaukee, where a revision of the communicant lists was made, over 3,000 (one-fifth) of the number were dropped. The Diocese of Pennsylvania shows an increase of only 45, that of Lexington 12, of Maine 1, and Nevada 7. A revision of these lists would show a decrease.

Fourth—The Diocese of New York, including the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx and 129 cities, villages, and towns in the State, shows a decrease of 8 clergy, 2,107 families, 4,236 baptized persons, 2,076 baptisms, 169 confirmations, 137 communicants, 1,484 marriages, 69 Sunday school teachers, 2,446 Sunday school scholars, and an expenditure for all objects of $771,271.01, and this latter item in spite of the fact that these are times of unusual prosperity.

Such a statement having been widely circulated and not contradicted would surely indicate that spiritual bondage was on the increase, and not on the decrease. It would also show that the life and teachings of Huxley, Spencer, Galileo, Humboldt, Darwin, Bruno, Phillips Brooks, Savage, Paine, Gunsaulus, Heber Newton, and Algernon S. Crapsey had been in vain, if this statement was true.

Charity and the Comet.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the Dark Ages, from time to time, there were predictions of the destruction of the world, these being followed by large gifts to charitable uses, &c. In the same column of to-day's TIMES we read of the new charitable foundation projected at Albany and of the fear that comes from Chicago because of the comet. We are reading daily of new and huge philanthropic foundations. Is history repeating itself? Have our millionaires gotten a tip on Halley's comet?

"RECREATION BY RULE."

They are going up to Albany, or so it is intended,
To get the City Charter wisely altered and amended.
They wish a new department, in the city's pay, of course,
To teach the children how to play by scientific force.

As the Boss of Recreation one desires a princely sum,
And a Deputy for everything from craps to chewing gum.
They wish to teach the children how to recreate aright,
So they're going up to Albany to make a rousing fight.

They wish the parks and playgrounds to be under supervision,
So all the games of children may be subject to revision,
And as for Park Instructors, Playground Mentors and the like—
There are scores of applications coming swiftly down the Pike.

They want a lot of salaries for men in uniform,
And women wearing slippers, who can keep the children warm;
They are going to teach the youngsters how to play with common sense,
And they'll surely make them wretched at considerable expense.

PUBLISHERS DISCUSS NEWS PROBLEMS

A Mutual Insurance Company Among the New Proposals Considered.

POSTAL RIGHTS QUESTIONED

Debates on the Press Agent Question and Other Matters—Paper and the Tariff Up To-day.

The American Newspaper Publishers' Association began a three days' convention at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday with some 200 members, including the publishers of most of the great American dailies, in attendance. This is the twenty-fourth annual meeting, and the attendance was said to be the largest in the history of the organization.

Of the many topics discussed in the two sessions that which created the liveliest debate was the question whether or not it would be feasible for newspapr publishers to have a mutual insurance company. Attention was called by several of the publishers to the large sums paid out annually by members of the association for protection against fire losses, and some said that considerable expense would be saved if, by the formation of a mutual company, profits now paid to the old line companies were eliminated.

Interest in the subject was so keen, and so many publishers seemed to think favorably of such a plan or expressed a desire to hear more about it, that E. H. Baker, publisher of The Cleveland Plain Dealer, offered a resolution for the appointment of a committee by President Herman Ridder of the association to make a thorough inquiry into the subject and report to the association as soon as practicable.

Another topic which aroused interest was an inquiry as to why newspapers should continue to review books without remuneration. Some thought the book publishers ought to pay for such reviews in some way, but others said most of the book publishers made, as a rule, so little money out of their books that if required to pay for notices in the newspapers they would send to only a few papers of large circulation and cut off the rest. This seemed to be the general view and no resolution was adopted.

The advertising managers among the publishers took kindly to this topic:

"Should an advertiser who makes an annual contract through one agency be allowed to put part of his copy through other agencies and get the benefit of the lower rate earned upon the aggregate space placed through all? Who would be responsible to the newspapers for a short rate in such case and how could it be collected?"

The two questions were answered in several ways, but the association itself took no action.

These are some of the other topics which were discussed by the publishers:

What legal right has the Post Office Department to make any regulation as to the credit given to a subscriber?

Does "knocking" one's opposition really create business? (Proposed by a Canadian member, who wanted to know how it worked on this side of the border.)

Has the discussion of the "press agent" problem at the last annual meeting and subsequent action by our members served to reduce that evil?

Many members asked for further discussion of the press agent matter.

The most interesting of all the sessions of the convention is expected this morning when a report of the Committee on Paper is received and the association begins the discussion of the many topics relating to white paper and the tariff. Labor topics will be discussed at the afternoon session, and at 4 o'clock the Presidents of the various International Labor Unions will address the association. To-night the annual joint dinner of the Associated Press and the Publishers' Association will be held at the Waldorf.

The Associated Press Elects Officers.

The Directors of The Associated Press held their annual meeting yesterday morning in the general offices of The Associated Press, 195 Broadway, electing Frank B. Noyes of The Washington (D. C.) Evening Star President, R. M. Johnston of The Houston (Texas) Post First Vice President, and Frank P. MacLennan of The Topeka (Kan.) State Journal Second Vice President. The board also elected Melville E. Stone Secretary, Charles S. Diehl Assistant Secretary, and J. R. Youatt Treasurer. These Directors were elected to the Executive Committee: Victor F. Lawson of The Chicago Daily News, Frank B. Noyes of The Washington Evening Star, Charles W. Knapp of The St. Louis Republic, Adolph S. Ochs of The New York Times, and Gen. Charles H. Taylor of The Boston Globe. All elections were unanimous.

MOTHER ANGEL'S BODY FOUND.

Bones of Brigham Young's First Mother-in-Law Long Missing.

SALT LAKE, April 27.—For almost two years the bones of Brigham Young's first mother-in-law, "Mother" Angel, have lain unclaimed at Police Headquarters. They were identified yesterday by members of the Young family, who have been hunting them for years, and will be placed in a vault prepared for them long ago in Brigham Young's private cemetery.

This circumstance results from the early custom of interring bodies near their former homes. "Mother" Angel was buried in this manner, and when the deceased members of the Young family were gathered in one cemetery her grave could not be found. John W. Young, a son of Brigham Young, and a well-known railroad promoter, spent a good deal of money in digging throughout the block where Mrs. Angel had lived, but all marks had been obliterated, and when business houses were reared in the vicinity hope of finding the grave was given up.

The bones at Police Headquarters were discovered in June, 1908, by workmen excavating for a new carriage factory on Social Hall Avenue. The discovery did not come to the attention of the Young family until yesterday, when Oscar Young, a grandson of "Mother" Angel, established the identity of the skeleton.

New Escalator Subway Station Ready

The new Intervale Avenue station on the West Farms branch of the Subway, the first escalator Subway station in the Bronx, will be opened by Borough President Miller at noon on Saturday. The station is in the heart of the Hunt's Point section, where there have been extensive real estate developments. It has cost nearly $100,000 and was paid for with private capital, the money being subscribed by the Henry Morgenthau Company, George F. Johnson, and Mrs. Jacob Ruppert and the Broadway-Cathedral Parkway Company. The opening will be followed by a luncheon at the Hunt's Point, the largest six-story elevator apartment house in the city, which has just been completed, within a few blocks of the station.

Chicago to Have Biggest Hall.

CHICAGO, April 27.—An exposition building three times as large as the Coliseum in this city, where several National political conventions have been held, and more than twice as large as Madison Square Garden, New York, is to be erected in Chicago by the Illinois Exposition Association. It is estimated that a minimum of $2,000,000 will be needed to finance the scheme. Plans for the structure contemplate a seating capacity of between 30,000 and 40,000.

Sir Edward Morris Sails for The Hague

MISS ADAMS TO ACT AT GREEK THEATRE

Will Appear as Rosalind in "As You Like It" for University of California at Berkeley.

ON SCALE OF "JOAN OF ARC"

Martin Sabine to Play Orlando and Arthur Byron Jacques in Production in Open-Air Auditorium.

Word was received from Charles Frohman yesterday authorizing the acceptance of a formal invitation from the University of California for Maude Adams to appear at the Greek Theatre, Berkeley, in a revival of "As You Like It." The invitation came from the Faculty of the university, and the date set is June 6, when Miss Adams will be on the Pacific Coast. This is to be Miss Adams's first appearance in the rôle of Rosalind, although she had planned to present the play several seasons ago.

Miss Adams will personally produce the Shakespearean comedy on a scale like that of her production of "Joan of Arc" at Harvard University last Spring. A special company has been organized, and the costumes have already been made under the direction of John W. Alexander, President of the National Academy of Design. They will be shipped to San Francisco to-day for use in the rehearsals of the play.

This will be Miss Adams's second appearance at the Greek Theatre. In July, 1907, during her last tour to the coast, she gave a moonlight performance of "L'Aiglon" in the open-air auditorium, and she has always had the desire to play there again.

For the performance of "As You Like It" the stage of the amphitheatre will be extended so that a part of the action of the play will take place in close proximity to the audience. It is Miss Adams's intention to adhere closely to the original text of the comedy, but to give it a scenic and costume investiture on a scale that has not before been attempted. An entire choral society will be employed for the specially arranged music that will be played under the direction of William Furst, musical director of the Empire Theatre, New York.

The special company will include Martin Sabine, now leading man in John Drew's company, who will play Orlando, and Arthur Bryan and Robert Peyton Carter, who will play Jacques and Touchstone, respectively. George Osbourne will have the rôle of the banished Duke, and among the women in the cast will be Dorothy Dorr, Desmond Kelly, and Ffolliott Paget.

After the single performance at Berkeley the play will become a part of Miss Adams's répertoire, and will be used by her in the future. The Berkeley performance will be given at night and will be under the auspices of the English department of the University of California.

FIRE DEFECTS IN THEATRES.

Commissioner Won't Renew Licenses Until Regulations Are Observed.

Fire Commissioner Waldo has held up the applications of moving picture shows and a few theatres for a renewal of licenses until the regulations of the Fire Department are complied with.

Among the theatres affected are the Bijou, Daly's, the Thalia, and Windsor on the Bowery, and the Metropolis in the Bronx. A number of moving picture places will have to provide exits and make other improvements to safeguard against fire.

In regard to the Bijou it was pointed out in a report to the Commissioner that the Bureau of Buildings should be notified that the rooms on the third and fourth floors now used for business purposes should be abandoned as the stairway is wood and leads direct to the gallery of the theatre. The dressing rooms under the orchestra are to be removed or made fireproof.

Daly's exits were said not to meet requirements as they lead by way of fire escapes to roofs of adjoining buildings.

The Thalia Theatre, the report says, needs a general overhauling.

At the Windsor Theatre an automatic starting device for the pump is called for.

The Metropolis is expected to put a tank on the roof and a suction tank in the cellar, and set up more auxiliary fire extinguishers.

WILD WEST COWBOY HURT.

He was taken unconscious to the New York Hospital, where it was said he had a possibly fractured skull and internal injuries.

"ALICE IN WONDERLAND" TO-DAY

Rebecca Lane Hooper's Operetta to be Given at The New Theatre.

Price, Rebecca Lane Hooper, Allan T. Hoppin, Henry Gaines Hann, Daniel Heyward Handrel, Carrie Martin Cowlan, B. Meredith Langstaff, and many others.

Through the courtesy of Dodd, Mead & Co., illustrations which were used in the publication of Mrs. Delafield's dramatization are being used in the programme book. Señor Guetary, the Spanish tenor, is to sing between the acts. Porter Steele will conduct the orchestra. Among those who will appear in the dances are Miss Gladys Shannon, Miss Dolly Lynch, and Miss Louise Freeman.

A bazaar will be held at Knights of Columbus Building, 305 East Twenty-third Street, to-night, to-morrow, and Saturday, to raise funds to pay off the mortgage on the building. City Magistrate Henry W. Herbert will officiate at the opening exercises to-night.

PARIS SENIOR SALON HAS FINE ART WORKS

Average Merit of 128th Exposition of Societe Des Artistes Is Exceedingly High.

ECLIPSES JUNIOR SALON

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 27.—This was the first of the three privileged days at the senior Salon, when only artists and critics are admitted to see the exhibits, many of which are still in process of installation. Three hours spent in the forty-odd halls allotted to pictures and in the vast central arena filled with hundreds of pieces of sculpture satisfy one that the average merit of this one hundred and twenty-eighth exposition of the Societe des Artistes is exceedingly high, in fact, relatively higher than that of the junior Salon of the Societe Nationale des Beaux Arts, which is still open in another portion of the Grand Palais.

The number of exhibits being enormously greater in the senior Salon, works of foreign artists necessarily appear in lesser proportion than in the other, and in the department of painting in the midst of intense competition which reigns none of these will be found to loom forth with unique strength.

Under the ethics which cover the acceptance of invitations to the three "little varnishing days" and the great and fashionable varnishing day itself, I am not at liberty to be more specific until the actual official inauguration of the exposition has taken place.

There are scores of works of extraordinary excellence and only a few that are marked by hopeless inferiority of talent. The absence of the usual great number of nudes is readily noticeable. Those exhibited, on the other hand, may be said to have some excuse for being which is not the case with many in the junior Salon. The old Salon abounds in strong landscapes and marines, and in general scenes it appears to mark the putting of renewed emphasis upon healthier manifestations of modern art.

BOY IN CORSETS FAINTS.

Student Actor Was Squeezed Too Tight at a Dress Rehearsal.

An unusually tight-fitting corset made a lot of excitement in the Berkeley Theatre, Forty-fourth Street, yesterday afternoon, as it caused W. J. Judd, a New York University student, to faint, and incidentally broke up the dress rehearsal of the college show.

Judd and nearly forty other New York University students had assembled at the theatre to go through the final dress rehearsal of "The Undergraduate." Half of the boys were playing girls' parts, and had struggled into feminine clothing. Judd was one of these, but as he played the part of leading woman, the coach had ordered that he show a particularly neat figure on the stage. As a result he had been squeezed into a very tight corset when he came on the stage ready for his song and dance.

He went through the first verse bravely, and was about to start on the second when he suddenly fell. The boys thought for a minute that Judd had tripped over his skirts, but when he failed to rise they ran on the stage and found him unconscious. They picked him up and carried him to a dressing room, where his tight-fitting dress and corsets were removed.

Dr. T. R. Whitney, an alumnus of the university, was called back to the dressing room and finally brought Judd to consciousness. His costume will be altered for the first public performance of the play to-night.

WOULD WED MRS. GREEN'S SON

He Gets Letters from 150 Women Asking His Hand in Marriage.

ST. LOUIS, April 27.—E. H. R. Green of Terrell, Texas, President of the Texas Midland Railroad and son of Mrs. Hetty Green of New York, who recently announced that he had not married because he could find no woman who would accept him except for his money, admitted last night the receipt of 150 letters from women asking his hand in marriage during the last two weeks.

The letters were accompanied by about fifty photographs of the writers. One of the letters was from a widow with half a dozen children.

Green will remain in St. Louis for several days. He denied a statement that his mother had retired or was about to retire from business.

OLMSTED ANSWERS WHITMAN.

Justice Says It Is the Right of an Advocate to "Cuss the Court."

District Attorney Whitman's criticism of the attitude of the Justices of Special Sessions toward the offenders under the motor vehicle law elicited no response from the Justices yesterday beyond a dig from Justice Olmsted, who wrote the two opinions which brought the friction to a climax.

"It would be unseemly for a court to discuss its judicial actions in the press," he said. "It has been recognized, however, as the proverbial right of a defeated advocate to go around the corner and relieve his mind by cussing the court."

The defeated advocate had this to say of the situation:

"I take issue with that court on three propositions: First, their claim to a right to allow a second offender to plead guilty as a first offense and escape with a small fine without the consent of the District Attorney. Second, their opinion to the effect that the District Attorney may not prosecute a man as a second or third offender unless he has been so charged in the Magistrates' Courts. These two are plainly inconsistent, and lest the second should cloud the issue of the first, on which I really wish to make a stand against the court; it is my intention to rearrest all speeders and specifically charge the proper offense in the Tombs Court. With that out of the way for the present, if they uphold their first opinion a second time the whole thing shall go before the Supreme Court on mandamus proceedings. Then we shall see what we shall see.

"The third point of issue is their wholesale suspension of sentence. It is upon this subject that I shall ask the Bar Association to review the data I may be able to gather."

One sufferer by the disagreement is a chauffeur under arrest and unable to furnish bail, whose case would have come up for consideration yesterday, but who must now wait in the Tombs until the controversy is settled.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., April 27.—Capt. Seth Bullock, United States Marshal for South Dakota, left Sioux Falls this afternoon for New York, where he will sail for England to meet Col. Roosevelt, in accordance with an invitation received some weeks ago.

FROHMAN IN FINE HEALTH.

Manager Laughs at Rumors in New York of His Serious Illness.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 27.—Charles Frohman laughed heartily when told to-day of rumors in New York of his serious illness. "You can contradict them on my authority," he said.

Mr. Frohman unquestionably is in better health than when he left New York. In fact, he is looking extremely well.

BAR REIS AND CAHN CIRCUITS.

Klaw & Erlanger Will Not Book with Managers Declaring for Open Door.

A statement was issued from the offices of Klaw & Erlanger yesterday in reference to the announcement that M. Reis had declared for the open-door policy for his circuit of theatres. Part of it was as follows:

"Inasmuch as Mr. Mose Reis and Mr. Julius Cahn are posing as benefactors to the one-night stands they represent in their announcements that their theatres will hereafter play attractions booked by Klaw & Erlanger and others, it might as well be made clear that this is merely their statement. Neither Klaw & Erlanger nor any of the managers affiliated with them will play any of their attractions in any theatres booked by Mose Reis or Julius Cahn."

The statement declared further that Mr. Reis and Mr. Cahn had been paid for opening the doors of the theatres they represented to the Shuberts, "thereby closing them to all the attractions of Charles Frohman, Klaw & Erlanger, Charles B. Dillingham, Henry B. Harris, Cohan & Harris, Frederic Thompson, Wagenhals & Kemper, Joseph M. Gaites, Henry Savage, Henry Miller, and other producing managers and stars."

DROPS THEATRE TRUST CASE.

Court Holds Complaint Brought by the Shuberts Is Not Sustainable.

Supreme Court Justice Marcus dismissed yesterday an old conspiracy indictment that was found in the Jerome administration against the "Theatrical Trust," Samuel F. Nirdlinger, J. Fred Zimmerman, Charles Frohman, Al Hayman, Marc Klaw, and Abraham L. Erlanger. The charge against the last two was dismissed by Judge Rosalsky some three years ago.

The indictment, found upon the complaint of David Belasco, Lee Shubert, and others, charged a conspiracy in dealing with the commodity of common use, "plays and entertainments." It was the rebellion against the old system built up first in 1896.

Mr. Frohman pleaded not guilty in February of this year, and was released then in $1,000 bail, the bond being furnished by Daniel Frohman. The reason given by the District Attorney for the dismissal was the expense of prosecution in the face of the impossibility of conviction.

The full choir of the Church of the Ascension, under the leadership of Richard Henry Warren, will assist.

Robert Edeson has obtained a new play, "Where the Trail Divides," suggested by Will Lillibridge's novel of the same name. He tried out one act of the piece at the Actors' Fund benefit in Minneapolis last Tuesday.

Stuart Robson, a son of the late Stuart Robson, has been engaged to play the leading roles in the Franklyn Stock Company, opening in Stamford, Conn. There is a coincidence in the fact that the young actor is to have his first opportunity in a leading role Monday next, which is the anniversary of his father's death. Mr. Robson will appear in Cyril Scott's former role in "The Prince Chap."

SHE DREW THE LINE AT WEARING TIGHTS

Actress Also Refused to Sing Some Songs Offered in Ziegfeld's Company.

HE SEEKS TO ENJOIN HER

Ordered Her, She Says, to Don Fleshings and Sit on an Elephant—She Wants Another Manager.

The aversion of a musical comedy prima donna to the wearing of fleshings and the singing of suggestive songs was related yesterday in the Supreme Court before Justice O'Gorman in the suit of Florenz Ziegfeld, Jr., the theatrical producer, against Nora Bayes and her husband, Jack Norworth. Ziegfeld seeks to restrain Miss Bayes and Norworth from singing and acting under management other than his own.

"Mr. Ziegfeld wanted me to wear tights and to sit perched on the back of an elephant," said Miss Bayes on the stand, in explaining the trouble. "I told him I had never worn tights and did not purpose doing so, while on the elephant's back or anywhere else."

Ziegfeld related how Miss Bayes had refused to sing certain verses of the "Jungle Song" in the "Follies of 1909," and that when he asked her to sing "The Harvest Moon" she declined to sing all but one verse. This she did, he said, after consulting with her husband.

"What else was said or done?" asked Lawyer Max Steuer.

"Oh, she went back stage and kissed her husband," replied Ziegfeld, with a smile.

Miss Bayes said further on the stand that the whirring of electric fans disturbed her singing, and that she was rendered nervous by the continual circulation of waiters among the patrons of the New York Roof Garden, soliciting and delivering orders for drinks, and that these were among the reasons why she had left Ziegfeld's company. She said she had been used to having the lights turned low in the auditorium and the fans shut off during her songs.

Ziegfeld had obtained an injunction against Miss Bayes and Norworth appearing under other management, and after obtaining the injunction refused to reemploy them. The injunction was thereupon modified. Ziegfeld said yesterday that he would be willing to give Miss Bayes immediate employment at $1,000 a week, but did not care about Norworth. On cross-examination, Mr. Steuer asked him:

"Did you not come into Miss Bayes's dressing room on the opening night of the 'Follies' at Atlantic City and tell her: 'The play was rotten, you looked rotten, and sang rotten'?"

"No," replied Ziegfeld.

"On that night did you not say to Miss Lillian Lorraine, an actress in the company: 'You were the prettiest little thing that I ever saw'?"

"I may have," Ziegfeld admitted.

Counsel for Ziegfeld asked for a new injunction against Miss Bayes, based on her contract to play in the "Follies of 1909," which was given to her after playing in the "Follies of 1908." Numbers of bill posters, featuring Miss Bayes as star of the production, were produced in evidence, and her services were described as "unique and extraordinary."

Ziegfeld's testimony contained a statement that he had paid Norworth $500 for writing a song for Miss Bayes to sing. Decision was reserved.

LATITUDE

Is a good thing to have about you, provided it is chained up.

George the Third had too much latitude and the Colonies too little.

Giving a Contractor too much latitude has put many an investment out of plumb.

Our Cost Insurance contract eliminates latitude where it is most likely to do harm—in the profit and in the cost.

WESTON SPRAINS ANKLE SEVERELY

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 27.—Edward Payson Weston met with an accident at 5:15 o'clock this afternoon which renders problematical the question as to whether he can finish his transcontinental walk at City Hall, New York, this week, as he had planned. To-night he is lying in the farmhouse of T. Raymond Van Hoesen, nine miles south of Albany, on the Old Post Road from Albany to New York, and while the physician who was called from Greenbush, five miles away, to attend him, expressed the opinion this evening that the old man might be able to resume his trip in the morning, he wasn't positive about it.

Weston has a badly swollen right ankle, which is paining him a great deal, but his courage is undiminished, and he said this evening that he was sure he could go ahead in the morning.

The examination of the injury by the doctor did not disclose any fracture. The physician said that so far as he could determine from the swollen ankle the injury consisted of a severe sprain of the external lateral ligament at the right ankle bone. He bound the injured leg up tightly in bandages and applied some liniment.

Weston had been making fine progress all day up to the time he was injured, and fully expected to make one of the biggest day's score of his last week on the road. He had traveled forty-nine miles since 2 o'clock this morning and was still going strong and easily at 5:15 this afternoon, when he came to grief.

Weston was on the Albany-New York Post Road, four miles east of Castleton and nine miles south of Albany, when the automobile carrying his assistants caught up with him after having been diverted from the route. Weston's car had stopped to see if he wanted any food or drink, and the old man was standing on the left side of the car talking to his friends when a car running in the opposite direction and traveling at a moderate speed, approached. Weston had asked the driver of his car to go ahead to the next farmhouse and arrange for a bed for him, as he was suffering from want of sleep, and the chauffeur was about to start when the car going toward Albany was passing.

Mr. Weston was himself close to his own car and out of all apparent danger, but about four feet in front of him was Lewis Guy, about 20 years old, of Troy, who had walked the fifteen miles out of Troy with Weston. Guy was standing with his left side toward the approaching automobile and was listening to what Weston was saying. The mud guard of the car going toward Albany struck the boy in the left hip and knocked him against Weston, who was knocked down by the impact of Guy's body, and Guy fell heavily upon the old man's feet. The driver of the car which had done the damage stopped his car within a distance of five feet and the wheels did not pass over either the young man or the aged pedestrian.

THE TIMES representative who had been talking to Weston leaped from the pedestrian's attending car, picked the old man up in his arms, and found he was so dazed that he could not stand alone. In a moment, however, the old man regained complete control of his senses, and said:

"Don't help me. If I can't go ahead alone I'll go backward."

Weston staggered from the shock when the reporter let go of him, and a helping arm was extended to him. He insisted that he should be led backward toward Albany, and was assisted along for twenty feet when he sat down on the grass at the side of the road. The shock had jarred the iron nerve of the old man, and he said that he felt a considerable pain in his right ankle, but he declined further assistance and said:

"It's pretty hard luck if I'm to be laid out when I am almost in sight of New York, and that after coming in safely over 3,000 miles."

The man running the touring car which had caused the damage jumped out of his car as soon as he saw the two men fall and he could bring his automobile to a stop, and expressed the greatest solicitude for the old man. Young Guy jumped up almost instantly, and said that beyond some bruises to his left side he was unhurt. The man who ran down the two men was C. W. Lyon, dealer in antique furniture at 29 Washington Avenue, Albany.

Mr. Weston sat on the side of the road for about five minutes until he could pull himself together, and then he declared he felt able to walk on to the nearest farmhouse, and did so, although he was limpest house was that of Farmer T. Raymond est house is that of Farmer T. Raymond Van Hoesen, and is a large, comfortable place. The Van Hoesens extended the hospitality of their home to the injured pedestrian, who walked the eighth of a mile between the scene of the accident and the house without any assistance, refusing to let those with him help along even to the extent of taking hold of his elbow.

Mr. Weston was in bed within twenty minutes after he was hurt. Dr. Ira M. Garrison of Greenbush, the nearest available physician, was called at once. He had to drive five miles over bad roads in his runabout car, and it was an hour after Weston was injured before he received medical attention. Weston told the doctor that he positively must proceed on his journey to New York to-morrow morning. As the doctor was bandaging his foot and ankle Weston said:

"You be sure to get that on snug so I can have my stocking and shoe on over it in the morning, for I am certainly going to get to New York before Saturday night."

Weston said, after the bandages had been put on, that he was sure he would be able to start out again in the morning, and declared that he would get up at 1 o'clock and go on his way regardless of what condition his foot may be in.

At the time when the accident occurred Weston had covered 49 miles since he started out from Amsterdam at 2 o'clock this morning, and he intended to go on to Hudson, 20 miles further on, before midnight. An hour before he was hurt Weston said:

"I am going to make 69 or 70 miles to-day and a big day to-morrow to show the world that in the concluding days of my walk across the continent my strength is unimpaired and that I am far from being all in. Saturday will be the end of just three months since I left Los Angeles, and I am going to finish my walk and go into City Hall not later than Saturday noon. I never felt better or stronger in my life, and I know I shall be able to do what I have promised.

"I might have known something would happen to me, for I was feeling so good and confident. This is the first injury of any account I have met with since I started from California, and it's pretty tough to get this deal so near New York. I am not going to let this hurt down me, and you can tell my friends to look for me along Broadway on Saturday."

Mr. Lyon showed the greatest solicitude for Mr. Weston and turned his car around to follow him to the farm house. He also summoned Dr. Garrison, and paid his fee.

SAUNDERS IN BOAT AGAIN.

Columbia Rowing Stock Advances with Return of Good Oarsman.

With Saunders back the Columbia 'Varsity eight that will go down to Annapolis next week to race against the Middies is a much stronger combination than Coach Rice looked forward to. Seated at No. 6 in the boat he gives to the waist of the shell the strength and the steadiness of an old and experienced oarsman at a point where it is most essential.

The last lap in the training for next month's race is now on for the oarsmen over at Edgewater. Rice is letting no opportunity slip which might mean more practice, and he is working his plan of having the men row twice daily to their capacity. At 6:30 in the morning they are roused out of their sleeping quarters in the barge which has been fitted up for this use and hustled into their rowing clothes for a paddle up the Hudson before college hours. A three-mile spin is usually taken at this time.

The Blue and White sweepsters are kept at the training tables for all meals. Late in the afternoon comes the harder row of eight to ten miles with sprint and time trials. The eight is now in better form in the sprints than has been the case for some time past, the boat making good time and the crew is capable of maintaining a high stroke.

The order in which the crews rowed yesterday follows:

'Varsity Eight—Steinschneider, bow; Clapp, No. 2; Hamman, No. 3; Dellenbaugh, No. 4; Culman, No. 5; Saunders, No. 6; Miller, No. 7; Murphy, stroke, and Eddison, coxswain.

Second Boat—Steckler, bow; Sinclaire, 2; Keator, No. 3; Pulleyn, No. 4; Snevily, No. 5; Moore, No. 6; Pitt, No. 7; Downing, stroke, and J. Wood, coxswain.

POOR BOWLING SCORES.

Individual and Two-Man Competitions at Baltimore Lack Interest.

BALTIMORE, April 27.—The individual competition in the fourth annual tournament of the National Bowling Association to-day did not prove very exciting. Only three men rolled more than 600, and of these only one, Harry Bullock of Newcastle, Penn., by scoring 639, succeeded in getting into the leading quartet, taking fourth place from Charles Lunsmann of New York, whose score was 633. Harry Ritter of Philadelphia leads the individual class with 679 pins to his credit; William Schirmer of New Rochelle, N. Y., is second with 649, and G. Danenbaum of Newark, N. J., is third with 646.

The bowling of the two-man teams was of even less interest, but one pair scoring over 1,200, and this one lacking several pins of the number necessary to gain a place among the four leaders. These are Burdine and Eckstein, Washington, D. C., first with 1,305 pins; Spinnella and Siddall, Brooklyn, N. Y., second with 1,242; Osterman and Mortimer, Utica, N. Y., third, with 1,238, and Hetzel and Noack, Trenton, N. J., fourth, with 1,230.

The five-man teams started off well, and at the conclusion of the first round it looked as though records might fall.

The Brunswicks of New York scored 1,032 in their first game, but then fell away badly, making but 969 in their second and 884 in their third, a total of 2,885. This gives them third place on the list, dropping Yonkers to fourth, with 2,875, and cutting off the New Haven State League of New Haven, Conn. This section is led by the Chalmers-Detroit team of Chicago, with a score of 2,917, the Corinthians No. 6 of New York being second, with 2,901. The Tuxedos of Newark, N. J., got into the 2,700 class tonight, they scoring 2,767.

KETCHEL STANDS OFF LANGFORD IN BOUT

Negro's Slowness in Last Round Deprives Him of Victory at Philadelphia.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—The main feature of the fight here to-night between Stanley Ketchel and Sam Langford, the colored light heavyweight, was the dissatisfaction among the big crowd who saw the go—dissatisfied because they could not see more of the lively going which characterized the bout throughout.

It was a fight full of action from start to finish, in which the only apparent damage was Ketchel's bloody face, the result of Langford's straight jolts on the nose and mouth.

Langford was the finished boxer and landed clean and hard on the white man, who was all willingness and determined to finish the black man in short order. Langford lost a clear title to the fight by his slowing up in the last part of the last round. He was entitled to a draw, however, and the doubt still remains whether or not he is Ketchel's master. Up to the last round he demonstrated this fact, but his slowness in the last round took a lot of credit from him. Many thought he was stalling, but only he could tell that with any certainty.

At 7 o'clock the doors were opened and a crowd that had blocked the wide street in front of the clubhouse surged in between a double line of city policemen. The cheaper seats at $2 and $3 were soon occupied.

An hour before the scheduled opening the management announced that the record for the club, a $23,000 gate, would be broken.

A crowd of New Yorkers, including Tom Foley, Gene McGuire, Arthur Murphy, "Honest John" Kelly, Charlie White, Billy Gibson, Jim Buckley, Tim Sullivan, Jimmy Johnson, Larry Mulligan, Johnny White, Billy Long, P. Paul, Eddie Milan, and Jimmy Kelly occupied seats around the ring.

Another party included Tom Jones, Billy Joh, Charles Gates, Warren Barbour, the amateur heavyweight champion; Frank Mulken, M. Murray, John Mooney, and John Murray.

The semi-final brought together Nick Muller and Sailor Fredericks, heavyweights. It was stopped in the fourth round to save the sailor, who was a sight from the severe walloping he got.

Langford was the first to appear in the ring. He was accompanied by Young Mississippi, George Byers, and George Cole, his seconds. The colored fighter received a warm reception. He was followed a moment later by Ketchel, who entered the ring with Eddie Baun, Jimmie Kelly, and Nick Muller. Ketchel was cheered to the echo as he crawled through the ropes.

Langford looked to weigh easily ten pounds more than his white opponent, though the latter had the advantage of height and reach. For an instant they fiddled after the gong announced the start, and then they broke for each other, coming to a clinch. Langford boxed and Ketchel took a chance and literally threw his left in. It fell short, but he tried again, always to be blocked by his clever opponent. Langford feinted and got home a left half swing to the body. More sparring with Ketchel boring in. The crowd hissed. A slight let up in the going, and Langford went in with both arms working. He landed left and right on the body lightly. Ketchel got away with a left on the negro's stomach as the round ended.

There was no question of the willingness of the pair as they rushed at each other for the second round. Langford landed a stiff left on the side of the head. The crowd worked up to the realization that they were about to see a real fight, and cheered wildly as the fighters pegged away. Ketchel was always after Langford, who was kept jumping continually, but the middleweight champion only landed once effectively at this stage. It was a hard right swing on the chest, as Langford was stepping away. Langford was measuring his man coolly, and backed and sidestepped the swings Ketchel was working. He stepped in as the round closed and landed a short half-arm left and then a right on the neck and side of the head.

Ketchel carried the fight to Langford as usual in the third round, but the black man saw him coming and landed pretty much as he pleased. Langford's blows were clean and had force back of them, but they were not doing much damage, apparently. To those close to the ring it was evident that Langford was shaping Ketchel up. The latter was busy at all times, however, and thinking only of rushing Langford. He kept trying his right shift low for the body, and landed it twice. The crowd went wild, for it was all with the white man. Langford was not at all worried, and came back with hard, straight rights and lefts on the neck. They were fighting furiously as the round closed, and exchanged a couple of punches even after the bell rang.

Langford was all scientific action as they toed the mark for the fourth period, and it looked as though close fighting was beginning to tell on Ketchel, who looked worried and a bit tired. His nose and mouth were bleeding from the straight lefts Langford was planting, but they did not deter Ketchel, who came along nevertheless. He was taking all that Langford sent across, and got back a few of his favorite right shifts for the body. Langford shook Ketchel up with straight lefts and a right uppercut closely following, just after they stepped to the centre. Ketchel was rough in the clinches, while Langford boxed whenever he could get set. He was kept busy, though, dodging Ketchel's swings and getting out of the road of his rushes. Ketchel's many attempts to find the colored man were mostly futile, though he couldn't be denied. Langford missed a straight left lead for the head as the bell rang and slipped to the floor.

The crowd yelled like wild Indians in the final round. Ketchel started furiously and had Langford backing away, dodging and side-stepping to keep out of the road of the slamming Ketchel had ordered for him. It was a sort of a finish that the average crowd likes to see in a limited round go, because it was so full of action. Ketchel was showy, but he was not effective. About the middle of the round Langford stepped in and shoved over a left and right that landed beautifully. Ketchel staggered, but he was back at the little negro like a bull. Sam kept his hands quieter and Ketchel thought he saw a chance to slip one over. Langford immediately woke up and countered hard enough to crack an inch board. He didn't follow it up, however, in the manner his friends knew he could. Ketchel kept hard at it and was trying like a demon as the bell rang. The crowd cheered him to the roof.

WAGNER HAS SLIGHT LEAD.

Monte Attell Loses on Points in Ten-Round Bout.

Monte Attell, the bantam weight brother of Abe Attell, the feather weight champion, got rather the worst of it last night in the main ten-round bout at the National Sporting Club at the hands of Joe Wagner.

Wagner had his famous shift working overtime, and it bothered Attell considerably. Apparently he could find no adequate defense to it, and once Wagner's fast-flying arms landed hard enough to knock Attell down. Wagner finished the bout in fine condition, whereas Attell's left eye was cut and his nose and mouth bleeding slightly.

They rushed into a clinch immediately the bell sounded for the first round. Attell missed a right for the head, and Wagner shot over a left to the mouth. Each missed hard swings for the jaw, and then Wagner put three chopping lefts and a right to the face. That slowed Attell up for a moment, but he came back again with a left and right to the stomach, and pounded Wagner's kidneys unmercifully in the frequent clinches.

Coming out of a clinch, with which they started the second session, Wagner shot a hard right to the jaw, and then they exchanged a series of hard body punches. Attell put a hard straight left to Wagner's mouth, and then there was some more hugging. They swapped heavy left and right swings to the face. Just as the bell sounded they wrestled each other to the floor.

The third was marked by wild fighting, in which Wagner had the better of it. Following a prolonged clinch Wagner sent three left swings and a hard right to the jaw, and Attell went to his knees, but was up almost instantly. Attell then shot a hard left jab to the face. Just before the gong Wagner landed a stinging left hook on Attell's nose.

Wagner started the fourth with a hard short right to the jaw. Each missed repeatedly with swings intended for the face. Wagner stopped a hard right with his stomach and returned the compliment in kind. The fifth saw Attell force the fighting until just before the bell, and then Wagner, fighting like a madman, landed hard left swings to the head and a right hook to the stomach.

The sixth and seventh rounds were uneventful, both boys being a bit tired, and the pace therefore dropping a little. But the eighth was a whirlwind affair, punctuated with hard exchanges and terrific punching. Wagner used his shift to great advantage throughout the round, repeatedly landing hard left and right swings on Attell's face and jaw. A sharp mix-up along the ropes saw Attell emerge with a damaged left eye, from which the blood ran freely, and a pair of lips that were also bleeding. Just as the bell sounded Wagner staggered Attell with a terrific left hook to the jaw.

The ninth was tame compared with the eighth round, but it was a rattling good session for all that. Wagner reopened the wound over Attell's eye, and that bothered the latter considerably. The tenth saw both throw caution to the winds and sail in, each trying for a knockout. Neither, for that very reason, landed any appreciable number of clean blows, and both were strong when the final gong sounded.

Al Lynch, the Canadian bantamweight, earned a decision over "Young" Wagner in the ten-round semi-final. The latter should twice have been disqualified for fouls, once hitting Lynch after he had slipped to the floor and was still down, and once for very deliberately punching Lynch for some time after the gong had signaled the end of the fifth round. In the tenth Wagner tripped and threw his opponent, and was roundly hissed for it. Lynch made an excellent impression.

Zybysko Wins Bout at Buffalo.

BUFFALO, April 27.—Zybysko, the Polish wrestler, had no trouble in disposing of Cara Ezet, the latest arrival from Turkey, in two straight falls to-night. The time was 20:00 and 9:05.

BOXING AND WRESTLING.

Charley Harvey and Pen Selig, representing Jem Driscoll of England and Abe Attell, met in San Francisco yesterday and completed preliminary arrangements for the meeting of the two featherweights for the world's title. It will be fought at Coffroth's arena at Colma, and the fighters will weigh in at 126 pounds four hours before the fight. This is the recognized featherweight limit in England. The date of the meeting has not yet been decided on.

James Singelyn of Detroit will offer a purse of $20,000 to bring together Frank Gotch, the world's heavyweight wrestling champion, and Stanislaus Zybysco, the Polish champion. If Detroit gets the match it is planned to hold it in the daytime at Bennett Park, the home of the Detroit baseball team.

Henri Piat, lightweight champion of France, and Benny Yanger will meet to-night at the Long Acre Athletic Association. Both men are in good shape for the go, and there is much interest among ring followers in the Frenchman's debut.

The fight between Cyclone Johnny Thompson and "Chick" Hudson at Oakland Tuesday night was stopped by the referee in the eighth round. Thompson had his opponent practically out.

Half a dozen four-round bouts will be one of the features of the big benefit, which is to be given for Young Corbett at the Fairmont Athletic Club. Among the boxers who will meet are Unk Russell and Sammy Smith, Jack Reardon and Young Otto, Eddie Stinger and Fighting Joe Nelson, Charley Harvey and Johnny Daily, Fred Kelly and Joe Bedell, and Young Erne and Johnny Marto. Spike Robson and Danny Duane will give a burlesque boxing match.

The newest incorporated boxing organization is the Lehigh Athletic Club, which will open its doors on next Saturday night in the new building at 169th Street and the Boston Road, the Bronx. There will be six bouts, including a ten-round bout between Neil Reagan of Ireland and Nathan Erlich of Philadelphia.

Now that the Ketchel-Langford fight is a thing of the past, Tommy Murphy and Abe Attell take the middle of the pugilistic stage and are the centre of interest to local fight fans. The boys are in condition for their ten-round contest at the Empire Athletic Club, 155th Street and Eighth Avenue, to-night, and judging from the numerous applications for reservations that have been received by the McMahon boys, a record crowd of members will undoubtedly turn out to see the pair in action. This will be the second meeting between them. Murphy and Attell boxed six rounds in Philadelphia a little over five years ago, and Attell was said to have the better of it at the end. However, Murphy was coming strong when the bell ended the contest, and it was predicted that in a longer contest he would defeat Attell. He will get his chance to-night.

JEFF'S BOXING BEE AGAIN POSTPONED

Fighter Goes to Santa Cruz to Have a Boil on His Back Lanced.

BEN LOMOND, Cal., April 27.—Plainly in an anxious mood and gloomy because of the enforced postponement of a boxing bee with Joe Choynski, Jim Jeffries was taken in an automobile from his training camp to Santa Cruz this afternoon for the purpose of having a boil on his back lanced.

Jeffries's old trouble has returned to him, the trouble that caused the postponement of his match with Munroe. While nothing serious is feared as a result of the eruption it has been causing a great deal of worry around the camp for the last few days, and the ex-champion himself has been in a feverish state of mind.

According to Manager Sam Berger there is nothing to worry about. He explained that Jeffries had been poulticing the sore spot for some time, and all that was necessary to effect a rapid and permanent cure was the knife of a surgeon.

Jeffries had planned to box a warm set-to with Choynski and Armstrong, and a number of visitors were on hand to see the workout. Berger entered the gymnasium just before the programme began and made his announcement.

Notwithstanding his trouble, Jeffries was on the road for his usual ten-mile spin this morning. He skipped the rope for half an hour.

Acting upon the advice of her doctors Mrs. Jeffries will not return to camp this week, greatly to her husband's disappointment. She is recovering rapidly, but it is thought unwise to move her for the present.

Keogh Wins in Pool Match.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 27.—Charles Safford of Chicago, challenger for the pool championship held by Jerome Keogh of Rochester, was badly defeated, the final score being 600 for the champion and 493 for the Chicago player. At the opening of the third night of play Keogh had a lead of only one ball. This he rapidly increased by some big runs, while Safford was unable to do anything.

Blackfish have been quite numerous around the stone pile at Manhattan Beach during the past week. On Monday James Stephens and John Baker of the Eureka Fishing Club of Brooklyn caught fourteen, weighing from three-quarters of a pound to one pound and three-quarters each.

After leaving Billy Grolz's headquarters at the Raunt on Sunday and rowing about half a mile from the trestle, Capt. Dick Philbin of the Eagle Fishing Club of Brooklyn encountered a school of flounders, and when he wound up his line for the day had landed thirteen nice ones.

Fishermen around Tottenville have been making good catches of flounders, and a few blackfish have been taken in Raritan Bay. Walter Scott, George Hinman, and Tom Sherrill went there from St. George on Sunday, and picked up a nice collection made up of twenty-two flounders and ten blackfish.

ELECTRIC CARS ECONOMICAL.

Recent Run of Healey Machine to Philadelphia Proves Its Value.

Electrically propelled vehicles have reached a stage of perfection that is creating considerable interest in automobile circles. The possibilities of the electric machine were recently demonstrated in the run of the Healey car from New York to Philadelphia in seven and a half hours with enough current remaining in the batteries for an additional ten to fifteen miles. This machine was a fully equipped full-sized brougham and weighed, with passengers, 3,840 pounds. The average speed for the ninety odd miles being fourteen miles an hour.

The future of the electric car seems assured. Experiments during the past decade have led to a steady advance in its mechanical construction and can be run at an exceptionally low cost of maintenance. The Healey car contains all the essentials of the perfect car, and Gen. Healey, the head of the manufacturing company, believes it has a big future. In describing the car yesterday he said it was not only ideal for city and suburban service, but is clean, quiet, and luxurious, equal if not greater to cars of other motive power. He pointed out many of the advantages and features. The driving and steering of the car are combined in the forward wheels in a new and novel manner.

The motor with single gear reduction is located under the driver's footboard, thus giving ample space for batteries under the front and rear seats, without affecting the body design. This equalization of weight and simplicity of mechanical construction results in high efficiency. The bearings are so constructed that friction is reduced almost to a minimum and the waste of power is largely eliminated.

QUAKER RUNNERS CUT DOWN AT PLATE

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—The Giants played a great game behind Mathewson here to-day and broke up the home team's winning streak of seven straight victories by downing Philadelphia in a closely fought game, 3 to 2. It was only the lightning fast work of the New York infield that saved the peerless pitcher in the second and third innings, when two fast double plays got Matty out of bad holes after the bases were filled. Four of the Phillies were stabbed at the plate by Meyers just as they were within touch of scoring, and some of the decisions were so close that the crowd of Quakers became highly incensed at Umpire Klem. New York's defensive work in the infield was wonderful, and although there were errors, none of them came at the critical moments of play.

In the second inning it looked bad for the Giants. Knabe walked and Doolan bunted for a sacrifice, but Matty tossed low to second. Dooin singled, filling the bases. McQuillan laid a bunt in front of the plate and Meyers recovered it in time to force Knabe coming from third. Titus hit a hot grounder to Mathewson, who fired it at Meyers, forcing Doolan at the pan, and Meyers relayed it over to Merkle like a rocket and nailed Titus.

Again in the third the Phillies threatened an upheaval. Bates ambled and Grant batted out a single. Magee bunted, and when Matty foozled the ball everybody was safe and the bases were loaded. Ward struck out. Knabe hit a roller to Merkle, who tossed the ball to Meyers, getting Bates at the plate. Meyers whipped the ball back to first in quick order, Bridwell getting it in time to hang the crepe on Knabe. This was the second close shave in which fast fielding saved Matty.

The Giants became prominently concerned in the scoring in the fourth. Seymour singled and Bridwell drew a walk. Devlin sacrificed and Seymour tallied on Merkle's sacrifice fly to Magee. In the next inning New York scored a couple more. Mathewson succumbed at first after he grounded to Knabe. Josh Devore singled and stole second. Doyle flied to Magee and Devore shifted to third. Murray's double scored Devore and the red-head himself came home when Seymour doubled.

It was in this same inning that Philadelphia cut loose and threw a big scare into the Giants' camp. Bates singled and Doyle cut down Grant at first. Magee hit to the right field fence for two bases, scoring Bates. Ward banged a grounder to Bridwell, which bounced off his chest into Doyle's hands, and Ward was thrown out at first. Knabe walked. Meyers threw wild to catch Magee at third and the runner trotted home. Knabe also tried to stretch his way to the plate, but was declared out by Klem on a close decision. The crowd of Philadelphia fans immediately became violently outspoken against Mr. Klem's eyesight. Both McQuillan and Matty settled down and in the remaining innings there was no more scoring. McIntire Shuts Out Pirates.

CHICAGO, April 27.—Chicago defeated Pittsburg 1 to 0 in a hard-fought game to-day. McIntire, recently secured from Brooklyn, pitched brilliantly with men on bases, and held the losers safely all the way. The hitting of Hofman, who made two doubles and a single, and the fielding of Beaumont and Hofman were features. Pitcher Reulbach, who has been ill with diphtheria for some time, reported to Chicago to-day. Score:

COLLEGE BASEBALL.

Fordham, 4; Niagara, 0.

Fordham defeated Niagara University nine on Fordham Field yesterday in a listless game by the score of 4 to 0. Fordham broke into the run column in the third inning. McCaffrey, first man up, walked. He stole second, went to third after Kelleher caught Quinn's foul fly, and scored on McCarthy's sacrifice fly to left. Fordham scored again in the fourth. Capt. Mahoney opened with an infield hit to short, and by fast sprinting he made third on Schiess's long single to left. Schiess was caught off first, and Mahoney tallied the Maroons' second run on this play. Niagara had first and second bases occupied in the fifth, with one down. Kelleher hit to right, but Sharkey covered lots of ground and made a spectacular put-out. Fordham scored two runs in the eighth on three hits and an error. McCaffrey's catch of a foul fly in the third was the game's bright feature. The score:

West Point Blanks Yale.

WEST POINT, N. Y., April 27.—By hitting when a hit meant a run and by spectacular fielding, West Point prevented Yale from scoring and won by a score of 3 to 0 here to-day. In the first inning it looked as if Yale would score when Whiteside's bad throw gave Merritt first and second bases and he reached third on a steal. In the second Coy walked and got to third on another wild throw by Whiteside, but Hyatt's curves and the support behind him were too much, and Yale never had another chance. West Point failed to locate Tommers until the fourth inning, when two nicely bunched hits scored the first run. In the seventh a hit, a pass, and a passed ball gave the Army another, and a two-bagger in the eighth scored Lyman. The score:

Columbia, 10; Stevens, 1.

Columbia found little trouble in disposing of the Stevens Institute nine on South Field yesterday afternoon, running up in six innings a score of 10 to 1. Stevens found it necessary to put three men in the box in an attempt to check the Morningside team, but even with Coleman, their best pitcher, twirling in the sixth inning, Columbia succeeded in bringing in three runs. Columbia started to score in the first inning, when O'Connell was forced in by a base on balls to Shibley. Sanders followed soon afterward on Saunder's error. The greatest haul, however, for the Height's players was in the second inning, when four men crossed the plate. This period of scoring was only checked by a double play on Stevens's part. In the fourth inning Mann tipped out a single off O'Neale. Bruce took his place and got second on Shibley's error and scored on Lang's muff out in right field. This was Stevens's only run. Columbia went out one, two, three in the fourth and failed to score in the fifth, but in the sixth scored three runs on four clean hits. The game was called at the end of this period on account of rain. The score:

SHOWER BREAKS UP YANKS' GAME ON HILL

They Were Lucky, Too, Because the Athletics Were Running Away with It.

A minor league deluge struck American League Park yesterday in the fifth inning when the Athletics were just commencing to stack up runs on the Yankees. Cy Morgan and Jim Vaughan were the opposing slabmen, and both teams went out in rapid order for three innings. In the fourth inning Baker scored on a double steal which came just before Murphy spanked a grounder to Knight. All this time a mass of black clouds was gathering over the hilltop.

In the first of the fifth, with one down, Livingston walked, Morgan and Hartsel singled, and they scored on Oldring's hit to centre. Oldring got out after taking too big a lead off second. Then the rain came down in torrents, and stopped the contest, and as the required number of innings had not been played, it was no game.

The rain checks are good. Hurrah for the rain!

A crowd of nearly 8,000 hurried down town and found that the storm didn't land below 110th Street at all.

Cleveland Wins at Home.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 27.—Cleveland won its first home game of the season to-day by defeating Chicago 3 to 2. The winning run was scored by Krueger in the ninth inning. He started with a single, and Turner sacrificed. Lajoie was passed purposely, and Stovall singled to right, scoring Krueger. Krueger also scored the run that tied the score in a most peculiar way. He reached first when his third strike was a wild pitch, stole second and third, and scored on Payne's bad throw. Score:

Newark Pulls Out in Ninth.

With defeat staring them in the face, the Indians made a brave stand against the Montreal team in the ninth inning of the game at Newark yesterday, batted in two runs, and won by the score of 5 to 4. The score was 4 to 3 in Montreal's favor when the last half of the ninth inning began. Zimmerman started the trouble by lacing out a double to left. Agler laid down a bunt. Pitcher Jones threw to Cockill, but the latter dropped the throw. Crisp drove a sharp hounder to Jones, who threw to Smith for a double play. The latter failed to touch second base, and Crisp beat the ball to first. The bases were filled. Meyer's grounder forced Zimmerman at the plate. Hearne was sent in to bat for Mueller, but fouled to Yeager. Kelly was hit and Agler was forced in with the tying run. Ganley bunted safely toward first, and Crisp dashed across the plate with the winning run. The score:

SCRIMMAGE TAKES WOODHAVEN STAKES

The luck of John W. Schorr with discarded horses from the great stable of James R. Keene was an inspiring feature of the racing at the Aqueduct track yesterday, and the good fortune of the Memphis turfman with his recently acquired Keene castoffs touched the acme of triumph, when, on Scrimmage in the stake fixture, which was the big event of the card, the Schorr colors were brought past the winning post first before Twickenham, running for Keene in his own white and blue spots, while one other horse of Mr. Keene's breeding, Ladasette, a winner earlier in the meeting, and a warm favorite in yesterday's race, was behind him.

Mr. Schorr, for a number of years a leading owner on the Western turf, who also raced extensively on the New York tracks, has just returned to racing on the Eastern turf, and aside from his victory with the Keene discard, Scrimmage, in the Woodhaven Stakes, following his triumph in the Carter Handicap, the first of the season's important handicaps, with Gretna Green, figured largely in yesterday's affairs as the development of a bid up on Scrimmage, after he won the star event of the programme.

Scrimmage was in the middle of the field when the start was made, with Lulu of F. R. Hitchcock's entry, which included Whin, off in front, but Scrimmage soon ran up with the leader. Though hard pressed for a great part of the four and a half furlongs distance, Scrimmage ran straight and true and won, ridden out, three parts of a length in front of Moncrief, well up all the way, which beat Lulu a head for the place in the last strides. When Scrimmage was put up at auction, entered to sell at $2,000, George Reed, said to be agent for Thomas Shaw, bid on the winner, sending the price up to $2,800, the horse then being bought in by his owner for a further advance of $5. After the bidding up Mr. Schorr made a statement, connecting Shaw in positive language with efforts to intimidate him.

Mr. Schorr stated that while the Jacksonville (Fla.) Winter meeting was in progress, Shaw, at Jacksonville, wrote him a letter warning him against running horses in selling races and threatening that the Schorr horses would be bid up whenever they did run in the selling classes. Mr. Schorr has not yet made formal complaint to the Stewards of The Jockey Club, but it is about certain that Shaw will have an explanation to make. Shaw, formerly bookmaker and noted for his heavy betting operations last season, is not known as a horse owner, but there was no secret about Reed acting as his agent in the bidding up of Scrimmage.

In the racing it was a day for triumphs by castoffs. Duilcare, weeded out of August Belmont's stable, rather cleverly won the opening race. O. F. Fleischmann's Dandelion, a one-time Saratoga handicap winner, showed something like his old quality when, in a stoutly run brush at the finish, he won the selling seven furlongs in 1:27 4-5. Though the speedy veteran was entered to sell for $700, he went back to his stable without a bid. Danger Mark won the purse for maiden two-year-olds all the way for the Newcastle Stable, and Ardri was never headed in the mile race, though Zienan, pressed him hard at the end. Jeanne d'Arc ran over her field in the first race and won just as she pleased. The summaries:

Roosevelt League Games.

The Roosevelt Athletic League will hold its annual games on Saturday night at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory. This league, consisting of Public Schools 19, 40, 27, 14, 43, and 18, is the strongest, athletically, in the city. Public School 19, the present champion, will have no easy task retaining its laurels, because of the determined opposition of 40 and 27. A new incentive that will spur the boys to more strenuous efforts is a trophy dedicated to the league by Dr. Charles T. Caulfield of the Irish-American Athletic Club. In addition to the athletic contest there is a singing competition, in which ninety-one voices from each school will take part.

Lawrence Park Club Opening.

At a meeting of the Lawrence Park Country Club held last Monday at the club house the opening date for both club houses and course was set for Wednesday, May 11. The formal house-warming and reception will be held Saturday, May 14, and the honor of driving the first golf ball will be decided by lot. Work on the links is progressing favorably under the direction of Tom Chrisholm, the club professional, who was formerly with the Eastbourne Club, England, and the Canoe Club of Summit, N. J. A scratch tournament will be held Saturday, May 14, and all members are urged to play, as the scores will be the basis for handicaping. Three cups are offered for this event by the Board of Governors.

An owner tries his VELIE on Fort George Hill

New York.
Gentlemen:—

It might interest you to know that on Saturday last I went up Fort George Hill with four people in the car and was agreeably surprised to see the car gain speed in going up. In fact, it was going fully five miles faster at the top than it was at the bottom. I believe that if I had rushed the hill I could have gained the top close to 35 miles an hour with the four people, top and windshield.

Trusting this may be of some interest to you, I am

Very truly yours,

Any VELIE owner can do the same. Isn't it time for you to investigate the VELIE?

RAILROADS WORRY OVER GRAIN TRADE

MEANWHILE WAGES GO UP

Department of Agriculture Co-operating with Railroads to Resettle Abandoned Farms of New England.

The United States will not be able to export a bushel of wheat, oats, rye, barley, or other grain by 1913, unless consumption in this country decreases, which is not probable, or unless the production increases more rapidly than it has for some years, according to President W. C. Brown of the New York Central Railroad.

In this statistical information President Brown, Congressman Bennet, and other speakers at a meeting of railroad men, legislators, and agriculturists, held yesterday in the Produce Exchange, saw a condition of affairs in this country which made them uneasy. Bound up with the comparative decadence of agriculture is the higher cost of living, the increase of $100,000,000 in wages which the railroads of the country have been compelled to make recently, and the matter of strikes in the future.

"President Brown has told of the increase of $100,000,000 in railway wages," said Congressman Bennet. "What is to come when these increases cannot be made any more, or when decreases will have to be ordered, and when, nevertheless, the food products, by reason of their continuous decrease and the increase of population, keep on increasing in price? If the trend of production and consumption in this country cannot be changed I see turmoil, riot, and bloodshed."

He stopped to say that Secretary of Agriculture Wilson had done more good for this country in his twelve years of service in office than all the Admirals and all the Generals this country ever had, and this judgment was received with tremendous applause.

"It seems to me," said President Brown, "that the most important subject now pressing for consideration is this question of improved agricultural conditions—intelligent farming. In my opinion it overshadows in importance the tariff, the regulation of corporations, and all other questions of public policy."

The meeting at which these speakers spoke was called by such men as President Brown to consider the improvement of agriculture in New York State.

The meeting passed this resolution, which summarizes the the purport of the many speeches delivered yesterday:

Whereas, The increasing price of food products is largely due to the unequal distribution of our population as between cities and farms, and

Whereas, The correct solution of the problem thus presented is imperative for our present and future well being, and

Whereas, There is a pronounced desire among the citizens of the State of New York to assist the constituted officials, National as well as State, in their efforts to increase the productivity of our farming lands, and

Whereas, A most serious cause of the diminishing supply of foodstuffs in proportion to the increasing demand is the general lack of interest in agricultural pursuits and the scarcity of farm labor, and

Whereas, Desirable immigration in the persons of thrifty agriculturists would be a blessing to the State in helping to develop and increase its agricultural output, and it is equally as desirable to encourage a movement of our own people from our cities and larger towns back to the farm, and

Whereas, There are in this State available for more intense cultivation hundreds of thousands of acres of fertile land obtainable at lower rates than equally as good land in States further west, lands which are near settled communities, with the advantages of easily available church, school, and market facilities, and all other conveniences which tend to make country life more attractive; therefore, be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of this association that some definite plan of action should be developed whereby existing facilities for bringing the people to the land and the land to the people may be utilized in the most effective manner, and every method by legislative or administrative order tending to that end assist the farmer to a knowledge and practice of the methods best calculated to improve and conserve the soil and to market his products has our cordial approval, and will receive our earnest co-operation.

In calling the meeting to order President Ring of the Produce Exchange remarked that there are in this State only 225,000 farmers, the population of the whole State being eight or nine million people.

Secretary Wilson said that he had made some speeches in halls of considerable size, but he had never been called upon to speak in an auditorium as big as an acre lot. He said he would talk about conservation of farming soil, that being, in his opinion, by far the most important of all the conservation topics.

"The fact that population increases faster than food sets us thinking," said Secretary Wilson. "We cannot afford to buy food from foreign countries. The balances of trade for goods bought and sold since the civil war, independent of farm products, have been heavily against us during that time, and have been paid for by exports from the farm.

"If the factory and the shop are to sell abroad to square accounts without a farm surplus, they must produce cheap enough to compete with shop and factory abroad. It will be a new day when we have to do that, if ever, and we shall have new subjects to talk about unheard of in our land.

"Some far-seeing men say this condition is not far distant. I have not yet given up hope of preventing it. The major part of our people in the East are being fed from the Mississippi Valley, and the States of the South draw much from the same source. I am well satisfied that the soils of that valley are being subjected gradually to the same unwise treatment that so seriously reduced the soils east of the Alleghenies and south of the Ohio."

Secretary Wilson explained how the raising of grain is closely bound up with the price of meats. It is all very well, he said, for people to talk about living on boiled cabbage and bread; but folks who do anything big in the world eat beef. He did not encourage vegetarianism; he wanted cheaper and better and more beef for Americans.

Assistant Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor Cable said that between 3,000 and 5,000 immigrants come into this port every day, many of whom are farmers, who would be glad to get work on farms if they knew how to go about it. In the past the department had had about all it could do to keep out the most undesirable immigrants, but now it had begun to look after the proper distribution of the immigrants after they got here. An office had already been established here, he said, to help with this work, and the department was now sending off about 100 farm helpers a day to New York farms. He was sure that this branch of work would increase its usefulness.

President Brown was pessimistic about the decadence of farming in the State. Between 1880 and 1900, he said, farming acreage in New York had decreased more than 4 per cent.; improved acreage had decreased more than 12 per cent.; unimproved acreage more than 16 per cent.; farm buildings had decreased in value 19 per cent., and farm land had decreased per acre at the rate of more than 11 per cent.

While most of the immigrants that come to this country go into sweatshops or into industrial work of one kind and another, President Brown said that Canada had reported last year that 163,798 of America's best farming people had left the country for Canada, carrying with them $41,000,000. He didn't mind the money, but he mourned the loss of those American families. He went on:

"Statistics show that there are 16,000 square miles of practically abandoned farms in New England, New York, and the Southeast and Middle Central States. They show that there are in the United States at present 10,000,000 acres of practically abandoned farm land, an area as large as the cultivated part of the Canadian Northwest, or twice the size of the State of Massachusetts.

"In my opinion, it overshadows in importance the tariff, the regulation of corporations, and all other questions of public policy, and, while these important subjects should not be lost sight of, this great question of the conservation, improvement, and intelligent cultivation of the soil of the Nation should be given first place."

GERMANS BUILD COKE PLANT.

Deutsche Bank Financing a Rival to Steel Trust at South Bethlehem.

Two of the largest German manufacturing concerns, backed by the Deutsche Bank of Berlin, are perfecting plans for the establishment of a seven-million-dollar coke oven and by-product plant in this country, which is expected to rival that of the United States Steel Corporation at Gary, Ind. The plant is to be built almost entirely with German capital. It is to be located at South Bethlehem, Penn., adjoining the Bethlehem Steel Company, and next to the one at Gary will probably be the largest in the world.

The land has already been procured and a construction company is now being organized. The German manufacturing concerns, which, with the Deutsche Bank of Berlin are financing the project, are said to be the Berlin Anhaltische Maschinbau Stock Company, which is known as the largest trust in that country, and is engaged in the manufacture of gas there, and the Didier Company of Stettin, which manufactures fire clay materials.

It was stated last night that contracts for the erection of the plant and the installation of machinery have been made during the last few days by Frederick J. Mayer, general manager of the Didier Company of New York, and David B. Corse, formerly a member of the Advisory Committee of the United States Steel Corporation. Paul Mankiewitz, a Managing Director of the Deutsche Bank of Berlin, is at present in this country attending to the details of organization.

A large number of patents for modern machinery used in the manufacture of coke by-products are controlled by the two German companies. The latest designs of coal handling and coal crushing machinery are to be installed, and within a year the works are expected to be in operation.

It is proposed to supply coke and gas in large quantities to the Bethlehem Steel Company, and it is understood that arrangements to this end have already been made with Charles M. Schwab.

Several other large blast furnaces in the region of South Bethlehem will also be supplied by the new coke oven and by-product plant. There will also be manufactured there tar and its by-products, sulphate of ammonia, and many other commercial articles which are derived from coal.

Coal briquettes will also be produced for the American market by the new concern when it gets going. These will be made by a new process protected by patents held by one of the German manufacturing concerns, which are behind the new enterprise.

The proposed plan at South Bethlehem will give employment to about 1,000 men at the start, it is said, and the daily production of coke is expected to be about 4,000 tons. According to the German companies, 550 coke ovens will be constructed, each with a capacity of ten tons a day. The erection of these ovens will begin as soon as the construction company is completely organized.

The announcement in South Bethlehem that a new coke and coal by-products plant was to be erected there is said to have caused some anxiety to the smaller coke ovens in that section of Pennsylvania.

Those who are financing the concern say that the Western Maryland Railroad is planning an extension of its line to Bethlehem, and that in the near future ample railroad facilities will be within reach.

GAYNOR CHECKS A BILL.

Finds 6-Cent Valve Wheels Cost $1.50 Each, and Orders a Graft Trial.

The Mayor sent a letter to Commissioner of Correction Whitney yesterday calling his attention to the fact that his purchasing agent and the Warden of the Harlem Prison, recently certified the purchase of some valve wheels at $1.50 each which could be bought in the market for 6 cents. He also directed the Commissioner to institute a general investigation in his department to see if such things were usual.

Here is the Mayor's letter:

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR.
April 27, 1910.

Sir—The Controller calls my attention to a bill against your department, dated March 25, by the Kenny Manufacturing Company, for one dozen 1½-inch iron valve wheels at $1.50 each, total $18. He has sent out in the market and is able to buy them freely at 6 cents apiece. You will please forthwith put on trial the purchasing agent, J. C. Long, and the Prison Warden, Peter A. Mallon, who certified to the correctness of the order and the bill, and dismiss them from the department summarily, unless you can bring to me some good reason to the contrary.

The thing seems to be very scandalous, and I am not able to perceive the slightest excuse for it. Any one looking at the little iron wheel about four inches in diameter would know that it could not cost $1.50. Meanwhile I shall expect you to look over your entire department and see if such things are not occurring everywhere. Such miserable thievery has to be got rid of in some way. Very truly yours,

W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

Patrick A. Whitney, Esq.,
Commissioner of Correction.

The Commissioner came down to see the Mayor at the City Hall as soon as he received the letter. He told him that he had ordered Long and Mallon suspended, and would investigate the matter at once.

AUTOMOBILES MUSTN'T SMOKE

Health Board Amends Its Code to Forbid the Nuisance After July 1.

By an amendment to the Sanitary Code, adopted yesterday, the Board of Health believes it will be able to stop the use of smoking automobiles in city streets. That owners may have time to make any changes necessary to comply with the regulations it was made operative July 1.

The solution of the smoke problem was arrived at by adding the words "automobile" and "automobile enginemen" to Section 181 of the Sanitary Code, which now reads:

> No persons shall cause, suffer, or allow dense smoke to be discharged from any building, vessel, stationary or locomotive engine, or automobile, place, or premises within the City of New York, or upon waters adjacent thereto, within the jurisdiction of said city. All persons participating in any violation of this provision, either as proprietors, owners, tenants, managers, superintendents, captains, engineers, firemen, or automobile enginemen, or otherwise shall be liable therefore.

Health Commissioner Lederle said yesterday that an official statement of how the new regulation will be enforced will be sent to garages and auto owners.

MUSICAL PET RESIGNS.

Knickerbocker's Red-Cheeked Violinist Quits in a Huff.

Jacques Jacobs, leader of the orchestra at the Hotel Knickerbocker, has resigned. The musician was missing from his accustomed place last night, and inquiry by patrons of the restaurant and grill revealed that he had packed up his violin and left the hotel yesterday in a huff.

Just what the trouble was could not be learned definitely last night. James B. Regan, proprietor of the Knickerbocker, is in Philadelphia, and none of the employes of the hotel would venture an explanation.

Jacobs has been a familiar figure at the hotel all Winter long. He has round, rosy cheeks, long curly hair, and a beloved violin. When he arrived here from Holland last Fall it was announced that he was under contract to play at the Knickerbocker for several seasons.

It was said last night that some of the fashionable patrons of the grill had struck up an acquaintance with the violinist, and that it was no unusual sight to see Jacobs sitting at one of the tables, enjoying a cigarette with his friends between musical selections.

Mrs. Frank Gould, it is said, was among the patrons of the grill who admired Jacobs's playing. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lehr also admired his playing.

CENSUS MAN TACKLES THE PARK SLEEPERS

Not Prolific of Information When Aroused from Their Bench Slumbers.

TEN PER CENT. WERE WOMEN

These as Reluctant as the More Prosperous of Their Sex to Tell How Old They Are—Wild West Visited Also.

Some of them, angry at being awakened from drowsy reveries, and others proud to learn that they were of consequence enough to have their names enumerated, the occupants of park benches last night gave information to the census men.

In squads of four the assistants of Census Enumerator Albert Falck visited the parks, one man in each squad being familiar with some particular foreign language. A policeman accompanied each squad, but he had to be called upon only once or twice.

The yield in the parks was surprisingly low, the average number of people claiming the benches as their homes being less than fifty to each park. About 10 per cent. of these were women, who seemed much more reluctant than the men to tell their ages, occupations, and places of birth. In some cases unexpected bits of humor were encountered by the enumerators. Bryant Egan, 39 years old, dressed in a coat that was held together by large pins, was roused from a sound sleep on a bench that faced the

"Have you had your name taken?" asked the census man.

"Yes," Egan replied, "twice."

"Where?"

"Over on the island."

He was asked to give it again, and did so, when the enumerators turned to a woman who was sound asleep near by.

"What's your name?" she was asked.

"Me noime?" she repeated in a voice that indicated that if she had tried to walk she would have been unable to do so; "me noime—it's Mud."

"And your first name?"

"Nawthin'—just plain Mud."

The policeman with the brass buttons was brought up at that point and suggested that the station house would be a nice place to talk things over. Then she gave her name as Kittie Anderson.

While his assistants worked in the public Parks Supervisor Falck was busy in Madison Square Garden listing up the Indians, Cossacks, and cowboys of the Buffalo Bill show. At first Mr. Falck could make no headway, but finally Col. Cody sent word to the Sioux chief, Iron Tail, that it was all right, and he immediately gave information about all of his tribesmen, and passed the word to others to do the same. As the census rules require that live stock be registered it was put down that the Garden shelters some 800 animals, including a buffalo herd, several camels, and four elephants.

Mail Notice.

Postmaster Morgan calls attention to the fact that many letters mailed in the United States addressed for delivery in foreign countries, which are subject to the Postal Union postage rate, are prepaid only 2 cents, the senders of the letters being under the impression, it is presumed, that the two-cent domestic postage rate is applicable to said letters.

As the charges for postage due give rise to much complaint patrons of the Post Office are informed that the only foreign countries to which the two-cent letter rate applies are Canada, Cuba, Mexico, Newfoundland, the Canal Zone, the Republic of Panama, the City of Shanghai, China; Germany, (by direct steamers only,) England, Scotland, Wales, and Ireland. To all other countries the rate is 5 cents for the first ounce or fraction thereof and 3 cents for each additional ounce or fraction thereof, which must be fully prepaid or the letters become liable on delivery to a charge equal to double the amount of the deficient postage. For instance, a single-rate letter prepaid only 2 cents would be subject on delivery to an additional postage charge of 6 cents.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

Pig Iron Output to be Curtailed—Poor Crop Prospects Affect Trade.

The leading trade authorities have little to report of conditions in iron and steel this week that can be encouragingly construed. The attention of the trade is focused on the curtailment of the pig iron output and the prospective and large reduction is expected to have a steadying effect on the present market.

Finished materials are dull, while crop prospects hang in the balance, but encouragement is found in the large sales of rails for export.

The Iron Age says:

> Interest naturally centres in the movement to reduce pig iron output and surplus stocks. In the East, one New Jersey and four Pennsylvania furnaces are preparing to blow out. At a meeting of Mahoning and Shenango Valley furnaces last week it was agreed that the large accumulations call for sharp restriction. It is proposed that the merchant furnaces there bank for thirty days.
>
> Meantime the pig iron market is quieter. Consumers who have predicted a further settling of prices are still waiting, while it is admitted that the adjustment of supply to consumption may now proceed rapidly.
>
> In finished iron and steel the week has been uneventful. It is evident that the crops will be a foremost factor in iron trade calculations for many weeks.
>
> The export rail trade has made up for the lack of domestic demand, the contracts of the week including 18,000 tons for the New South Wales Government and 10,000 tons for the National Railways of Mexico.

The Iron Trade Review says:

> A number of blast furnaces have been blown out during the week, and more will go on the inactive list within a few days.
>
> In pig iron conditions are still depressed, and in finished lines there is not a large volume of new business. There is a large amount of structural material in prospect.
>
> Contracts of the week include a hot metal bridge across the Schuylkill River. Total orders for freight cars awarded during the week amounted to 6,000.

THE COMMODITIES MARKETS.

Grains Make Late Recovery—Provisions Unsettled—Cotton Irregular on Frost Damage Estimates.

The trade in wheat was active all day, with very decided fluctuations in price. The opening was weak. Prices were down 1c to nearly 2c a bushel, with heavy selling on continuation of favorable weather reports and advices that the recent low temperatures did little or no damage. Cables were weak and lower, and the decline brought a lot of stop-order selling into the market. There were a few bad reports during the morning, but no important demand developed until the Kansas State report was given out, following which there was a very sharp advance in values with active covering of shorts. The Kansas State report made a condition of 76, compared with 64 on April 1 by the Government, and 83 last year. The report also stated that 1,940,000 acres had been abondoned. On the report the crop was variously estimated at around 60,000,000 to 65,000,000 bushels. A Kansas paper, however, made a statement that the indications were for a possible maximum of 64,000,000 bushels, with possibilities of little more than 50,000,000. These reports, with statements that the dry cold winds the past few days had been unfavorable for wheat throughout the entire Southwest, brought in a wave of covering and buying which easily carried the market up. Spring wheat advices were quite satisfactory, and the latest reports are that there was little or no damage from cold weather, and that there would be a material increase in area. Cash wheat quoted: No. 2 red, Winter, $1.14 bid, nominal, cost, insurance, and freight; No. 2 red, spot, nominal, $1.14½, free on board afloat for export; No. 1 Northern Duluth, opening, $1.17, nominal; No. 2 hard Winter nominal; No. 1 Northern Manitoba, May, $1.08¼. Exporters reported 27 loads, mainly Manitoba wheat.

Corn was also active and somewhat lower at the opening, apparently influenced by the break in wheat and by reports that the cold wave did very little damage to the crop. The receipts were small, however, and later in the session there was a good recovery in values, with reports of rather moderate country offerings. Prices were also influenced by the strong advance in wheat. Cash corn quoted: No. 2 nominal, elevator, export basis; No. 4, 60½c, nominal, and steamer, 63½c, nominal, elevator, export basis.

Oats were moderately active and lower, with a good deal of selling during the morning on the improved weather conditions and favorable reports regarding the position of the crop. Prices rallied a little in the afternoon, but showed no important advance. Receipts continue liberal and have gained slightly at interior points this week. Cash oats quoted: Natural white, 45½@48c, and white clipped, 46½@52c.

The trade in hog products was somewhat irregular. There was further selling during the morning with very little support. Later, however, on the small movement of hogs and firmness in live hog prices the market showed a good rally, but closed rather unsettled.

COTTON.

The action of the cotton market was a very interesting one. Near-by deliveries were relatively heavy; distant deliveries relatively firm. During the morning there was considerable pressure on the May cotton, and prices sold off rather easily. On the later recovery in the entire market the May delivery showed less gain, and there seemed to be some little pressure on that month. The selling was attributed to effort on the part of scattered longs to get out owing to the heavy movement of cotton to New York, and the very rapid increase of stocks here. In just about a month the stocks have increased 93,000 bales in the certified cotton, and the trade seems to be accepting the belief that the shorts will be able to bring enough cotton here to New York to fill the greater part of the outstanding May contracts. The country, however, has been scoured for this cotton, and 50,000 bales have been brought back from Europe. The bulls, it is claimed, will distribute this cotton into consumption very rapidly when it is delivered, and the real fight will come in the July delivery. The outstanding contracts in July are estimated between 400,000 and 500,000 bales. The weather reports were of more favorable conditions, but the amount of damage done by the cold wave has evidently been material. The freezing temperatures extended into the East Gulf States, and replanting will be necessary to a greater or less extent throughout the entire belt. Seed is scarce, but the scarcity is not believed to be of a prohibitive character.

Southern spot markets unchanged.

COFFEE.

Coffee developed considerable firmness, and prices at the close were 7 to 10 points net higher. Total sales were 23,000 bags, of which 4,000 bags were switches from May to the later positions. About 20,000 May notices were issued, but they were promptly taken up, partly by the same persons who issued them and by carriers or traders, who had bought the May and sold the later positions to take advantage of the differences. The foreign markets were firmer, Havre closing at ¼f advance, while Hamburg was ½ to ¾ pfennig higher. In Brazil Rio was 50 reis lower, and Santos unchanged, while private exchange advanced ⅛d, to 15¼d. The visible supply of Brazilian coffee in and afloat for the United States is 3,210,753 bags, against 3,654,139 bags last year and 3,537,170 bags two years ago.

MORE MONOTYPE CAPITAL.

Stockholders to Vote on Proposal for $1,000,000 New Issue.

Stockholders of the Lanston Monotype Company have been called to a special meeting on May 5, to be held at Alexandria, Va., at which a vote will be taken on a resolution of the Directors that $1,000,000 in stock be offered for subscription. The stock is to be offered to stockholders at $60 per share, if the resolution is approved.

It is part of the $5,000,000 additional authorized last October when the capital was increased from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 and the par value increased from $20 to $100 per share. The purpose of the issue at this time is to supply funds so as to avoid the discounting of bills receivable and to put the company in a position to obtain cash discounts in the purchase of supplies.

Stocks Decline in Late Trading—Call Money Rates, 2⅞@4 Per Cent.

LIQUIDATION IN EVIDENCE

Market Affected by Poor Response to Steel Dividend and the Calling of Loans by Banks.

The weakness in stocks in the late trading on the Stock Exchange yesterday seemed to be due to a variety of causes, some of a purely transitory character and others of more serious import, but the selling itself comprised more liquidation than has been witnessed at any time in the recent past. The Steel dividend having been acted upon after the close of business on Tuesday, Wall Street's interest naturally converged upon the interpretation which the Stock Exchange would put upon the move, particularly so since the earnings of the corporation and its unfilled tonnage fell away somewhat during the quarter. Steel common opened at a substantial advance, and the balance of the market moved in uniformity with the rise. The first price for Steel proved, however, to be the highest of the day, and when it became evident toward the noon hour that considerable amounts of the stock, presumably held for a rise in connection with the dividend increase, were coming upon the market, selling became general in other quarters of the list and slowly drove down prices until in the final hour diminishing support increased the losses to a rather unusual extent. The poor response made by the Steel shares to the declaration of the larger dividend and of the company's policy in respect to future dividends on the common shares was aggravated doubtless by the announcement of the leading iron and steel trade journal in its weekly review that a general movement is under way among pig iron makers to curtail output. It was assumed that this state of affairs among the makers of pig iron could only reflect irregularity in the business in finished materials, and this assumpton naturally offset very largely any assurance of active trade contained in the action of the Directors of the Steel Corporation. Equally important factors in the day's market, however, were the extreme weakness in St. Paul, presumably in connection with the reports that the company is soon to bring out a new and large issue of bonds, and the calling of loans by local banks in a movement to recoup themselves for the very heavy drain sustained by them this week through the takings of gold for export. The decline in St. Paul obviously unsettled holders of other high-class railroad shares, especially where similar new financing is imminent. The movements of commodities markets were reassuring. Cotton prices fell rather sharply, thus confirming the more optimistic reports regarding the damage inflicted by the recent storms in the South, while grain markets broke sharply in the fore part of the day to rally later on speculative buying.

In the course of the calling of loans which went on in the financial district call money rates moved up to 4 per cent., a figure not touched since the early part of the present month. Including their loss to the Sub-Treasury on routine transactions the banks have sustained a drain of above $18,000,000 thus far in the week, and to maintain reserves of adequate proportions they have been compelled to liquidate loans and add to cash. Some difference of opinion exists in banking quarters as to the permanence of the slightly firmer money market, but with the gold export movement practically over and the demands from trade far from excessive there seems little basis for predictions of appreciably higher money.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 27.—The break in the general market to-day had its effect upon the Philadelphia list. New low records were established in both Union Traction and Rapid Transit. Philadelphia Rapid Transit went below any price made since the shares were full paid. Opening at 19⅝, the quotation gradually eased off as the increasing weakness in Wall Street gained headway, and in the last half hour the stock touched 18⅜. Union Traction was the heavier of the two, closing at 46. About 2,800 shares changed hands on the decline, while over 5,000 shares of Rapid were disposed of. Lehigh Valley fell to 113⅛, and the heaviness of Pennsylvania was another depressing influence.

CHICAGO STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 27.—It was a sort of bargain day on the local Exchange. It cannot be said that investors felt keenly disposed to take advantage of the opportunity offered to buy certain stocks at prices that looked cheap alongside of recent quotations. Boxboard was slashed to $6 a share, which is $1 less than the assessment paid a few months ago. The cause of the decline could not be learned. Street's Stable Car Line stock was also a prominent feature in the "marked down" list, dropping from 19 to 13.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The $1,000,000 Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railway first and refunding mortgage 4s, N. W. Harris & Co. report, have all been sold.

P. H. McMillen has been elected a Director of the Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Railway to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Homer A. Stillwell.

The $3,000,000 Missouri, Oklahoma & Gulf 5 per cent. first mortgage bonds, maturing in 1944, which were offered in Paris by the Banque Franco-Americaine at 93, on Tuesday were twice oversubscribed.

Henry Walters, Chairman of the Atlantic Coast Line and Louisville & Nashville boards, left town on Tuesday for a vacation trip to Europe. His trip, it is said, will have no business significance. There is little likelihood that any financing will be done by the roads before Mr. Walters's return.

The Seaboard Air Line 5 per cent. adjustment bond syndicate has been extended for six months, or until next October. The syndicate underwrote the adjustment bonds which were offered to the Seaboard stockholders at 70, taking most of the bonds. Lately, it is reported, it has placed a fairly substantial amount of them.

A $20,000,000 bond and security institution has been organized in Chicago. The Directors include Horace G. Burt, former President of the Union Pacific; Samuel Insull, President of the Commonwealth Edison Company of Chicago; B. E. Sunny, Vice President of the American Telephone Company, and lumber, steel, and gas operators of the Middle West. It was announced that $3,000,000 of the capital has been subscribed, and that a part of the remainder would be offered to the public. The company is to do a wholesale business in bonds and investment securities and to undertake the financing of gas, electric, and steam railroads, timber properties, hydro-electric and irrigation projects.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Steel and the Bears.

When United States Steel common failed to surpass its opening quotation of 84⅝ yesterday morning, and later proved unable to hold its ground above 84, the bearish element on the Stock Exchange promptly came to the conclusion that their theories regarding the motives underlying the dividend increase were correct, and therefore enlarged their operations on the short side. It would be hard to find a case where, with Wall Street so bearish as it is now, any corporation has increased its dividend without provoking the comment that something besides trade conditions inspired the advance. The present is no exception, and traders, in the deepest confidence, exchanged with one another yesterday the names of "big people" who were liquidating not only Steel but other stocks on the strength of the higher dividend. What seems to have been overlooked altogether, is the almost uniform belief of the Street that the dividend was to be increased to the figure fixed. If bearishness did not prevail at the moment, the action of Steel and of the rest of the market would probably be set down to nothing more than the fact that the 5 per cent. rate had been discounted.

St. Paul's Weakness.

St. Paul's weakness has been in evidence since reports began to circulate that the Directors intended to undertake new financing in the form of convertible bonds. It was perhaps worth the traders' while to sell a little St. Paul to help out their operations in other directions, but it is altogether probable that some of the larger holders of the stock who want to take advantage of the expected offer of bonds upon a favorable basis have been putting themselves in funds by means of sales of the stock. In any event, St. Paul's action proves once again how far Wall Street has traveled from the days when expected rights meant the addition of many points to the market price of the shares of the companies concerned.

English Cost of Living.

The April 1 index number of the London Economist shows that our cousins across the Atlantic have been suffering from the effects of the increasing cost of living as well as ourselves. At the end of March the index number of commodity prices under the system followed in the compilation made by the Economist stood at 2,414 compared with 2,396 at the close of the previous month and with 2,176 at the close of March, 1909. Within a year there has been an advance of 238 points, or more than one-tenth of the amount of the index number a year ago. That high costs here, however, are not without their influence upon the cost of living in England is indicated by the fact that part of this advance in the English index number is attributed to the advance in the price of American cotton. Rubber also plays its part in raising the index number as well as in firing the speculative imagination of the English public. Compared with 1907, metals are generally lower, but meats, in England as here, are all higher now than they were three years ago during the period of prosperity which preceded the financial and commercial disturbances of 1907 and 1908.

Start of Freight Rate Increases.

Advances in the freight rate on wool from St. Paul and Duluth to Eastern points were filed with the Inter-State Commerce Commission yesterday. The new will be 10 cents per 100 pounds above the existing rates, which is equivalent to advances of from 15 to 25 per cent. The increases made in these rates attracted more than passing attention yesterday, as they were looked upon as part of the programme to raise freight rates as an offset to the increased cost of operation arising from the increases in wages which have lately been or are now being granted to railroad employes.

Good and Bad Crop News.

The general belief that the last Government crop report of conditions in the Winter wheat belt, coming just before rains which vastly improved conditions, showed the crop at its worst, received some support yesterday in the report of the Kansas Agricultural Department report. Secretary Coburn's estimate puts the Winter wheat conditions at 76, which compares with 64 reported by the Government on April 1. He estimates that 30 per cent. of the Winter planting was killed, leaving 4,532,000 acres growing. The reports of the St. Paul Railway Company's experts are encouraging as far as the cereal crops are concerned, but admit that the recent cold weather has "entirely destroyed fruit crops upon this company's lines." The snow which killed the fruit blossoms has helped wheat, the railroad experts say, and encouraging news is also given of the corn prospects. This crop is going into the ground fully three weeks ahead of the average season.

Oil Stock on 'Change.

Among the securities admitted to listing on the Stock Exchange yesterday were the $40,000,000 capital stock of the Associated Oil Company, the first oil stock on the board. Until the discovery of the Far Western fields New York had not seen speculation in oil shares since the days before the Standard Oil Company, when the trading in this class of securities was sufficiently active to warrant the formation of a special exchange, which went into the Consolidated Stock and Petroleum Exchange, now the Consolidated Stock Exchange. The Associated Oil Company has been known as a Harriman enterprise, and the Southern Pacific became the owner of a large block of its capital about the time that Mr. Harriman saw it would be economical to introduce oil fuel on his Pacific systems.

Reassuring the Cotton Market.

It was not with unmixed feelings that the cotton bulls, whose leaders have been involved by the Government in a Grand Jury investigation, read yesterday the "reassuring" statement issued by the Department of Justice to the effect that the action recently taken by the department against he cotton pool should not be construed as an attack on legitimate operations on any of the commodity exchanges. This, the bulls contended, was very much like maintaining that the declaration of war was not an unfriendly act. Recalling the effect which the institution of the Grand Jury proceedings had had on the market, the bulls were inclined to the view that if the Department of Justice really was the friend of the cotton bull, it had succeeded very well in concealing the fact. As one disgruntled bull, apostrophizing the Department of Justice, put it:

> "'Tis all very well to dissemble your love,
> But why did you kick me down stairs?"

COPPER HANDBOOK OUT.

Tells All About 7,551 Mines and Mining Companies.

Horace J. Stevens has published the 1910 edition of the Copper Handbook, which gives extensive information regarding copper mining companies.

No less than 7,551 mines and mining companies are analyzed in this book, which includes data regarding copper mining companies not only in the United States but all over the world.

Besides giving such facts as the location, capitalization, personnel of the management, &c., of these thousands of companies the Copper Handbook also gives the extent of the development at the various mines and the average character of the ore.

In addition to this, the publication contains a history of copper and has chapters devoted to the geology, metallurgy, mining, and uses of copper, with much other similar information.

ADVERTISING IN THE SUBWAY.

Contract for New Tunnels Puts It in Utilities Board's Hands.

Every magazine and periodical publisher in the city is highly pleased over a clause in the new Subway contract, recently made public by the Public Service Commission, which gives that body absolute jurisdiction over all advertising.

This is aimed to prevent the abuses which have cropped out in the present Subway in this connection, particularly the matter called to the attention of the commission a few weeks ago by several publishers, who declared that their magazines were excluded from the Subway and elevated newsstands because they would not enter into an advertising contract with Ward & Gow, who hold the exclusive privilege from the Interborough Company.

Last February the Ainslee Magazine Company and Street & Smith, publishers of Ainslee's Magazine, the People's Magazine, the Popular Magazine, and Smith's Magazine, appeared before the commission as complainants against Ward & Gow, alleging that they had been approached by a representative of the company, who requested them to enter into a contract with it to pay $45 a month, or $15 each, for three of the magazines for advertising space in the Subway and on the elevated, and that when they declined to sign the contract the four magazines were excluded from all the newsstands on the road. The complainants said that they had appealed to the Interborough without success, and, therefore, presented their case to the commission.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 27.—The strength shown in the New York market as a result of the increase in the Steel dividend was quickly reflected in the local trading, all the leading issues being in better demand, with prices higher. In the copper list marked improvement was shown on a larger volume than has been noted for some time. Lake copper was the leader, shares being freely bought up to 53½. North Butte showed a fractional gain. The undertone continued strong until the last half hour, when a selling movement set in, carrying prices down.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, April 27.—Money to-day was in good demand and supply. Discounts were easier on the gold arrivals.

The general settlement commenced with banks charging stiffer rates, and consequently the carry-over rates were harder for Americans, at 6 per cent. Business for the new account was fair. The general tone in the stock market was cheerful, with consols and foreigners supported by investors. Rubber and oil shares hardened on bear covering, while Mexican rails and Grand Trunks ruled active and dearer.

American securities opened firm on the increase in the United States Steel dividend, the low price issues leading. Selling of Steel and Amalgamated Copper caused general recessions in the late afternoon, and the close was undecided.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

COTTON GOODS.—One of the special agents of the Department of Commerce and Labor, who is now in South America, reports that two firms in that region are specially interested in American cotton goods, and advises that if American firms would back them up as European exporters do the sales of this class of goods could be greatly increased.

TENDERS FOR STEEL OR IRON PIPE.—An American Consul in Canada reports that a company which has been operating in his district has reached a great flow of natural gas in one of its new wells, and will pipe it to a neighboring city. Considerable pipe will be required for this work, and tenders are desired on the following: (1) Twelve miles of eight-inch, plain end, lap-weld iron or steel pipe for dresser couplings. (2) Forty-five miles of assorted iron or steel pipe, two to six-inch, lap weld; all four inches and above to be plain end pipe for dresser couplings; all below four inches to be threaded. The main office of the company is in England, but all tenders should be submitted to the manager of the Canadian office.

TEXTILE MACHINERY.—One of the special agents of the Department of Commerce and Labor reports that a thirty-loom cotton mill for making coarse cotton cloth will be established shortly in a South American country. This cloth is to be used in making shoes for local use. Quotations and catalogues are requested of American makers on all textile machinery required for making such cloth from yarn imported in the skein.

ARCHITECTURAL IRON AND STELL.—An American Consular officer in Portugal reports that one of the largest importers of iron and steel beams and other architectural iron in that country wishes to receive from manufacturers of such goods catalogues, prices, and discount lists free on board, New York, or cost, insurance, and freight, Lisbon. He now imports large quantities from England, France, and Belgium. First-class bank references will be furnished, and correspondence may be conducted in English.

FARM IMPLEMENTS AND OTHER AMERICAN GOODS.—An American Consular officer in an Asiatic country reports that owing to the present industrial activity his district is in need of materials for construction of every kind. There is an especially large demand for galvanized-iron sheets, imported chiefly from England in sheets measuring 6 and 7 feet long by 2¼ feet wide, in 22 and 24 guages. Modern agricultural implements are also anxiously sought, and this trade is expected to acquire a greater development in the immediate future. Portable wooden houses should also prove of interest if properly introduced. Further detailed particulars can be obtained from the Bureau of Manufactures.

RAILWAY AND WHARF CONSTRUCTION.—A report from an American Consul in Mexico states that a certain railroad company has lately undertaken the construction of a railroad to its proposed fruit orchards in his district, with the intention of ultimately extending it a distance of about 200 miles. Another project connected with the construction of this road is the building of a wharf at the terminal point, and much machinery and supplies will be needed for these two enterprises.

COTTON GOODS FOR THE FAR EAST.—A busines firm in the Far East advises an American Consul that it is desirous of getting in touch with manufacturers in the United States of various makes and brands of American sheetings, &c., which are popular on that market. The Consul states the present is an extremely favorable time to inaugurate a campaign for the extension of the American cotton goods business in that region, and suggests that American manufacturers who are interested should send out a man in whom they have full confidence to study the local situation and make contracts with foreign and local firms for the sale of their particular brands.

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Demand for Plots in Pennsylvania Loft Zone Shown by Quick Sales and Resales—A Million Dollar Lease—Greenwich Village Plot Sold.

A quick sale and resale of a fifty-foot plot in West Twenty-fifth Street, the heart of the loft zone activity, followed by immediate plans for the erection of a twelve-story office building, illustrates the continued demand for available commercial property in that locality. The property at 28 and 30 West Twenty-fifth Street, on plot 50 by 98.9, has been sold by M. and L. Hess for Miss Annie De Voe and Mrs. Bertha Bartlett, respectively, to the Realty Holding Company, and immediately resold by the latter to the A. & S. Construction Company, which has secured a building loan for the erection of a twelve-story mercantile building. On the adjoining property, lately sold by the Realty Holding Company to the Twenty-fifth Street Construction Company, (George L. Felt, President,) a twelve-story loft is now in course of construction. Both buildings will be similar in design and will have the same floor levels, whereby the owners may jointly accommodate tenants desiring 10,000 square feet on each floor. On the same street and not far removed from the above operations, A. E. Lefcourt is contemplating the erection of a large loft on the property he owns from 48 to 54 West Twenty-fifth Street. The size of the plot, 90 by 98.9, is well adapted for a high-class commercial structure.

The old residence of the late Orson D. The plot is to be improved with a twelve-story mercantile structure. Opposite the Munn property Goldberg & Kramer are building at 13-21 a twelve-story loft building, and at the easterly end of the block the new building for Mills & Gibb is being erected.

The buyers, said to be a well-known firm of builders, will erect on the site a twelve-story fireproof mercantile building, to be ready for occupancy by the end of the year.

This will be the first structure of the kind on lower Seventh Avenue.

Mr. Mayer bought the property about two months ago from S. W. Mayer, through the Duross Company.

Plans have been filed for a twelve-story apartment house to be erected for the Century Holding Company, James T. Lee President, at the northeast corner of Fifth Avenue and Eighty-first Street, with accommodations for eighteen families. The building will have a frontage of 102.2 feet on the avenue and 115 feet on the street and is to cost $500,000. McKim, Mead & White are the architects.

This site was bought last November from August Belmont by the Century Holding Company, through Pease & Elliman. About a month ago the buyers secured a loan of $1,350,000 for carrying out their project for the new house. The loan expires in 1920, interest being at 6 per cent. to April, 1915, and 5 per cent. thereafter.

The section has so far been reserved exclusively for high-class residence construction. The last scheme for an apartment house in this vicinity was several years ago, when Mrs. Cornelius Bliss bought 835 Fifth Avenue to avoid having an apartment house as her neighbor down at Sixty-fifth Street.

The proposed apartment house will be the only one on Fifth Avenue between Sixtieth Street and Ninety-second Street.

Twelve-Story Loft for 27th Street.

Plans have been filed with Building Superintendent Miller for a twelve-story store and loft building to be erected at 144 to 152 West Twenty-seventh Street, with a frontage of 67.8 feet and a depth of 88 feet. The façade will be of brick, limestone and terra cotta. The People's Co-operative Property Company, Samuel Mayers, President, is the owner. Buchman & Fox, architects, estimate the cost at $275,000.

44th Street Stable as Art Gallery

Plans have been filed for converting the two-story stable on the north side of Forty-fourth Street, 150 feet west of Fifth Avenue, into an art gallery for Augustus W. Clarke, lessee of the building. A new front of brick ornamented with Ionic columns at the first floor, is to be built, and a rear extension 10 by 19. The cost will be $7,500. The Fifth Avenue Bank is the owner and A. P. Gibbons is the architect.

New Colored Church for Harlem.

Tandy & Foster, architects, have filed plans for the erection of a new church for the St. Philip's Protestant (colored) Episcopal Church, now located at 157 to 163 West Twenty-fifth Street. The new church and parish house will be located at 210 to 216 West 134th Street, running through the block to 213 to 217 West 133d Street. The church will be Gothic in design, ornamented with lionesses at the front corners near the roof. It will have a frontage of 72 feet and will have two entrances. The parish house will have a frontage of 40 feet, in the basement of which will be a billiard room and kitchen. On the first floor will be the pastor's study, reception room, and vestry room, and the second and third floors will be occupied by clubrooms. H. C. Bishop is the pastor, and the cost is estimated at $150,000.

Notes.

Pease & Elliman were the brokers in the sale of 309 West Eighty-second Street, a four-story dwelling on lot 20 by 102.2.

A. E. Lefcourt denies that he has sold 48, 50, 52, and 54 West Twenty-fifth Street and states that he intends to erect a loft building on the sites.

MANHATTAN—FOR SALE.

OUR Reputation as conservative lenders is so well established that many investors never trouble to look at the properties covered by our guaranteed mortgages. They care more, they say, for our guaranty than for the underlying security. That is complimentary, but unwise. No guaranty of a mortgage company is sufficient—no matter what its capital—if its investments be unwisely made. We wish all buyers of guaranteed mortgages were real estate experts and would carefully examine the mortgaged premises.

Then they would know why our offerings are the best.

FLORIDA LAND.

The most desirable and fertile land adjoins the fast growing City of Tampa; fine hard roads surround the property, and the trolley is near at hand; a short ride brings the market gardener to the great market centre, where he can always dispose of his produce; there is no equal location for a farm and pleasant home; a good income can be made in a few months, which should increase in time; this exceptionally fertile and favorably situated land is now sold at the low price of $50 per acre, $1 per acre cash and $1 per acre per month until paid for; no interest or taxes during that period; price will soon be advanced as the property is selling rapidly; location and fertility considered, this is by far the cheapest land in Florida. RAILWAY PROMOTION COST $1,000,000

Mahony Valley Stockholders Seeking an Accounting from New York Trust Co.

LAWYERS CHARGE WASTE

New York Trust Company Involved Only as Successors to Institution That Financed a Railway Deal.

Hearings were begun yesterday before D Cady Herrick, as referee, in an action against the New York Trust Company, as successor to the New York Security and Trust Company, in which E. Clarence Jones, the banker, seeks an accounting in behalf of the stockholders of the Mahony Valley Railway Company of Youngstown, Ohio. Mr. Jones, according to the opening statement of his counsel, Edmund Mooney, at yesterday's hearing, charges that in the flotation of the Youngstown & Sharon Railway and Lighting Company by the New York Security and Trust Company, back in 1900—the corporation now called the Mahony Valley Railway Company—approximately $1,000,000 was divided for the benefit of the trust company and the group of individuals concerned in the promotion.

Mr. Mooney is associated with Solomon Hanford in representing Mr. Jones, and the law firm of Bard & Calkins represents the Mahony Valley Railway Company. W. W. Miller of Hornblower, Miller & Potter represents the New York Trust Company, which is called upon to defend itself against the acts of its predecessor. Yesterday's session before the referee was taken up entirely with the preliminary statement of Mr. Mooney.

The central figure of the recital which Mr. Mooney gave yesterday was Charles S. Fairchild, former Secretary of the Treasury, who was President of the New York Security and Trust Company in the days before its consolidation with the Continental Trust Company into the present New York Trust Company. The lawyer for the plaintiff characterized the transaction of which he complained as "wicked waste and improper disbursements," and said that by reason of these deals the company is now in a state of suspended animation.

The scheme of organization which Mr. Mooney recited was for the New York Security and Trust Company to officer the Youngstown & Sharon Railway and Lighting Company with its own officers and clerks, Mr. Fairchild serving in the dual capacity of President of the Trust Company and Vice President of the Railway and Lighting Company. There were some amusing manifestations of this system recounted by the lawyer. On June 30, 1902, he said, Mr. Fairchild, Vice President of the Railway Company, wrote to him as President of the Trust Company, dating the letter Youngstown, Ohio, although he was in New York at the time, directing himself to certify $200,000 second mortgage bonds of the Railway Company and to deliver these to the New York Security and Trust Company as collateral for an issue of $150,000 notes issued to the New York Security and Trust.

On Oct. 2 of the same year Mr. Fairchild, it is charged, wrote to himself in the same capacity directing himself similarly to certify $300,000 of the second mortgage bonds and issue them to the trust company as security for $200,000 more notes. The $500,000 second mortgage bonds thus issued, the complainant charges, were put out in exchange for a like amount of first mortgage bonds which the railway company held in its treasury, and which under the terms of the mortgage could not be issued at less than par, and Mr. Mooney declared yesterday that the scheme of note substitution was in effect an attempt to get the $500,000 first mortgage bonds out of the treasury of the railway company in violation of the conditions under which they were originally issued.

Mr. Mooney declared that the contracting firm of Park & Hamilton, which undertook to build the road, was overpaid to the extent of $375,000, and that another contracting firm, Sanderson & Porter, suddenly became underwriters of $500,000 of the second mortgage bonds which they turned over to the New York Security and Trust Company at 80, receiving a commission of $25,000 for this service. That block of bonds, according to Mr. Mooney, accounted for half of a $1,000,000 issue of second mortgage bonds, and the $500,000 which was put up with the trust company as security for the notes accounted for the other half.

Still another contracting firm figured in the deal. That was the firm of Renhale & Fisher, of which partner Fisher suddenly turned "capitalist" under a contract whereby the firm undertook to guarantee the work on the Park & Hamilton contract. Mr. Mooney alleged further that the New York Security and Trust Company, contracting with the Youngstown & Sharon Railway & Lighting Company, bought up and turned over the stock of certain subsidiary corporations which were put into the Youngstown & Sharon road at $850,000, whereas they cost $142,000 less. Accordingly a general accounting is asked of all the funds and securities of the railway company that were used in the promotion.

The hearing will be continued before ex-Judge Herrick on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock.

Extra Protection for the Bronx.

Many recent complaints from residents in outlying sections of the Bronx, where police posts are long and policemen rarely seen, have led to the establishment of police sub-stations. Two for the Morrisania Station were opened at the Concourse and 162d Street and at Fox Square, and yesterday Inspector Flood opened two for the Tremont Station at 175th Street, Southern Boulevard, and Riverdale Avenue and the Spuyten Duyvil Parkway. At each there will be a policeman on desk duty, a telephone, and two mounted men to be sent out in case of emergency.

Chinese Pottery Articles of the Fifteenth Century Are "Works of Art."

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday sustained a protest filed by Arthur W. Robson of Baltimore against the assessment by the Collector of Customs of a high duty on Chinese pottery, articles described as works of the fifteenth century. Instead of the 60 per cent. assessment complained of by Mr. Robson, the board upholds the contention for entry as "other works of art."

The merchandise consisted of biscuit bowls in high relief, and small vases of bronze. Judge Waite, who writes the decision for the board, says that the regulations of the Treasury Department seem to have been complied with, while it is established successfully that the articles are of sufficient age to bring them within the scope of the tariff provision for exemption from duty. In sustaining the contention of Mr. Robson, the general appraiser says in part:

"The Collector seems to have considered, however, that they (the articles) have not such artistic merit as entitles them to classification under Paragraph 717. On inspection of photographs of the articles, and from the testimony in the case, we are inclined to think that they are sufficiently artistic to come within this part of the law, bearing in mind that a high degree of artstic qualities is not required in articles to be included within this paragraph. Objects of an artstic nature more than 100 years old, of ornamental character or educational value, have been included. We think these articles fall within that classification. The protest is therefore sustained."

FOLDING BED VICTIM PAPERMAKER OF LEE

WOMAN COMPANION MISSING

Every Effort Made to Conceal His Identity, a False Name and Address Being Given.

A sordid romance of one phase of New York's life was revealed yesterday when the identity of the aged man who was killed by the collapse of a folding bed in a rooming house at 426 West Twenty-third Street was established beyond question as Wellington Smith, one of the leading citizens of Lee, Mass., President of the Smith Paper Company, which operates five large paper mills on the Housatonic River, and a Deacon in the Lee Congregational Church.

Mr. Smith was 75 years old. The woman who was with him at the time of his death and came near sharing the same fate has disappeared. Her identity has not been learned. She was at least 65 years old. It has been established that she was not his wife.

Mr. Smith made frequent trips to this city. Most of the time when he remained over night he stayed at the Twenty-third Street house, which is kept by Mrs. Nettie A. Ralph, a widow. He came here two days ago accompanied by W. A. Castle, a prominent dealer in pulp paper at Lee, Mass., and a close personal friend. He appeared at Mrs. Ralph's house on Tuesday evening, accompanied by a middle-aged woman, and rented the room on the first floor. The boarding house is of the old-style brownstone front variety, with a high stoop. The front windows open on a small balcony.

So far as the police could learn, Smith and his companion retired about 10:30 o'clock on Tuesday night. They used an old-fashioned folding bed, and from subsequent developments it was evident that Mr. Smith was not familiar with its mechanism. When not in use the bed has the appearance of a wardrobe. It is of heavy walnut, and the foot-legs have to be pulled out and snapped in place as it is let down. Apparently Mr. Smith pulled out the legs only half way. Shortly after the couple retired, the legs doubled up, allowing the heavy top to fall over on the occupants.

His Neck Was Broken.

The fall broke Mr. Smith's neck. He must have died almost instantly. His companion was not struck by the top, but was so firmly wedged inside that she could not free herself. A small breathing space only saved her from suffocation. Although she screamed for help her cries were not heard until midnight.

Mrs. Ralph occupies a room on the same floor, and when she was aroused from sleep she had difficulty in locating the screams. Finally she traced them to the front room, only to find the door securely locked on the inside. At this Mrs. Ralph became panicstricken and ran into the street shouting for help.

Miss Marie Smallwood, 19 years old; Miss Emily Smith, and a young man happened to be passing at the moment. The two young women occupied furnished rooms at 464 West Twenty-third Street, only a few doors away, and were returning from the theatre. Mrs. Ralph appealed to them for help, and suggested that the young man crawl through the window and unlock the door.

"What, and be shot for a burglar? I guess not," said the escort.

"I'll climb in," said Miss Smallwood, and mounted to the balcony. The window was unlatched, and, lowering the top part, she climbed into the room. In a moment she had the door unlocked, and with the assistance of the others the folding bed was righted.

In the mantime Miss Smith, who is not related to the dead man, and her escort had hurried in search of assistance, and returned with Dr. W. H. Weston of 400 West Twenty-second Street and two policemen.

"The man is dead. His neck was broken, and he must have died instantly," said the physician after an examination.

The Woman Senseless.

The woman was unconscious, but quickly revived. When she learned that her companion was dead she became hysterical. Hurriedly dressing she started to leave the house, but at the suggestion of Dr. Weston she returned to the room. A policeman had sent in an ambulance call, and Dr. Wilkerson of New York Hospital responded. He also pronounced Mr. Smith dead, and finding that his woman companion had recovered he did not take her to the hospital.

Mrs. Ralph told the police and the physicians that the dead man was William Smith, a wallpaper manufacturer of Waterbury, Conn., and that his companion was his wife. This is the entry that was made on the police blotter at the West Twentieth Street Station. The policeman and physicians complimented Miss Smallwood on her bravery in entering the bedroom when even her male escort refused, but she did not get any sympathy from her landlady, Mrs. Foster. When reporters called at her address further down the street later in the morning, Mrs. Foster informed them that she had requested both Miss Smallwood and Miss Smith to leave because she did not care for the notoriety that the affair had brought.

It became evident early in the day that unusual efforts were being made to keep the affair a profound secret. Mrs. Ralph disappeared from her home, the servants refusing to tell callers where she had gone. The body was removed to the undertaking establishment of Leon T. Stowe, at 307 West Fifty-first Street. He did his utmost to keep the identity of the dead man from coming to light. Earlier in the day Coroner Hallenstein had granted a burial certificate upon the report of Dr. Weston, still giving the name of the dead man as William Smith. Undertaker Stowe said "Mrs. Smith" had recovered and left shortly after noon with the body for Waterbury.

Later Stowe said he had been engaged by the Smith family and he did not care to give out any information. He would not deny that the body was still in his establishment and had not been removed at all.

Prominent at His Home.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., April 27.—Wellington Smith, who was killed last night in New York was one of the richest men of Lee, Mass. He was President of the Smith Paper Company, a leader in the Congregational Church of that place, and was known all over the State. He had been twice married. His first wife, whom he married in 1861, was Mary Shannon of Northampton. His second wife was Annie Bullard, daughter of James Bullard of Lee. By his first wife he had two children, Augustus R. Smith, who is Vice President of the Smith Paper Company, and Mary Shannon Smith, who is now at Raleigh, N. C. The children by his second wife are Wellington Smith, Jr., of Lee; Mrs. Almon C. Barrell, and Elizur Yale Smith of Pittsfield.

Mr. Smith had been active in Republican politics in Berkshire County and was a personal friend of President McKinley. He was a delegate to numerous conventions, including the National Convention in 1880, which nominated Garfield for President. In 1882 he was elected to the post of Governor's counsel and served during the term of Gov. Benjamin F. Butler.

He was active in the formation of the Pittsfield Chapter of the Sons of the American Revolution, and was its first President. He was President for many years of the Derby Mills Paper Company of Shelton, Conn.; President of the Greylock Cotton Mills Company, former President of the American Tissue Paper Manufacturers' Association, and since 1880 a member of the board of the Berkshire Life Insurance Company.

Mr. Smith was a member of the Evening Star Lodge of Masons of Lee, and had been a member of the Congregational Church there since 1858, serving in many official capacities. He had a beautiful home called Elm Croft just outside of the village. He was a great lover of horses, and kept the finest road team in Berkshire County. He is said to have been the first paper manufacturer in America to introduce woodpulp in the product and use it as a basis of paper-making.

The news of Mr. Smith's peculiar death created much amazement here and in Lee. At first it was not believed, but corroboration came from his son-in-law, Almon C. Darrell of Bronxville, N. Y., who is connected with the Butterick Publishing Company of New York. His son, Augustus R. Smith, immediately left for New York and will take charge of the body.

No one here or in Lee appears to know who the woman with Mr. Smith was. His wife refused to-night to discuss the case.

HYDE SENT TO JAIL.

Court Declares Evidence Too Strong to Admit of His Being at Large.

KANSAS CITY, April 27.—Owing to the evidence presented to-day in the trial of Dr. B. C. Hyde for the murder by poison of Col. Thomas H. Swope, Dr. Hyde's bond of $100,000 was revoked and the physician was placed in jail to-night by order of Judge Latshaw. Dr. Hyde must remain in prison until he is declared innocent by a jury or is permitted by the court to furnish a new bond.

Without advising any one of his intention, Judge Latshaw summoned County Marshal Mayes into the court room, from which the jury had been removed, and said:

"In view of the testimony thus far given the court is constrained to say that it amounts to a presumption that, under the law, deprives the defendant of the right to give bond, and he is hereby remanded to the custody of the Marshal."

Mrs. Hyde stared at the Judge as he spoke, and when he had finished she threw her arms about her husband's neck and sobbed hysterically. Mrs. Logan O. Swope saw Mrs. Hyde, who is her daughter, standing in the hall sobbing, but she passed quickly by, entered her automobile, and went home.

Scarcely had the court ceased speaking when Attorney John Lucas, representing Dr. Hyde, had the following statement entered upon the record.

"The defendant maintains and alleges that the remanding of him to the county jail pending the result of his case will have the effect of prejudicing his right before the jury, it being construed as a declaration on the part of the court against his interest and leading the jury to believe he is guilty of the offense charged, and asks the court to rescind the order upon that ground."

"The defendant will not be locked up with the jury, and the knowledge cannot come to the jury from anything that the court can prevent," answered Judge Latshaw.

Cyanide of potassium, the deadly poison which the State accuses Dr. Hyde of giving Col. Thomas H. Swope, causing his death, played an important rôle in the trial to-day. Hugo Brecklein, a druggist, and three of his employes testified that on three occasions, in September and December, 1909, Dr. Hyde purchased a total of twenty-five grains in capsules at their place of business.

Brecklein said that in the twenty-three years he had been a druggist he never had sold cyanide for medicine. It was generally sold for the use of photographers.

BANK TELLER ENDS HIS LIFE.

Discouraged, It Is Said, at Salary Reduction to $1,600 a Year.

George W. Rose, receiving teller of the Jefferson Bank, at Canal and Forsyth Streets, committed suicide in the bank vault yesterday morning by cutting his throat and the arteries in his wrists with a small ink-erasing knife. Mr. Rose was about 50 years old, and highly respected and trusted by the officials of the bank. He left nothing that would tend to explain why he had taken his life. His accounts were correct to the penny.

It was rumored that Mr. Rose's salary had recently been reduced, and that the loss might have caused the despondency that led him to take his life. This, too, was denied at the bank.

Mr. Rose was married and lived at 23 Essex Street, Hackensack, N. J. One of his sons is a student in Cornell University. A daughter is a student at Barnard College. Until last August Mr. Rose held a responsible position with the National Reserve Bank, at 165 Broadway. He gave that up to take one at a lower salary, it is said, with the Jefferson Bank, making the change because he thought the chances for promotion were better.

Mr. Rose arrived at the Jefferson Bank about 8 o'clock yesterday morning and greeted pleasantly the other clerks, and talked for a few moments with William F. Olandt, one of the tellers. In his talk with Mr. Olandt he gave no indication that he was not in the best of spirits. His chat with Mr. Olandt over he put his hat and coat away and then went down stairs where the vaults are.

Missing Mr. Rose after a long while Mr. Olandt went down into the vault room to look for him. The doors of the vault were closed, but not locked. When he opened the doors he saw Mr. Rose lying on the floor, still alive, but unconscious.

Olandt ran upstairs, and, hurrying to a telephone, called an ambulance from Gouverneur Hospital. Rose was still breathing when the ambulance arrived, and died within ten minutes after he was received at the hospital.

William Devlin, the cashier of the bank, said that Rose was a most capable and trustworthy man, and that his habits were of the best.

The Coroner's office gave permission to remove the body to Hackensack. The rumor about the reduction of Mr. Rose's salary was that it was recently reduced to $1,600 a year, and that this made it very hard for him to keep his children in college and at the same time keep up his home. His home life was said to have been a very happy one.

People in Hackensack who knew Rose best say that he was never himself after his arrest in 1902 on an indictment charging him and others with overcertification of checks of the firm of Marquard & Co., while he was employed in the Seventh National Bank, which resulted in the bank closing its doors.

SEARCH AFTER DARK FOR MISSING GIRL

CLOTHES FOUND IN A POND

Then the Teacher Fainted—Meantime Estelle Waiss Was Safe at a Neighbor's House.

Twenty-eight girls, ranging from seven to 9 years, of the kindergarten class of Miss Josephine Cavanaugh, at Public School 9, at 138th Street and Brown Place, the Bronx, went with her on a long-promised outing yesterday afternoon in Watson's Woods, which extends from Clason Point to Walker Avenue. After they had romped about among the wild flowers, tall grass, and marshes for several hours they were gathered in to return home.

When the roll was called, one of the girls, seven-year-old Estelle Waiss of 543 East 139th Street, was missing. Several of the children ran out of the woods to seek help, and brought back Policeman Dortett and Lieut. Hearly of the Westchester station. The policemen and the children searched the woods from 4 to 6 o'clock, but could find no trace of the child. Dark was coming on, so Miss Cavanaugh thought it best to take the children to their homes. When she had done so, she returned, just as eighteen mounted policemen from the Westchester station galloped up to begin the search a-new.

The shrubbery and tall marsh grass made the horses worse than useless; so Capt. Ferdon, in command of the men, ordered them to dismount, and, equipped with a hand searchlight each, to crawl through the bushes on their hands and knees. Their horses they tied in a shadowy circle in the now darkened woods.

Midway in the woods they came upon Ice Pond, a small muddy sheet of water, which they dragged with long branches. One of the policemen fished out a little coat and skirt. Immediately Miss Cavanaugh, who was in the foremost line of the searchers, gave a cry and fell in a faint. She was carried by two policemen out of the woods to a waiting car of the Westchester Railway, and there revived. One of the policemen took her home.

Meanwhile little Estelle Waiss, the missing girl, unable to find her comrades in the woods, wandered aimlessly about, emerging at precisely the opposite side of the woods. In Westchester Avenue, she met two men, to whom she told her trouble, and gave her name and address. The men took her to her home. Her mother, however, had not yet returned from an afternoon of shopping, so they left her with one of the neighbors, where she fell asleep.

At 7 o'clock the mother returned. Half an hour later a policeman from the Alexander Avenue Station came to tell her her child was lost in the woods and that the police were dragging one of the ponds there for her body. Then Mrs. Waiss fainted.

When she was revived, she was still so hysterical that the attention of neighbors, among them the woman at whose home the child lay sleeping, was attracted. The woman calmed her and a few minutes later brought Estelle home.

But the company of mounted police continued beating through the woods and dragging the pond until 9 o'clock. Then a message came telling that the child had been found. How the little coat and skirt had got in the pond could not be discovered.

WATSON TELLS PLAN TO END 'DEATH AVE.'

New Measure Gives New York Central Five Months to Submit a Plan.

TRACKS TO BE COVERED

Corporation Counsel's Scheme Will Enlarge the Park Area and Remove Grade Crossings.

Corporation Counsel Watson sent a letter to the Mayor yesterday explaining in detail his new bill to remove the tracks from Eleventh Avenue, which will be presented to the Legislature in a few days. The bill is similar in some respects to the Saxe bill, though it is without the features which it has been declared frustrated the purpose of the latter measure.

It gives the New York Central five months to prepare plans for the removal of the tracks and gives the Public Service Commission four months for its consideration. It does not call for the condemnation of the tracks by the city if the two fail to agree as did the Saxe bill, but it precludes the possibility of the elevation of the road. The tracks must be depressed.

The bill also provides for the apportionment of the expense of the covering of the tracks between the city and the railroad company, the greater part of the cost to be borne by the latter.

Mr. Watson in his letter says:

This provision, requiring the railroad to submit plans within a limited time, is said to be especially important in view of the pendency of the litigation. The railroad must do this before the determination of the appeal from Referee Herrick's decision, but it will not be incumbent upon the city to act upon it until after the decision of the Court of Appeals.

The railroad company's proposition certainly would be more favorable to the city than if the appeal had been decided in favor of the company. Should the appeal be in favor of the city it would accept the railroad's offer only upon conditions which might be properly imposed in the light of the decision.

"In other words," says Mr. Watson, "enabling legislation as proposed would be necessary, that the city might deal adequately with the situation, even though the appeal is in our favor. This consideration impelled me to believe that the city might gain a substantial advantage by the passage of an enabling act at this time.

"The objections your predecessor made to the previous bill were, first, that it was understood to contemplate an elevated structure in Eleventh Avenue, and, second, that it repealed the Saxe law. These objections have been obviated in the present draft, which leaves the Saxe bill intact and expressly provides that no elevated structure shall be constructed on either Tenth or Eleventh Avenue.

"The draft just prepared also contemplates a covering or roof over the railroad tracks along Riverside Park south of West 122d Street, and along Fort Washington Park. This will constitute not only an important addition to the area of the parks, but will hide the unsightly tracks from view and render feasible a development of the water front in a manner not now possible.

The present bill, he says, also guarantees that this covering shall be constructed practically without cost to the city by providing that in case the proceeds of the sale to the company by the city of lands under water, which the former requires shall not be sufficient to pay for this roof, the deficiency shall be met by the company.

"The expense to the city in any event," he continues, "will be comparatively small, consisting principally of the cost of construction of approaches to bridges by which half a dozen or more streets will be carried over the tracks, and any damage in connection therewith. The bridges are to be constructed by the company.

"Where the railroad is carried over the streets it will be done without cost to the city, the result of which will be to eliminate grade crossings, upon conditions more favorable to the city than those provided by any other act with which I am familiar."

The Saxe bill gave the railroad company and the commission a year in which to agree on some plan for the removal of the tracks from grade. After its enactment the time expired without their having come to an understanding, and the act was invalidated on the ground that the condemnation provided for could not be complied with.

Smith Gray & Co.
Foremost Clothiers Since 1845.
Blue serge, worsted, cassimere and velour suits, new grays, blue, stone and steel shades, specially priced, 15.50.
Fabrics regular 20.00 and 22.50 grades.
The purpose of this special pricing is the exploitation of the goodness of Smith Gray garments, and the values to be found in Smith Gray & Co. Stores.
Included are all the various fabrics and shades which accord with this season's good taste. All are of the regular Smith Gray standard of fabric and tailoring, and every fabric is the regular 20.00 and 22.50 grade. Models for men and young men.
About 500 suits, every size occurring in some style—all in men's and young men's models, the regular prices of which have been 22.50, 25.00 and 27.50. The price now is 18.50.
These suits represent an accumulation of small lots of our best sellers, one, two, three or four of a kind. Your size is there in some style—and every one was regularly priced at 22.50, 25.00 and 27.50.
Smith Gray Spring Coats by their popularity sustain our claims for their superiority. This season Smith Gray Spring Coats have had an unusually great demand—resulting in many broken lots and broken sizes. The Smith Gray policy disposes of broken lots and sizes as they occur. Here are about 350 of our nicest coats—because best sellers, reduced.
18.50 for Spring Coats formerly up to 25.00
The Smith Gray Spring Coats in many exclusive and many individual models and fabrics are 18.00 to 50.00, with a big value at 20.00—a silk lined to edge Black and Oxford Vicuna finished fabric—a Spring Coat of unusual excellence and value for so little a price.
Motor clothes for owners and chauffeurs.

YOU can produce pictures on wood as perfectly as with delicate inlay. A trademark, an insignia or a characteristic figure identified with your business can be reproduced so that it will be so attractively decorative that your agent will be glad to display it prominently.
The cost is less than double what you pay for lithographs and scarcely one-tenth what it would cost to do the work in inlay. Let us show you what we have done for the Union Pacific Railroad.
